Colonel's Son Cited For Heroics; MG Seignious Lauds 7-Year Old

Tuesday was a big day for young Michael McGowan. Almost as big a day as March 4th had been for five-year old Paul Shanley.

For on March 4th Michael saved the life of Paul Shanley, and last Tuesday he was presented an award certificate by Major General George M. Seignious, II, U.S. Commander, Berlin, for his courageous actions.

"I heard someone screaming," Michael said as he thought back to that cold Thursday. Upon proceeding towards the sound of the screaming, Michael found that Paul had slipped and fallen into a hole in the ice while playing on a pond in the vicinity of the American housing area.

Michael determined that the ice was sufficiently thick to hold his weight, and he rushed to the hole and succeeded in pulling the Shanley boy out. He then brought Paul home and saw that he received dry clothing.

The award reads in part: "...Michael's conduct in this situation is particularly noteworthy in view of the fact that he is seven years of age. His bravery and consideration for his fellow man reflect favorably on himself, his parents, and are in keeping with the finest traditions of American youth."

Michael is the son of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Paul A. McGowan, Comptroller Division, Berlin Brigade, and Paul is the son of Major and Mrs. Leo B. Shanley, Maintenance Division, Berlin Brigade.

"We're so proud of him," stated Mrs. McGowan. So are we all, so are we all.

13 Health Agencies Participate In CFC

The National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults has 2,000 units, in every state and Puerto Rico. They provide rehabilitation services annually to more than 2,000 units in every state and Puerto Rico. They provide rehabilitation services annually to more than 250,000 handicapped people, 75 per cent of them children.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in the prevention of blindness through a comprehensive program of community services, public and professional education and research.

United Cerebral Palsy supports studies to determine how German measles is spread, the effectiveness of the new rubella vaccine and whether it will be safe for pregnant women.

The American Cancer Society wants to wipe out cancer in your lifetime. It saves lives now through education and service and supports research for the conquest of cancer.

The American Heart Association spearheads increasingly successful programs against heart and blood vessel diseases affecting 25 million Americans, accounting for more deaths than all other causes combined.

The Arthritis Foundation fights one of America's leading crippling diseases (17 million victims) by financing research centers, clinics, training programs. It emphasizes that disability can be prevented with early diagnosis and proper treatment.

Spring Cleanup Next Week

Get out your rakes, shovels and the old paint can, because next week is "Spring Cleanup Week" for the American community in Berlin.

Starting next Monday, March 29th, all members of the command are urged to put forth a maximum effort to beautify the American community.

On Tuesday, March 30, and again on Thursday, April 1, married personnel living in government quarters will be released in the afternoon from their normal duties to return to their quarters to assist in cleanup details. Area and stairwell co-ordinators are requested to be present at this time to supervise the procedures.

The Engineering and Installations Division will be patrolling throughout the American community during "Spring Cleanup Week" to pick up debris.

Spring cleaning can be fun when everyone takes part, and pride, in the cleaning activities. Everyone is reminded, however, that area beautification, like conservation, is an all-year-round project.

Girl Scout Receives Award

Miss Beth Beagle has become the first member of the Girl Scouts of the USA from Berlin to earn the coveted International Friendship Recognition award. Beth, 10 years old, is the daughter of Staff Sergeant and Mrs. John Beagle, of Findlay, Ohio.

The award, unique in Girl Scouting in that it can only be acquired by girls living in a foreign country, is not easily or quickly earned. Girls working for the award must complete projects in several categories, designed "to help girls realize the unique opportunities open in building international friendships while they are living outside the United States of America."

A few of the requirements for earning the award include developing a personal friendship with a member of the host country; learning about the country and its people through its language, customs, culture, history and geography; helping people of the host country to understand the United States and its people; developing a better understanding of worldwide scouting and acting to help citizens of the host country.

Beth, who worked for approximately 15 months to earn the award, says, "I enjoyed doing the work. I learned that children everywhere are basically alike—only the customers are different."

Defender's Dayton Is Top Man For March

Specialist Four Dennis Ray Dayton, of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, has been named Berlin Brigade Soldier of the Month for March. Runner-up for March is Specialist Four Steven P. Bauer, of Company F, 40th Armor.

Dayton will receive congratulations from Brigadier General Harold I. Hayward, commanding general, Berlin Brigade, along with a $25 U.S. Savings Bond, an engraved wrist watch and a seven-day administrative leave.

