Berlin Units Make Volksfest a Big Success

GETTING INTO THE ACT — Even the children of the Hawaiian performers got into the act, usually providing the lightest moments of the entertainment at the 12th German-American Volksfest which ended here Sunday evening. Also shown in the picture are the two Volksfest Queens, Gaby Uhlig, the German queen on the left, and Teresa Shoemaker, the American queen, on the right. (Photo by SP5 William Satterwhite)

The 12th German-American Volksfest ended Sunday night with a spectacular Hoolaulea (Hawaiian Festival of Fire) featuring the guest appearance of Pele, the ancient Hawaiian fire goddess. The ceremony featured fire, music and dance performed by the large Hawaiian cast.

Food Aplenty

Approximately 350,000 to 400,000 attended this year's Volksfest, a rather good turnout compared with past years and considering the several days of bad weather.

Those several hundreds of thousands did one heck of a lot of eating and drinking. Here are the stats:

- Ice cream — 83,000 half pints
  - Hamburgers — 100,000
  - Corn on the cob — 60,000 pieces
  - American beer — 200,000 liters
- Plus plenty of popcorn, tacos, German beer, Coke, etc., etc.

Cooperation Plus

As always, the full cooperation of Berlin Brigade helped make this Volksfest as successful as it was. Here is a unit-by-unit rundown of who did what.

- 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry and Tempelhof Central Airport ladies and other civilians: T-shirts, straw hats, leis
- AYA: T-shirts
- John F. Kennedy School, Battery C, 94th Field Artillery: pop corn stand
- Det. A: hamburger stand
- Special Troops: hamburger stand
- NCO Club: taco stand
- Officers' Club: barbecue stand
- Field Station: American beer stand

- 2nd Battalion, 6th Infantry: corn-on-the-cob stand
- AFN Berlin: music booth
- Company F, 40th Armor: ice cream stand
- US Army Hospital, Berlin: ice cream stand
- Protocol Office: VIP Lounge
- US Army Hospital and German Red Cross: First Aid Station

- 287th Military Police Company: patrols, security and safety

- Berlin American High School Boosters Club: cleanup each evening and morning. Also, construction of many palm trees

Master Sergeant Hilmar H. Kullek, Volksfest NCO, said that all the units did an outstanding job and wishes to thank everyone for their help. He said that the dismantling of the Volksfest will be completed within a week or so.

Vanguard's Role

Special mention should be made of 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry, which not only worked on its various booths and concessions but also provided general support, details and miscellaneous work. The Vanguards are helping in the dismantling.

The Vanguards also accompanied Berlin orphans on three days in which they spent a day at the Volksfest. As Specialist Four Jon Walbrun, correspondent for 4/18 said: "Smiling orphans somehow seem to make all the time and trouble worthwhile."

Vanguards were also in the rock group Haze II and the Country and Western group Western Sounds. For more on Volksfest sounds, see John Hinds' column below.

Review of Volksfest Music

Welcome back! After a three week "vacation" in which I helped run the Volksfest press office, here I am again, happy to be given the opportunity to present news and views on the world of music. Most of my writing in this space prior to the Volksfest was about rock music and I have had a number of people come up to me and ask me about writing columns on other types of music.

To be honest with the reader, I am most familiar with rock music and I also feel that the junior enlisted men and draftees, at whom I aim my column, spend more time and money on rock music than any other type. Due to these conditions, I write about rock music. However, in the future I will also be writing columns on other types of music if I hear an album or see a concert that I feel deserves mention.

To get on with the matter at hand this week, I would like to tell you about the entertainment at the recent Volksfest. To begin with, the Volksfest had more rock, folk and soul groups than ever before and also more rock, folk and soul groups than any other type music.

Haze II

Although most of the groups were from outside of Berlin, there were some fantastic performers that are stationed right here. The one group that impressed me the most was Haze II. Bill Harrigill from Ohio plays bass, Rod Voyles a versatile performer on keyboards from Illinois, Greg Klusendorf from Wisconsin on drums, Harold "Smitty" Smith on lead guitar from Long Island, and Jon Walbrun from Wisconsin sings lead. The group is an off-shoot of the original Haze, who finished second in the Special Services Showband contest last fall; Voyles, Smith, and Klusendorf were all members of the Haze. Harrigill and Walbrun joined the group about three weeks prior to the Volksfest.

