Use Your Head and Make Money — Join Army Suggestion Program

Are you cost conscious? Do you wish to save the Army money? Do you want to make money for yourself?

If your answer to those three questions is "Yes," you are in luck! The Directorate of the Army announced an Army-wide suggestion program promotional campaign to be known as "Cost Consciousness and Participation in the Army Suggestion Program," to run from January through March 1971.

The Berlin Brigade's highest cash award in the present fiscal year is $250. We hope to make many more substantial awards before the end of FY 71. To do so we need your suggestions on how to:

- Save mambous in offices, workshops, work areas, and stores
- Cut costs of materials
- Reduce vehicle or equipment operating time
- Reduce maintenance costs of equipment or buildings by improved methods

You may be the one who based on what you save the Army. The more you save, the higher your award will be!

You need help or advice with your suggestion? Have the choice of an Incentive Awards Administrator, Civilian Personnel Division, or a Suggestion Coordinator, or your Supervisor. Suggestors are welcome to visit the Incentive Awards Section at any time, or to phone them at 6443.

At the Commander-in-Chief's Seventh Command Incentive Award Ceremony, held in October 1970, General Polk mentioned five specific suggestions subjects to which special attention would be given during fiscal year 1971. These subjects are summarized below:

- Improvement of soldier morale and of command-soldier communications
- Community relations and relations with host governments
- Supply administration, supply economy, and the structure of logistic organizations
- Effective use and management of local national employees
- More effective maintenance of USAERB buildings, roads, grounds, and other facilities

The improvement of the environment, including reduction of air and water pollution, has been identified as a sixth subject.

The USAERB campaign is endorsed by the U.S. Commander of Berlin and the Commanding General, Berlin Brigade. Each endorsement stresses the importance of the need to reduce operating costs, and calls upon us to give the Suggestion Program our full support.

Army Nurse Corps' 70th Anniversary

Last Tuesday marked the 70th Anniversary of the Army Nurse Corps, founded in 1916 to serve the men and women who make up the armed forces of the United States.

Lieutenant Colonel Elizabeth Campbell, chief nurse, United States Army Medical Hospital, Berlin, told of the men and women who make up the nursing staff at the hospital. "They are an excellent staff with much varied experiences. I doubt that anything could happen here which could not be properly handled."

Although there was no official celebration of the event, several of the men and female nurses at the hospital commented on the Army Nurse Corps anniversary. Below are some of their comments, representative of the Army nurses in Berlin.

Captain Beverly Althoff, a former Air Force nurse, is a graduate of the Maternity Hospital School of Nursing in latrobe, Pennsylvania, and is "enjoying the fullest" of her stay in Berlin. Captain Althoff hopes to do quite a bit more traveling while in the Army.

Captain Linda Salmon has had Army assignments at Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver and at Wilkes and Cho Lee hospital in the Republic of Vietnam. She plans to stay in Berlin long enough to experience the Army and "go to Colorado and colorado" where she wants to ski and study for a degree in nursing.

One of the two male nurses assigned to Berlin is Captain Michael Sexton, a nurse-anesthetist graduate of the Bellevue Miles School of Nursing in New York City. Captain Sexton has been working as a nurse in the Army and "hop to Colorado and Colorado" where he wants to ski and study for a degree in nursing.

The American Nurses Association seeks to enlarge the influence of the nurses who does not work in an acute illness field. He is, rather, an Army health nurse, and acts as liaison between the medical and the Army's American Medical Association. Captain Kosters is part of the time establishing and organizing clinical care, as he puts it, "the promotion of health and the prevention of illness."

Captain Norma Jean McCrae, who is one of the Army nurses in Berlin, says she has "enjoyed Army nursing" and believes it is "great for single young nurses."

First Lieutenant Linda Bottcher, a graduate of the Grad School of Nursing in Atlanta hopes to do a bit of travelling while in the Army. Prior to entering the Army in January 1971, Lieutenant Bottcher was a clinical nurse for the Maryland Institute of Technology.