A 22-year old native of Myrtle Point, Oregon, Dayton entered the Army in June, 1970. Before that he worked and studied in the Eugene, Oregon, area where he attended the University of Oregon. He has been in Berlin since November of last year and is currently a member of the Defender's 4.2-inch mortar section.

Asked about the award, Dayton said, "I want to thank those in my four-deuce (4.2-inch) mortar section, particularly Staff Sergeant James Moultrie, for their cooperation in helping me to earn this award." Dayton hopes to take the leave and try his hand at skiing in Berchtesgaden.

Bauer, March's runner-up, will receive a $25 U.S. Savings Bond and an additional monetary award donated by the NCO/EM Open Mess, Club 50. "The money's going in the bank!" said Bauer.

Bauer, 21 years old, is a native of Camden, New Jersey. Before entering the Army in November, 1969, he worked as a customer engineer for the IBM Corp. and holds a diploma from the Institute of Computer Management, Philadelphia. Bauer is currently enrolled in three correspondence courses, all in data processing.

Schiller College Presents

On March 28 the Schiller College Theater Arts Program will present "The Three Cuckolds" in the Vaganten Bühne. Based on a commedia dell'Arte scenario, the play was adapted by the American writer Leon Katz, and will be given in English.

The Schiller College is an American college with campuses in Berlin, Heidelberg, Bönningheim, Paris, Madrid and London. Here in Berlin the bulk of the students come for either a semester or a year and then return to the United States to continue their education.

"The Three Cuckolds" presents the traditional characters of the commedia dell'Arte (among them Pantalone, Arlecchino, and Zanni) trying to dupe each other. Each husband is interested in the wife of someone else. Since the wives are compliant with the desires of their lovers, all sorts of interesting complications develop.

In the end all the intrigues are discovered and a temporary "happy end" reigns, while Arlecchino runs off to further adventures which will undoubtedly be as successful as his adventures so far have been.

The production is directed by Hans-Werner Bussinger, a well-known actor in Berlin. Douglas Rosen, a former student of Schiller College has designed the set.

The production will be performed on Sunday, March 28, at 11:30 a.m. and on Monday, March 29 at 8:00 p.m. in the Vaganten Bühne. Tickets may be reserved by calling Schiller College (886 38 94).

Surgeon Speaks --

Army Veterinary Clinic Serves Community

by Cpt. Ronald O. Robers, VC

The U.S. Army Veterinary Clinic, located in the first floor of the dental clinic building in the U. S. Army Hospital, Berlin compound is available for use by all U. S. military personnel.

The clinic is entirely an outpatient facility with no hospitalization, surgery, or x-ray facilities, thus, conditions requiring these services must be performed by a civilian veterinarian. Many conditions, however, can be treated as outpatients quite successfully.

A list of local veterinarians is available at the clinic which also includes boarding kennels, dog grooming facilities and the different kennel clubs. Most of the veterinarians in the neighborhood speak enough English to take care of your animal's problems.

Animals are seen by appointment only. If a pet is sick or if your puppy or kitten has never been to the clinic before, you should make an appointment. Make sure you know the date of birth and have all the vaccination records the first time you come in.

The following information is furnished to help keep your pet in better health:

- All pets in the command must be registered here at the clinic within seven days after arrival.
- Rabies vaccinations are required every three years for dogs and every year for cats. Bring all vaccination papers with you.
- It is recommended that dogs receive vaccinations for distemper, hepatitis and leptospirosis every year until the dog is at least five years of age.
- It is recommended that cats receive a vaccination against feline infectious enteritis (feline distemper) every year.
- All dogs and cats should be checked yearly for internal parasites. To check, bring a stool sample in an enclosed container marked with your name, telephone number and pet's name into the clinic. Animals can have parasitic infections without you seeing the worms.
- Bones and foreign objects can cause significant intestinal disturbances. Most people realize that dogs should not eat chicken bones, however, many people don't know pork chop or steak bones can also cause many intestinal problems. If there is any possibility that your dog can swallow any part of a bone you should not let him have it.

● Puppies and kittens should start their vaccination series at six to seven weeks of age.

● The primary diet of dogs and cats should normally consist of a good quality, well known brand name commercial ration. The major companies have spent years of research and time to develop their foods, which are balanced diets. Hamburger meat is usually well accepted by dogs just as ice cream is by children. However, neither food is a balanced diet. Dogs usually eat best if they are fed at the same time each day. If the dog doesn't eat the food in 15 or 20 minutes, remove it, make sure it does not get any in-between snacks, and offer it fresh food at the next scheduled feeding.