Diversified Sound in Future

Although the group was limited to 11 shows during the Volksfest, only two of which were on the giant outdoor or indoor stage, they really showed their musical abilities on numbers by the James Gang, Grand Funk, and the Rolling Stones. The group classifies their music as "hard rock" for the time being. But it hopes to reorganize after the Volksfest and restructure their sound featuring songs that they have written themselves and by adding new members to the group rid themselves of the strictly "hard rock" label, moving into a more diversified sound.

After listening to the group at nearly every one of their shows during the Volksfest, it isn't hard to understand just why they have high hopes of taking European outs and trying to make a name for themselves in the music world.

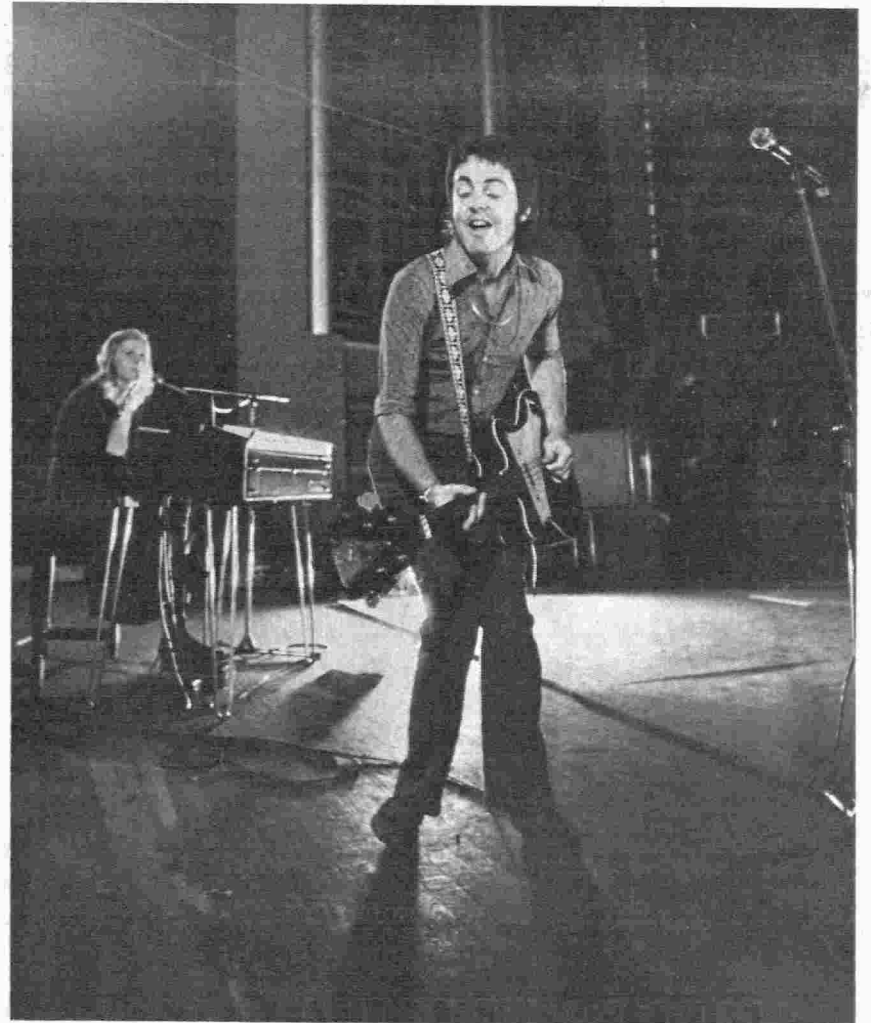

Berlin wasn't the only area that was represented in the entertainment at the Volksfest. If groups like Rock Creek and East Village Band, both from West Germany, are any indication of what the talent is like down there, there are some tremendous performers in the Army in Europe.