New Voices On-the-Air At ABN-Berlin, Tubberville, Tooma, Bodi

If you spend a lot of time listening to U.S. Armed Forces radio stations, you may have noticed that ABN-Berlin has recently added two new personalities to its lineup. Staff Sergeant Ray Tubberville and Specialist Ed Tooma have begun spinning records for the ABN-Berlin branch of the American Forces Network Europe.

As is the case with most AFN disc jockeys, both of the station's new hosts still have a good deal of everyday civilian experience as professional radio announcers. They've also had unusual and interesting military careers.

Ray spent most of the early sixties in the U.S. military, including two tours of duty in Berlin. His first trip to the divided city happened in 1961 while he was stationed in Mannheim with the 1st Battle Group, 10th Infantry. That was the year the city's Wall of Shame was gone and the 1st Battle Group was called to Berlin on alert status. Ray showed up here again in 1964, this time for regular active duty assignment.

In 1968, Ray decided to return to civilian life and a new career in radio broadcasting. After visiting his family in Hot Springs, Arkansas, he landed a job with KSWF radio station in Santa Paula, California. After a time there, Ray decided he'd like to be back in Berlin, resettled and assigned to ABN-Berlin.

Ray keeps busy at AFN, doing several shows, including the midnight request show "Frolic"—which runs from 2:00 to 3:00 daily. Most interesting, then, to Ray, has been a relationship with his station's news director who doesn't understand why a request radio show doesn't play any Beatles requests.

Ed Tooma has been around in the radio industry, as well. He started his career doing record hops in an American Forces Radio station in the Berlin area. In 1945, he was assigned to the 2nd Battalion, 4th Infantry, in Berlin. After the war, Ed signed on at the American Forces Radio Station in Berlin, where he worked until 1967. He then went on to work for the Air Force Radio Station in Bonn, Germany, before returning to Berlin in 1975.

The Guardian's Operations Clerk: 'Always Knows What's Going On'

The function of the 9-5 is to assist the Senior Sergeant Staff Sergeant Col. Charles Finch, the 2nd Battalion, 4th Infantry "to keep the battalion in constant readiness for all operations of this battalion. All operations will be under my control."

When asked, "What do you do?" the reply was, "We inspect the units to insure that the individual soldier is aware of the best training possible. The training should keep them fit, ready, and skilled for the next battle and ready for combat at any time. We also give direct instruction in training for the Battalion, such as armament and Red Cross."

"When we are in the field, under simulated combat conditions, we put out a complete set of field orders, going from Communications, Motor, and Recon to the training command and then to our direct operation control. We set up and, in fact, become the Battalion's C.F.P. (Command Post)."

"All of this involves a great deal of coordination. We don't dispense information to higher, lower, and adjacent units. To get information all the way down to the individual soldier requires an enormous amount of paperwork."

"For me, Specialist Ed Tooma, our Communications Officer, is key. He has an excellent support with all of them. He can get the information to the vehicle commander and begins to put all the paperwork together, and then continues, from the Battalion staff, to the field."

"I also go in the morning and distribute them," added Specialist Four George Linder. "I'm the man who keeps the Battalion in constant state of combat readiness to meet any potential threat to the political and moral integrity of a free world, in general, and the United States in particular."

At one time or another we are all faced with bills. Sometimes they may seem more intractable than they really are. The question then is: What course of action may a debtor take to avoid himself of in order to liquidate his bills, or at least eliminate the pressure of creditors in waiting?

One course of action is to pay the bills. This is not always as easy as it may sound, and in most cases just not feasible without help. Other means include working overtime, selling property, or seeking the help of a credit counselor. Whatever the choice, the debtor must be aware of the options available to him. By taking these steps, the debtor can gain better control over his finances and, in turn, improve his credit standing.

At another time, the debtor may wish to consider bankruptcy. Bankruptcy is a legal process that provides a way for individuals and businesses to get some relief from creditors. By working with a bankruptcy attorney, the debtor can learn about the options available to him and make an informed decision about how to proceed.

The function of a debt-adjusting agency is to help financially distressed debtors to settle their obligations. This is done by modifying the indebtedness through services of an intermediary known as a debt adjuster or credit counselor who can negotiate with creditors on behalf of the debtor in order to secure a reduction in the amount of money owed or a change in the terms of payment.