● Daily grooming will keep your pet looking in top shape at all times. Bathing too frequently may cause dry, flakey skin. When you bathe your dog, take precautions not to get water in the eyes or ears, and make certain no soap residue is left on the skin. Brushing daily with a soft bristled brush is recommended. Keep matter cleaned from the corner of their eyes and gently clean the ears with soft cotton lightly moistured with baby oil or mineral oil in the places you can reach with your fingers.

Rotating to the States requires a current rabies vaccination which cannot be less than 30 days old. Transportation must be arranged by you through a commercial shipping agency. Dogs under two years of age traveling by ship must have a distemper vaccination within the past year. A health certificate for all pets is required. The certificate must be less than 10 days old upon departure. The certificate can be given at the Veterinary Clinic.

The Veterinary Clinic is maintained by funds which must be reimbursed by the pet owner. Drugs and supplies obtained at the clinic are priced at our cost plus transportation.

A bulletin board for advertising is available for your use at the clinic. You are invited to use it for any announcements relating to pets.

Double Exposure At 3/6 Defender Battalion's Medic Twins

by Sp/5 Dan Fredrickson

A pair isn't necessarily a winning hand in poker, but platoon leaders in Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry are willing to bet on the combination they've drawn.

The pair, Pravatates First Class Terry and Larry McCallister, identical twin brothers, were assigned to the Defender Battalion's Medical Platoon as medical specialists a few weeks ago. While some people may find it unusual that twins should be assigned to the same battalion, the twins themselves find nothing odd about it. To them it seems to be just another part of the pattern they've been in since entering the Army some eight months ago.

Residing with their parents in Decker, Indiana, they graduated from high school in 1969. After graduation they worked for slightly less than a year before the Army called them.

The problem of mistaken identity has not come up much since they've been in Berlin, though, but it often proved helpful to them when they were in basic training. Drill Sergeants could tell the McCallisters apart by sight because Larry wears brown-rimmed glasses and Terry black, but details that were assigned by name only invariably failed to list a first name, allowing them to switch off, alternating with each other.

TERRY? NO, LARRY. LARRY? TERRY Terry and Larry McCallister, twin brothers who are members of the Defender's medic platoon, have had an interesting military career thus far, though it has been confusing to quite a few people. Photo by Sp/5 Dan Fredrickson

The McCallisters were in the same platoon at Ft. Knox during basic training and the Army Medics School, too. After finishing their training both were assigned to Germany and then Berlin. Since both Terry and Larry McCallister (Cont. on pg. 5, col. 1)

Winwood, Emerson: No Pop Music Paradox

by Steve Reisler

The great paradox of pop music is, in my opinion, the inability of so many musicians to comprehend their own compositions. If you can decipher the lyrics of such rock groups as "Steppenwolf," "Uriah Heep," and "Canned Heat," you might find that they generally express a desire to be free from the stranglehold of conformity, to be individual.

Yet these same musicians contradict themselves by imitating and repeating the old rock standards to the point where the performers' styles are veritably indistinct.

This week I will salute two members of the progressive music community who have somehow managed to avoid falling into the bottomless pit of banality: Steve Winwood and Keith Emerson.

"Blind Faith," the short-lived fiasco that had a disparaging effect on the reputations of Eric Clapton and Ginger Baker, did serve to bring Stevie Winwood into the limelight.

Winwood had been quite prolific before his association with the ex-Cream duo, but he had never been especially popular.

The melodious and sometimes humorous polyphonic sounds of his original "Traffic" were released at a time when most of us were mesmerized by the heavy-hard pulsations of Jimi Hendrix and Jim Morrison. Later, when other musicians recorded old "Traffic" numbers like "Heaven Is In Your Mind," "Coloured Rain," and "Dear Mr. Fantasy," very few listeners realized that they had all been worked out by Winwood some time before.

Perhaps with the demise of "Blind (bland?) Faith" Winwood recognized had all been worked out by Winwood the death-rattle of stereotype rock. He organized the new "Traffic," a threesome, and released the "John Barleycorn" album, a platter which defies classification.

In order to appreciate its composition, this record must be regarded as a whole and not as a conglomerate of separate songs. Winwood's versatility as an instrumentalist and knack for attaining musical consonance have put him in the forefront of the modern LP collection.

While Steve Winwood may be leading the pack with "John Barleycorn," he is still breathing the dust of Keith Emerson. Although a few perceptive individuals acclaimed Emerson a virtuoso long ago, he was, and still is for the most part, an obscure name.