Rock Creek

Rock Creek showed more diversification than any of the other groups at the fest, in the fact that their numbers ranged in scope from Johnny B. Goode to Color My World. I was most impressed by John Smith, the lead guitar player for the group, and Voyles, who played organ and piano for the group.

The East Village Band

The East Village Band, whose members are based in the Knieling area of Germany, was made up of Tom Saunders, one of the most talented guitar players that I have ever had the pleasure of listening to and watching, Rick Todd also a very talented guitarist, and their two lovely and charming singers, Anne Gordan and Jeanette McCloud. I was really impressed with their work on "Purple Haze," a Jimi Hendrix number, and the Arlo Guthrie song "Comin' Into Los Angeles." For those of you who have heard about or were present for the closing night at the Volksfest and in particular the final show for the East Village Band, the memory will linger forever of the group, joined by about 20 or 30 other kids on the stage of the American Beer Tent, singing "All We Are Saying Is Give Peace a Chance." To me that number, the way that the group played it, and the way that they were joined by members of other bands and members of the audience in a total oneness that transcended the earthly presence and their being in the Army, really meant a lot in telling the people who saw it and heard it, just where the band and their friends stand.

One could hardly leave a story about the entertainment at the Volksfest without making mention of the two outstanding folk groups, Gillium and Bauer, who sounded exactly like Neil Young and Steven Stills, and Orpheus, who are all stationed in Berlin and once more proved that their really are some fine singers and musicians right here in our fair city.

Soul Music

Last but not least was the excellent soul music provided by bands like the Ghettoes, We People and the Sensations. I can honestly say that these groups drew a larger audience to the Beat Club than any of the rock groups that I have previously mentioned. It has been a long time since I have seen a good soul group in a live performance and certainly the aforementioned groups filled that long empty space. I would like to offer my congratulations to the members of the various soul bands that performed on the Volksfest grounds and wish them the best in the future.

First Class Entertainment

All in all when you boil it down, the entertainment was first class at the Volksfest this year and a great deal of credit should be given to all of the people who played, sang, scheduled groups, handled equipment, put on the light show, or any one of a million and one other things that made it all possible.

Issues To Vote On

With the passage of the 26th Amendment to the Constitution, everyone of draft age (18 and over) can now vote. We can all now have a direct say in who will be running the government and calling the shots the next four years.

Several young people have already taken advantage of the amendment last November when two 19-year-olds were elected mayors, an 18-year-old was selected to a school board and others under 21 were elected to city council seats. New voters played significant roles in a number of other elections involving older candidates, the most important of which is this year's Democratic Presidential candidate.

In short, given this new influence and power, all of you young new voters should utilize it to the utmost this year. Sitting back and griping about conditions the government is responsible for won't do. Becoming informed about the issues and voting is a must.

This year, there are many issues we must face and make decisions on. Here are a few:

- Law and Order — What should be done to fight crime? Are the police having their hands tied or should they be restrained more? Do the Federal courts and judges have too much power? Is wire-tapping a legitimate means of fighting crime?
  - Pollution — What should government do to clean up the dirty streams and air? Should government be in the business of population control?
  - Foreign Policy — How much should the U. S. commit itself to defend other countries? How should we disengage from Southeast Asia?
  - Defense — Can we depend upon treaties and agreements to safeguard America? How strong should the military be? Is an all-volunteer force really desirable?
  - Economy — Should the government regulate and control big business and the economy? If so, how? What of the power of unions, pressure groups, etc.?
- So much for specific issues. In general, there are several philosophies of what kind of government we should have that are being contested, if you include all the minor party candidates. What is the general purpose and scope proper of government? Is it servant or master? Defender or provider? Uncle Sam or Big Brother? Vote accordingly this November and see your voting officer soon for full details on how to make your decision heard via the ballot box.

Going to the Dogs?

Well, man's best friend has done it again and we've been asked to remind you dog owners of your social and ecological responsibility for where Rover does his duty. Make sure he does it in a safe place, not the middle of a football or softball field where Junior plays and treads the shtick home with him to shock his mother who just finished cleaning the white plush carpeting. Like, it could be your carpet, too. So, curb your dog or the equivalent, please.

Smoking Irritates

Non-Smokers Have Rights

by Charles Wood

You've gotten mad when people threw trash on your base and you complained loudly enough about polluted air.

Your concern about the environment would really impress me . . . if you would only stop blowing cigarette smoke in my face.

I don't mind if others smoke cigarettes, it's certainly a personal choice. But many cigarette smokers are indifferent to the rights of non-smokers. Because their senses are drugged by the smell of burnt tobacco, the taste of nicotine and the haze of white-colored smoke, smokers don't realize their "environment" is any different from anyone else's. The chain-smoker lives in a perpetual smog inversion layer; even his food tastes different to him than to the non-smoker because of his addiction to nicotine.

Why NOT Smoke

Most non-smokers are non-smokers for a reason. Clean lungs, clean air, clean breath, clean ashtrays, clean ground. Clean ground? A couple of years ago, I was put on a work detail to clean up a parking lot. There must have been 10,000 cigarette butts, plain and filtered, king-sized and super king-sized, menthol and regular strewn over the pavement by shoppers whose natural instinct is to throw a cigarette butt on the ground when they finish smoking it. Never, by the time I picked up the last butt, had one silly millimeter made my back ache so badly. Had I smoked then, I surely would have quit.

Scientists recently reported that the lungs of non-smokers can be damaged by the air in a room where someone else is smoking. It's sad to see a guy trying to kick the habit sit nervous and pale at his desk while his secretary keeps blowing her smoke into his breathing space. It's not much different from spreading a contractable disease back to a guy who has recently recuperated from it.

What To Do

It's not my suggestion that those who enjoy smoking quit. I just think they should consider the environment they share with thousands who think smoking is the vilest habit going. I do suggest a few tips to help smokers improve that environment. (1) If you inhale the smoke, do not exhale for at least 15 seconds. That way, your blood will absorb all the harmful particles so they can't be passed on to others. If you must exhale, do it in a well-ventilated area. (2) Don't throw your cigarette butts on the ground. They are made of paper and cellulose and are no more biodegradable than a '55 Cadillac. Some poor guy is going to have to pick them up eventually. If you have no other place to stash them, at least put them into your pocket until you get home. Just having to buy the damn things burns a hole in your pocket anyhow.

As a non-smoker, I'm not just pleading for minority rights. In my office, non-smokers outnumber smokers 15 to 10. I just want to clear the air about the ecology issue. If everyone would keep the few cubic feet of air immediately around him clean, it sure would help.

News Notes

NEW FINANCE POLICY

A new JUMPS-ARMY system which guarantees deposits to financial organizations has raised some questions.

The finance center at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., has notified financial organizations with JUMPS-ARMY paychecks depositors that they may have a composite check with a list of these depositors mailed directly to them from Ft. Benjamin Harrison.

Banks and other organizations taking advantage of this are being told that they don't have to send individual deposit slips to those soldiers on the list for the composite check. Instead, the name and address of the financial institution, the account number of the depositor, and the words "GUARANTEED DEPOSIT" will appear in the remarks section of the soldier's Leave and Earnings Statement (LES). This means that the LES is in effect the soldier's deposit slip. If his LES has this in the remarks section, it is more than ever an important personal record. So if a soldier fails to get deposit slips he should check his LES closely before writing his bank if it is participating in this program.

MOS Tests

HEIDELBERG — USAREUR officials caution that personnel with more than 24 months' service are not eligible for promotion if they do not take their annual MOS evaluation test. Tests are being administered this month for some MOS's.

DA Circular 611-94 lists MOS's to be tested in August. MOS testing is staggered over the year, with approximately one fourth of eligible Army personnel tested every three months.

Officials said the popular name of the MOS test, "pro-pay test," has led to the misconception that only retention of pro-pay is dependent on test results. In fact, they said, promotion and retention of primary MOS also hinge on successful completion of the annual test, as does eligibility to reenlist.

Personnel with less than 24 months' service are not eligible to take the test, but the careers of soldiers with longer service are directly dependent on successful completion annually.