His early works (which continue to make much current music look primitive) are properly summarized on "The Best of the Nice." The employment of an orchestra to complete the "Nice" sound was then considered revolutionary . . . now it has become an accepted means of pop expression. Because of poor recording response, "Nice" was disbanded in the Spring of 1970.

Undaunted, Emerson organized a loose confederation of relatively unknown but talented individuals under the title of "Emerson, Lake and Palmer." The classical influence of the old masters is apparent in Emerson's vibrant and fertile creations. His piano interpetations sound at once contemporary and long-hair (in your parent's sense of the term, that is).

The percussion and guitar sections of "Emerson, Lake, and Palmer" do not play second fiddle to the organ-piano-harpisichord score; rather they compliment each other in a cultured, harmonious manner. The group is also well endowed in the vocal department — listen to the voice tracks of "Take A Pebble" and "Lucky Man."

It is only through the enterprising examples set by Steve Winwood, Keith Emerson and their kind that the stagnant stream of pop music can be revitalized. They are heralding the rebirth of a decadent music industry.

MTA Exercises Sharpen Readiness; Guardian Riflemen Learn By Doing

by PFC Stephen Graham

"Platoon, move out!"

With these words, the platoon leader commands his men to begin their movement toward the enemy objective. The riflemen scramble from their prone positions behind whatever cover they have found and begin advancing toward and firing at the enemy bunker on the hillside. Where is this battle taking place? The men are firing live ammunition, but the enemy consists of paper silhouettes stationed behind dirt bunkers.

The platoon in the attack with live fire was one of the exercises conducted by the men of the Second Battalion, Sixth Infantry while on field exercises at the MTA. It is designed to acquaint the rifleman with his role should such a situation ever become necessary. It also teaches the elements of coordination required for a large number of men to perform the exercise or an actual combat attack effectively and safely.

And just what is the role of a rifleman? Everyone knows that he is the backbone of any infantry unit, but does he just fire at anything in sight? Does he have a specific place to fire? How does he determine his area of responsibility? These questions were discussed with several members of the Guardian Battalion.

Privates First Class Donald Watts and Ronald Utitus are riflemen in Charley Company. Both men were assigned to the Second of the Sixth upon completion of Infantry AIT (Advanced Individual Training). Private Watts explained that the chain of command goes from the platoon leader to the squad leader to the men. "The platoon leader gives the orders to move or halt to the squad leaders and they in turn pass the orders on to the men in their squad and insure that the commands are obeyed promptly."

Concerning each individual's area of responsibility, Private Utitus said, "Each of us is assigned a section of fire by our squad leader. This consists of a fan of fire within which each man concentrates his fire and it is usually defined by existing terrain features. The section of fire for the entire squad is determined by the platoon leader."

Each man must be constantly aware of the safety rules involved in the live fire and of course that is one reason for the exercise. It is very important that the rifleman learns to maneuver safely with a loaded weapon.

Private Watts commented, "The most important things I was conscious of was staying on line with the other men in the squad so I did not fall behind or get ahead of them and to restrict my fire to my own section of fire."

"You have to remember that you are firing live ammunition and concentrate very closely on what you are doing at all times," added Private Utitus.

When asked to compare the attack in the exercise against what they felt a true attack would be like, Private Utitus replied, "I felt the terrain that would be used in a real attack would be vastly different from what was used here."

"If we were in the situation of conventional warfare, the simulated attack might be pretty close to the real thing. I don't feel the live fire added that much realism to the exercise, though," recalled Private Watts.

Both men said they felt the exercise was helpful in giving them the opportunities to familiarize themselves with the weapon under pressure situations and to learn to coordinate movements with other members of their squad and platoon.

The training the men receive while on their field training exercises may not always accomplish everything they should because every situation cannot be duplicated realistically. Also, terrain conditions and enemy actions cannot be accurately predicted.

It does, however, allow the men the opportunities to act and react under pressure and in conditions similar to those which would be encountered in the event of actual combat. To the man carrying the rifle, the several seconds in reaction time mean success or failure, or even greater, life or death.

Battalion Briefs

by Sp/5 Dan Fredrickson

Sergeant First Class James Bayless undertook a different set of vows early this week in an afternoon ceremony. Sergeant Bayless, the Headquarters Company Consolidated Mess Steward, was married in a ceremony at McNair Chapel.