B. U. Courses

Boston University, in cooperation with the General Education Development Agency and USDESEA, is offering course work leading to a Masters Degree in Secondary Education, Business Administration, Counseling and International Relations in the fall semester beginning September 12 in Berlin.

The programs are designed to aid in the advancement of careers in government service as well as for those who wish to pursue graduate study in anticipation of retirement, discharge or a second career. Veterans and military personnel qualify for benefits under the GI Bill.

Applications are available at the

B. U. office in Berlin. For further information, call the B.U. office at 3179.

U. Md. Courses

The University of Maryland will be starting its fall term September 4. The classes will run two nights a week for eight weeks. Registration begins August 21 through September 1. Classes cost $25 per semester hour or $75 for a three-hour course. Tuition assistance, available to all military personnel, pays $56.25.

Registration forms and information may be obtained at the education centers at Andrews, McNair, and in Building 4, Berlin Brigade.

New courses being offered this term include Sociology 423: Ethnic Minorities, and History 217: Survey of Afro-American History. Several levels of German will be available, as well as English composition and literature. Especially interesting this term is the noontime German. It will be taught Monday through Friday, noon-1 p.m. in the language lab at Berlin Brigade.

Accounting and business law are open for instruction. Anthropology is being offered for a second time after its success last term, along with the new courses in geology, personality, and public speaking.

Many students are not aware that they may obtain a college degree from University of Maryland during their tour of duty here. Full time counselors are available at the education centers and University of Maryland office in BBde. These trained personnel will help you schedule your classes and plan your educational goals.

Sound . . .

a scene familiar to all of you that have been in Berlin for a while now, the live concerts at the Deutschlandhalle are about to begin again. Paul McCartney and his group Wings, consisting of his wife Linda, Denny Laine, Danny Seiwell, and Henry McCulloch, will be appearing live in concert at the Deutschlandhalle, on Thursday, August 24 at 8 p.m.

McCartney of course is known for his work with the Beatles and for those of you who have longed to see a member of the Beatles in concert, here is your chance. The group has two albums out and a single that is skyrocketing its way to the top of the rock charts back in the states. The single is "Mary Had A Little Lamb." The summer of 1972 has seen the group put on a tour of Europe that has included stops in Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Norway and Germany. Their music offers a change of pace from the driving hard rock that we have been entertained with lately. Don't forget this coming Thursday night at the Deutschlandhalle.

Until next week, Peace and Power to the People.

Louie the Egg Man...

SCENE I.

The early morning mist is gradually being fried away from a valley somewhere in Germany. It's a lazy Saturday morning, the ravages of war seeming far away. Very far away is a squad patrol from Bravo Company, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, hidden in the underbrush next to a road. These daring men were working behind enemy lines blowing up bridges, cutting communication lines and generally causing trouble for the enemy. Their faces show signs of fatigue from cold, sleepless nights and the lack of food. They were ready to return to their own lines and are waiting to contact their contact who will get them back.

SCENE II.

A truck comes rattling down the road. In the truck is Louie (Captain John McLaughlin Jr., CO, B-3/6), the French egg man (director's note — what's a French egg man doing in Bavaria anyway?), whistling that age-old egg man tune. Louie isn't an ordinary egg man, however; he also sells milk, butter and cheap wine and is a member of the "underground."

Although the French underground in Bavaria was a somewhat limited organization, the British got word to them about the squad and arrangements were made. Louie is quickly averted from his thoughts now, as he spots a man ahead frantically waving at him to stop.

SCENE III.

Normally, Louie wouldn't have stopped, because he had already sold his eggs, butter, milk and cheap wine to the Foodland store a few miles back down the road. However, since the man was wearing an American steel helmet and fatigues and had an American rifle, he figures it could be the squad leader.

The stranger comes up and says in flawless English "I hear they have cold beer at Hans." It was the prearranged sign. Louie answers, "Oui, but not as cold as it was last night." After a hearty hug and kiss on both cheeks, the sergeant flashes his men the OK.

SCENE IV.

Louie is telling the Defenders how they will get through the enemy lines. "You will get under the tarp in back of my truck. There is only one dangerous place along the way — a bridge very close to your lines that is always guarded. I will distract the guards with some dirty pictures and two of you can jump them from behind. After that, all is clear."

The man jumps in the truck and under the tarp. Louie tucks them in and the daring escape begins.

SCENE V.

They are now at the guarded bridge. Louie jumps out of the truck and the English subtitles will tell us that he says, "Hello, my friends!" Hugging and kissing cheeks takes place. "May I cross your bridge?" asks Louie. The guard then asks "Do you have a pass?" Louie replies, "No, but let me show you something better!"

At this time, Louie pulls out pages he's torn from the ladies' lingerie section of a Sears catalogue. Having been alone guarding the bridge for the last 1 1/2 years, the guards think the pictures pretty exciting and never notice the two GIs coming from behind.

They easily wipe out the two guards and Louie takes care of the other one by pistol-whipping him and throwing him off the bridge. Everyone jumps back on the truck and they flee to American lines.

International Work Camp Is Site For Cooperation for GIs, Youth

by Guy Pitzer

This particular reporter received a challenge last week that is unlike any other. The place: the International Work Camp on Schwanenwerder (Swan Island). The scene: 80 young people from five countries renovating the camp grounds with help from the Yanks, British, and French. Mission: Get a story.

After our arrival (a photographer accompanied), we were warmly greeted by Herr Braunsdorf, the proprietor of the camp who turned us over to Katrina Menzel and Christian Reiche, the camp leaders, who were most informative.

Five Nations Involved

The International Work Camp, owned and operated by the district of Tempelhof, has supplied young people with fun-filled weeks for the past nine summers. Each year, people 16-20 years old from Tempelhof's sister districts in Norway, West Germany, Israel, England and Holland visit as guests of Tempelhof.

This year, the camp's schedule of activities was altered a bit to include the restoration and improvement of the grounds. The visiting guests readily agreed to the new plan and help was soon obtained from the three Allied Forces. The three forces agreed to transport the needed clay and sand from the Wannsee dump for the young workers to use in their clean-up escapades.

Brush was cut down and space was cleared for table tennis. The grounds were cleared of broken glass and debris. The beach was cleaned and a new coat of sand greets the waves lapping on the shore.

Fun On Top Of Work

There was time for fun too. After the daily work periods, camp activities included beach parties, sightseeing, bowling contests, trips to the Volksfest and discussions ranging from politics to movies. The camp offered an opportunity for the exchange of ideas and viewpoints by the young people from their respective countries.

Observing the young people together at work and play, realizing the unique ability they possessed in forgetting their cultural and political differences and accepting one another as human beings, I was forced to realize another point.

A Message?

If the young people of today can create an atmosphere free of hate and distrust, when living and working together, then why can't the adults who act as leaders?

The only consolation remains in the fact that in the not too distant future, these young people might someday be, to borrow a much used phrase, "the light at the end of the tunnel." The International Work Camp certainly plays an integral role in giving people from diverse cultures, the opportunity to meet and exchange friendships.

Looking for a good place to eat? There's a little place off Huttenweg called "Wilbur's Place" that serves some very fine food. Those at Company F, 40th Armor know Wilbur's Place because it's their mess hall and for the second consecutive quarter it has been chosen as the Berlin Brigade Best Dining Facility.

A relatively new award, the Best Dining Facility is determined by an inspection of the dining facilities once each month of the quarter. The messes are graded upon food preparation, serving, over-all mess operation and troop satisfaction. As far as troop satisfaction, the mess speaks for itself. It is authorized to feed 115 people and the daily headcount averages out to 115.

Upon entering Wilbur's Place, one gets the feeling that he's entering a restaurant, not a mess hall. According to Staff Sergeant Wilbur (hence the name, Wilbur's Place) T. Long, "it's still not as good as I want it to be."

For being named as the Best Dining Facility, Company F now holds the rotating trophy, which they may keep for several quarters to come unless another mess hall puts in a great deal of work to take it away from them. The cooks received letters of commendation from Brigadier General Raymond O. Miller, commanding general, Berlin Brigade, and Lieutenant Colonel Richard E. Buchalter, commanding officer, Third Battalion, Sixth Infantry.