Bravo Company reports a new morning report clerk in their midst this week in the name of Private First Class Gregory Malerich, a recent arrival into the Defender Battalion. Private First Class Floyd Myers wasted little time departing the Battalion following his re-enlistment last week. Already he is on a European tour of coastal countries.

Two members of Bravo Company are taking advantage of five-day administrative absence this week to attend a Catholic Retreat in Berchtesgaden, while Specialist Four Francis Cain received a pleasant surprise from home, as his wife just "dropped in" to see him for about a 12-month visit recently.

Promotions usually take place during morning formations in the Defender Battalion. But Captain George S. Viney offset the usual early this week by promoting three members of his company who couldn't be there. Specialists Four James Kersey, James Untch and Joseph Higuera all are taking part in Berlin Brigade guard details this week and Captain Viney promoted all three at the Compound Guard House.

The two newest arrivals in Headquarters Company are Sergeant Marion Askin and Private First Class Steven Stockard round out the box score.

Guard Duty Here - More Than Just A Game

by Sp/5 Dan Fredrickson

It's common knowledge in the Army that most soldiers can think of more exciting ways to spend their time than by pulling guard duty. Yet here in the Berlin Brigade, few realize just how important the job is.

Security is a prime consideration on any Army post, but in a city 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain, it takes on an added importance. Every precaution must be taken to protect buildings, men and equipment, and the checking of identification cards at the entrance to posts is more than what short-timers like to call a "game."

Because the Army barracks and facilities here in Berlin contain such crowd attractions as snack bars, post exchanges, movie theaters, service clubs, enlisted clubs and the like, a steady stream of people are constantly going in and out. Not all of them are associated with the Army, though. Some are guests, visitors or just the curious, and all of them have to be thoroughly checked before they are allowed entrance. Amenities are seldom denied a person once he passes the gate guard so security is of the utmost importance.

At the Berlin Brigade Headquarters

Compound is housed the Guard House where a constant team of soldier-sentries post guard shifts, securing all known entry points. This is a rotating responsibility of all the infantry battalions stationed at McNair Barracks.

The 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry began their turn at "Berlin Brigade Guard and Details" last week with Alpha Company drawing the first seven days. This week Bravo Company started their tour. Captain George S. Viney, the Bravo Company Commander, stated that it takes several soldiers to make up the guard roster for guard assignments at the Allied Kommandatura Building, the Allied Control Building, and the Brigade Compound.

"Our guards pay strict attention to both their general and special orders," says Captain Viney, "so they know exactly what is expected of them."

What must a soldier do before he goes on guard duty? Staff Sergeant George Werten, the Sergeant of the Bravo Guard contingent, explained that each guard has to be clean-shaven, have a neat haircut, clean web gear, polished shoes and a uniform that is pressed and fitting.

"The guards reflect the Battalion and the Brigade when they are on duty," explained Sergeant Werten. "That's one of the reasons why they look so good."

The guards also perform other duties, such as taking care of any emergencies that may arise, directing traffic on and off the Compounds and tend to the flags at dawn and sunset. But it's not so bad, as one trooper quipped: "Guard is much more important than we can imagine. Security can never be taken for granted, you have to maintain it and nobody knows that better than the solitary figure walking the post."

BAHS Annual Happening Carnival Time Approaches

by John Freeman

The Berlin American High School is already making plans for its annual "Spring Carnival," which will be held on Saturday, April 3, this year.

The carnival, sponsored by the high school's National Society, will take place in the school gymnasium and cafeteria from 11:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.

Each organization in the high school has a chance to operate several booths for its fund-raising schemes. Some of those most popular in the last few years have been the "garter toss" put on by the cheerleaders, and of course, the traditional cake walks. There should also be balloons and other toys for the kiddies.

If you drop in on the carnival with an empty stomach, look for the barbecue grill. That's where you can find charcoal broiled hamburgers that are guaranteed to be a meal in themselves. They will also be topped with a secret Polish sauce, specially prepared by Miss Mary Rekucki, the sponsor of the National Honor Society.

Co-sponsoring the carnival this year will be the Lettermen's Club, directed by Mr. George Pepoy. With both a scholastic and athletic group making preparations, it is hoped that more people will become involved in the project than ever before.

The purpose of this event is to provide a good time for all and to raise money at the same time. Proceeds will be put to good use through various school activities.

Bears Set Sights on European Championship

The biggest problem the Berlin Bears have faced this year is finding enough basketball games to play. Because of Berlin's isolated position, the Bears have had difficulty in scheduling games and as a consequence their play has suffered.

But last week Coach Bob Bishop's team found a way to ease the problem — winning.

After dropping their opening game in the USAREUR Northern Regional tournament, Berlin rolled off five straight wins to cop the tourney title and a berth in the USAREUR championships, which began yesterday in the Berlin Brigade Sports Center and run through Saturday.

"We gained maturity and finally jelled as a team," Bishop said in explaining the Bears' success at the regional tournament. "We've needed to play a lot of ballgames and it's hard to get games in Berlin.

"A team like Bamberg can travel to Zweibruecken for a game and then return home and play the same team again. We can't do that. A team has to take off at least three days to come to Berlin and play."

In winning the regional championship, the Bears partially solved the problem. In addition to gaining the experience of tournament play, they extended their season by one more weekend of play and also earned a shot at the European championship.

"Our coaches are pretty good," Bishop admitted, "although the competition will be very hard. There are six strong teams in this tournament."

Although the Berlin coach doesn't plan to make any changes for the tournament, he will be guarding against a mental letdown by his team.

"We were geared for the regional tourney and we went up there feeling that we had to win," Bishop explained. "We proved to ourselves that we can win but we'll have to make sure we don't let down now, especially in the first game."

Whatever the results of the tournament, Bishop's team has beaten the odds just by making it this far.

And if the Bears can avoid that mental letdown, the chances are good that they'll still be playing Saturday night when the 1971 USAREUR championship will be decided.

Tourney Enters Second Day

The 1971 USAREUR basketball championship opened yesterday at the winner taking on SETAF, the Southern Regional champion.

The Berlin Bears, champions of the USAREUR Northern Region, were to play the winner of the Third Infantry-V Corps game. Other first day action pitted Zweibruecken against the First Infantry, with the winner taking of SETAF, the Southern Regional champion.

Play continues in the double-elimination tournament today with games scheduled for 10 a.m., 1:30 p.m., 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. The semifinals will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. followed by the championship game at 8 p.m. If another game is necessary it will be played Sunday at 2 p.m.

Berlin will rely on a balanced scoring attack and the momentum picked up in the regional tournament in their bid for the championship.

Coach Bob Bishop will stick with his season-long starting lineup of Bill Benford, David Floyd, Dan Newman, Ralph Guyton and Greg Lake. Providing the bulk of the bench strength will be sixth man Gary Wernitz.

The medal is presented to persons proving their ability in five different categories of athletics. Persons must qualify in all five categories according to the standards set up for their age group.

The age groups and medals awarded are: 18-31 years, Bronze Medal; 32-39 years, Silver Medal; 40-45 years Gold Medal; and 46-over, Gold Medal.

The events in the competition include swimming, track and field and bicycle riding.

Anyone interested in further information should contact Sergeant Major Allen at 6445.

Water Patrol

The Armed Forces Recreation Center has issued an urgent request for volunteers for its Water Patrol. At least fifty applicants for aquatic safety training are needed. Those passing the testing will be attached to the rec areas in Garmisch, Berchtesgaden and Chiemsee for 180 days.

NCOIC of the Water Patrol, Sgt. Barre Tozloski, has extended the date for receipt of applications until April 20. The training and testing program begins May 1.

Applications should be mailed directly to: Commanding Officer, HQ AFRC, ATTN: Water Patrol, APO 09053, once they have been approved by the EM's immediate commanding officer.

AYA All-Stars Take Series

In AYA action last weekend, the Zweibruecken All-Stars came to the "Divided City" to match their skills with the Berlin AYA All-Stars and came out on the short end of the stick.

In the first game with the Junior Division All-Stars, Berlin came out shooting from the start and walloped Zweibruecken, 26-9. Sean McLean and Peter Chametzky supplied the scoring punch with nine points each while center Donald Phillips controlled the backboards in leading the Berliners to victory.

In the Senior All-Star game on Saturday, Randy Smith and Robert Chametzky combined for 38 points as Berlin defeated Zweibruecken, 53-37. Smith had 18 points and Chametzky popped in 20, 12 of them in the second half.

Big Third Quarter

In the third quarter the Berlin defense completely shut off Zweibruecken, outscoring them, 14-0. John Sadler was high for Zweibruecken with 20 points.

In Sunday's action, the Berlin Junior Division team again came out on top, this time by the score of 27-12. Berlin was never behind as they put up a tough defense and brilliant shooting in handing Zweibruecken its second straight defeat.