Wilbur's Place isn't only the best dining facility in Berlin, but was also declared the third best dining facility in USAREUR, 1971. No matter how you look at it, Wilbur's place is a good place to eat.

HAROLD BUCK TRIES HIS LUCK at the plate against H&S, FSB in action last week at Andrews. "Buck," as he is known around the league, did not reach base on this try and with his Detachment A team managing just one big rally against pitcher Bob Gilbert, they were defeated by a 16-10 score. That is the game that H&S pulled off a season's first by hitting back-to-back-to-back home runs. (Photo by Russ Richall)

H&S Rolling as Race Goes to the Wire

by Den McAuliffe

Bob Gilbert is certainly not suffering from an overdose of euphoria. But he has every reason to smile. And he has been. All week. Or at least since last Saturday.

Gilbert is smiling, because his softball team, the FSB HQ and Service Company, is rolling to a dynamite seasonal finish.

HQ and Service Company is still in first place in Division B, one game in front of second-place Co. A and Co. B, both of the Field Station. What is more, however, is the fact that last Saturday HQ and Service Company protected its lead from an old nemesis, 592nd Signal Company.

"We haven't beaten them in two years," said Gilbert. "The last time was in August 1970. We had our guns out this time for a little revenge."

And Gilbert got it, 4-1, on Saturday. "We were really up for it," he said. "I guess in the beginning I was a little worried about Kenny Meadows, who was pitching. He started out tight. Really tight. But he was just nervous. He really wanted this one."

When Meadows settled down, he retired nine in a row. "He threw the best pitch I've seen all year," Gilbert said. "It was in the 7th inning and Howard from Signal Co. was up. Kenny had two strikes on him. He threw one a little to the inside and Howard thought it was going to hit him. So he started to move back. And the pitch curved right over the plate. Beautiful."

Mike Nowicki scored on a single by Pat Donahue in the first inning. Then came the fourth.

Jack Grimes knocked Jim Smith home with a single and Tim Miller moved Grimes to second with a bunt single. Then, as Mike Maupin struck out, the game turned around.

Grimes began to move off base and the Signal catcher tried to pick him off. Nothing wrong with that, except that the throw landed somewhere in right field and Grimes scored.

Miller came in later on a single by Meadows and Gilbert had the win he wanted.

"It did wonders for our morale," said Gilbert. "We're going to be pretty hard to beat, I think."

Detachment A discovered that fact Monday, when it lost to HQ and Service, 16-10. And for anyone questioning the morale of Gilbert's team, the fourth inning again offered an answer.

For the first time all season — not only for HQ and Service, but for the entire league, according to Gilbert — there were back-to-back-to-back home runs. Pete Scalise knocked one over the right field fence. Then Jim Smith hit the first pitch to left-center.

"A towering shot," said Gilbert, smiling, "it must have gone a mile high." And then Mike Maupin did the exact same thing.

Maupin's shot was also off the first pitch and into left-center field.

But whether Gilbert will continue to smile next week depends on the two other FSB teams; companies A and B. All three Field Station teams are having their show-downs this week.

HQ and Service Co. was to play Co. A Wednesday, and Co. A and Co. B were to play yesterday. The grand finale will come Monday, with Co. B meeting HQ and Service.

Meanwhile, Co. B, FSB, protected its second-place tie with Co. A by beating Detachment A, 7-4, Tuesday. The team — with Rick Staiger pitching — was rather cold until the bottom of the 6th inning. B Company then scored its last four runs.

"Somebody has got to be the winner by Monday," said Gilbert. "At any rate, by Monday we'll know who's in the playoffs."

So if you see Gilbert smiling Monday . . .

Reservations are being made on a first come-first serve basis. Cost per person is two dollars a night, two nights maximum.

Free daily train transportation to and from Eastman Barracks will be provided for USAREUR unaccompanied active duty military personnel.

Personnel who are not interested in free rail transportation and wish only billets at Eastman Barracks must make reservations at 2537-760 or 879.