Peter Chametzky again led the attack with 11 points, followed by David Howley with six. Bobby Gregory had six points to pace the losers.

Avenge Loss

In Senior Division action, the Zweibruecken All-Stars got revenge for Saturday's loss as they stopped Berlin, 40-26. Gary Robinson had 10 points and Randy Smith added six for the home team but it was not nearly enough to offset the Zweibruecken attack.

Again the third quarter was the key period, but this time Zweibruecken outscored Berlin, 12-3, to walk off with the victory.

OBSERVER Sports

GETTING INTO THE SWING OF THINGS at the Berlin Golf and Country Club is Margaret Maloney, secretary at AG Special Services. The official opening of the club will be April 3, with a complete range of activities, such as tournaments and free golf clinics, planned. The Pro Shop also offers a complete line of all golf equipment.

Ladies' Fitness Club Shaping Up

A new Special Services Women's Physical Fitness Program, which was started January 4, is still going strong with participation running high.

The program runs five days a week with two one-hour classes daily at 8:30 a.m. and 9:45 a.m. designed to provide exercises that tone and strengthen muscles.

The program's director is Pete Ticconi, who is assisted by Norm Petelek. Pete and Norm are both knowledgeable in the field with degrees in Physical Education. Ticconi earned his Bachelor of Science degree at St. Lawrence University, while Petelek earned his at Southwest Missouri State.

Assisting Pete and Norm in class instruction are ladies from the class who have volunteered their services and have either a degree in Physical Education or have taught fitness classes in the past.

The program is specifically geared to the individual's level and is designed for physical fitness, not necessarily for weight reduction. The serious minded lady taking part can hope to tone muscles and to shift weight around.

Each class begins with ten exercises designed to tone and strengthen muscles. Then 25-30 minutes of the class are set aside to allow ladies to use the Sports Center facilities, which include: use of the health room and health equipment, weights, rowing machine and also the sauna. Ladies interested in weight reducing exercises can also find such exercises offered.

Participation so far has been high, but interested applicants may still join the classes. To join, report to the Sports Center at 8:30 a.m. or 9:45 a.m. prepared to exercise and your application will be accepted.

Double Exposure

Callister hold the same job as medics, they were both assigned to the Defender Medical Platoon in Headquarters Company. That brought confusion at first, for, as Platoon Sergeant Hezekiah Hines said, "They are as much different as peas in a pod." For one thing, Larry is married, while Terry is not. Larry is interested in becoming a barber, attending barber school before entering the Army. Terry has taken his medical training seriously and is considering attending medical school. Both spend much of their non-working hours together just as they did back home. That's one of the benefits, too, of having a twin brother—you have someone to talk to when there's nothing else to do. Being able to pool their financial resources on special occasions, or at the end of the month, or when special purchases call for it, is another benefit of being a twin.

But they also can list many disadvantages. Friends have trouble keeping track of whom they were talking to is their number one gripe. Arriving in Berlin in mid-January, neither had much opportunity to see much of the city before departing for the Major Training Area. But they both have attempted to rectify that situation since they've been back—by spreading the confusion to the civilian populace as well.

'London Now In Berlin' Foggy City Art Scene In Berlin

by Judy Pricks

Beginning today, London will dominate in Berlin for 10 days in a huge program entitled "London Now in Berlin." This is an attempt to show here what is happening on the London art scene NOW — not the days gone by of the "swinging London" with its Beatles and Carnaby Street.

The Academy of Arts, the exhibition halls around the Funkturm, the Deutschlandhalle and the movie theater "Arsenal" will be the main show places of "London now." One of the first events will take place in the exhibition halls tonight at 7.

Stuart Brisley will present together with four other people and the audience his "Surgical Minutes." He describes this as a mixture of sculpture, drama and "life as it happens."

Each event is different depending on the surroundings and the audience. It costs DM 6 to satisfy your curiosity as to what Brisley and his team really will do (from 26 to 31 March, at 7:00 p.m.).

If you can't make it to the "minutes," you can catch the "John Bull Puncture Repair Kit" at the same time and place from April 1-4. The "kit" is a performance group whose medium is free musical and thematic improvisation. This is their first performance on the continent. You also have to pay DM 6 to find out what's behind this event.

Space — out

For the admission fee of DM 6 for the above mentioned attractions you also get to look at the collection of pictures, sculptures, objects and prints of "S.P.A.C.E. Ltd." on display at the exhibition halls. "S.P.A.C.E." stands for Space Provision Cultural and Educational, but is nothing more than a "colony" of artists who, because they suffered an acute lack of space, got together and moved into an empty store house in the old London docks in the vicinity of the Tower.

After cleaning out one of the huge store houses from St. Catharine's dock, installing plumbing and lights, ideal studios had been created. For two years a group of artists worked here — as individuals with their own direction and ideas — and proved that this was a solution for the problems of space and the isolation of artists in big cities. City planning had limited their stay at the docks to two years, but their idea has been a help to many other artists and is continuing on in cities all over the world.

At the exhibition halls a representative cross section of the works originating from St. Catherine's dock is on display, together with numerous films and documents about "S.P.A.C.E." Opening hours are daily from March 27 to April 4 from 12 to 8:00 p.m. The art exhibition only costs DM 1.

At the Academy of Arts, the Pip Simmons Theater Group will present their musical satire "Superman." Not a text, but the comic strip is the basis for this mini-musical which combines movement, word and music to a unity resembling opera and dance. Pip Simmons shows his critical satire for the first time in Germany. The show is at 8:00 p.m. on March 27, 30 and 31 and at 4:00 p.m. this Sunday afternoon, March 28.

Earth probes

Mark Boyle has undertaken a "Journey to the Surface of the Earth," wherein he tries to capture the life on various sections of earth — usually about six feet square. He does this with his "earth probes," which are precise reproductions of various areas. On display at the Academy are pieces of the "London Series" which are so real that you think he just cut them out of the ground and "pasted" them on cardboard. His "probes" are already in the collection of the London Tate Gallery and the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

The display of the "London earth-probes" complete his show entitled "Requiem for an Unknown Citizen." Boyle subjects London, as a municipality which he comprehends as a biologic unity, to a precise analysis. With light, sound and film (he invented the liquid and chemical light show that traveled with Jimmy Hendrix) and with his unlimited fantasy as well as scientific accuracy, Boyle succeeds in gaining an exciting spectacle from everyday experience, which he calls "my earth-air-fire-and-water-music."

You can experience this at 11:00 p.m. at the Academy tonight, tomorrow night and on March 31, or at 8:00 p.m. this Sunday and April 3 and 4.

Moving Being

"Moving Being" had already a successful guest appearance at the Academy in 1969 and is returning with two new works, "Package Deal" and "Condor." "Moving Being," whose choreographer is Geoff Moore, achieves a highly individual total theater, incorporating pure movement, light, projection, speech and tapes and sound and music. It can be seen at 8:00 p.m. on April 1 and 2 and at 11:00 p.m. on April 3.

All the performance at the studio of the Academy of Arts cost DM 6 and 8 to attend.

Also part of "London Now" are two big pop concerts at the Deutsch-landhalle. Tomorrow, a mammoth music program from 7:00 p.m. to midnight will fill the huge hall with fans. Scheduled are "Man," "Yes," "Family" and "Soft Machine." It costs DM 10 to be there. Seats are not numbered.

The second event will take place next Saturday, April 4, also beginning at 7:00 p.m. "Colosseum" and "Deep Purple" will be heard at the Deutschlandhalle. This time it costs DM 12 to be there.

Last but not least on the program for these 10 days is a long list of English films that will be shown in the "Arsenal" movie theater (on Welsersstrasse off Lietzenburger Strasse). From tonight until April 4, three different films will be shown each night (at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m.), in the original English version.

The scope ranges from experimental and underground films, to the oldies but goodies and also includes some films produced for the movie as such, but which often didn't make it outside of England. Call the Arsenal (246843) if you can't find a detailed listing of the movies to be shown.

If that doesn't keep you busy or nothing of the huge selection interests you, here are a couple of other suggestions.

An international dog show will be held in an exhibition hall at the Funkturm (follow the crowd) this weekend, March 27 and 28, from 2:00 to 6:00 p.m. on Saturday, and 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Sunday. Dog lovers will find an unlimited variety of man's best friends on display.

Something to note for Easter. The Boston Symphony Orchestra is coming to Berlin on April 10 and 11. Conducted by William Steinberg, they will present a Beethoven evening on April 10 with the Symphonies No. 3 and 5. On April 11, the "Meistersinger" overture by Wagner, the Boston Symphony by Hindemith, Five Bagatelles by Schuller and the Symphony No. 2 by Brahms will make up the program. Don't delay your ticket purchase if you want to hear the "BSO" in the Berlin Philharmonie.