Personnel who wish to avail themselves of the rail service to Eastman Barracks, or of the rail service in conjunction with the billets at Eastman Barracks, must obtain a reservation through the Frankfurt Central Booking Office. Individuals may report to the Rail Transportation Office, Frankfurt/Main, Hauptbahnhof in person or call Frankfurt military 8147 or 5159. Any information received from the Berlin RTO regarding transportation from Frankfurt to Eastman Barracks, or billets at Eastman Barracks is invalid.

Reservations will be accepted at Frankfurt on a first come-first serve basis. Required booking information is: (1) name and rank, (2) unit, (3) date of attendance at Olympic events, (4) the desired travel dates, and (5) whether billets at Eastman Barracks are desired.

Reservations must be made at least five days prior to travel date. Return travel arrangements will also be made at booking time. Upon making a reservation, the individual will be provided a booking number. When checking in for the trip to Eastman Barracks, individuals must have a valid ID card, an Olympic ticket and a booking number.

Check-in and processing on day of travel will be at the Frankfurt South Station not later than 7:30 a.m. Train number D-20454 will depart Frankfurt South at 8:02 a.m. and arrive at Eastman Barracks at 1:25 p.m.

Check-in and processing for return transportation will be at the Information Center, Eastman Barracks. Train number D-20454 will depart Eastman Barracks daily at 3:10 p.m. and arrive at Frankfurt South at 8:40 p.m.

Because the arrival time of the Eastman Barracks—Frankfurt South train is too late to make the Frankfurt—Berlin Duty Train, the individual must plan accordingly. One solution is to spend the night in Frankfurt and take the next day's duty train to Berlin. A second is to fly from Frankfurt to Berlin and a third possibility is to take a German train from Munich to Frankfurt that arrives in time to make the Frankfurt—Berlin Duty Train.

Free bus transportation will be provided from Eastman Barracks to the nearest public transportation for movement to the Olympics. Additionally, information regarding all commercial transportation within Munich will be available at Eastman Barracks.

Facilities at Eastman Barracks include a theater, gymnasium, PX, rod and gun club, refreshment tent, golf course, mobile snack bars and a special lounge with a color television.

Civilian clothing will be worn for travel to and attendance at the Olympic events.

It is suggested that individuals: (a) bring a lock to secure personal effects, (b) bring sufficient civilian clothing and toilet articles for two days, (c) bring sufficient funds for all meals other than breakfast, and for other expenses (such as transportation within Munich) for at least two days, (d) bring travellers' checks or cashiers' checks; facilities for cashing personal checks are limited, (e) bring Olympic ticket and ID card, (f) refrain from bringing large amounts of money or expensive items such as jewelry and cameras and (g) refrain from wearing military uniforms on the train or in Munich.

Two Quick Goals Give Forces Tie

by Ray Stahl

Three goals in the second half, two of them but sixty seconds apart, enabled the U. S. Forces soccer team to tie Schultheiss Kreuzberg, 4-4, this past Thursday at McNair.

Kreuzberg opened the scoring thirty minutes into the first half and Marty Best countered for the Americans some five minutes later to even the match 1-1. The German team put another on the scoreboard just before the halftime whistle to make it 2-1 and they showed promise of more goals to come.

The second half began as if the Schultheiss team was going to win in a rout. They controlled the early going at their smooth tempo and tallied their third goal fifteen minutes into second half play to make the score 3-1.
Paddy Yarr drove a free kick into the nets for the Forces team in the 65th minute of action and Ray Stahl levelled the score at 3-3 with a head shot less than a minute later for the Americans.

It was hard to decide who has more surprised at the sudden change in the score, the Forces team with the two quick goals, or Kreuzberg, who had the game so well in control.

A penalty kick 10 minutes from the end of the game put the German club ahead 4-3, but Marty Best scored his second goal of the match three minutes later and both teams seemed satisfied with the 4-4 deadlock as the time ran out.

The upcoming Allied Tournament games with the British provide the Forces squad their toughest tests of this season and the U. S. team must win both games.

Stock Car Buffs Get New Track

The long awaited stock car season here in Berlin is about to begin. Since it's inception not too long ago, the Berlin American Auto Association has had a dream of the American community having a stock car track . . . just like you see in the states. Well, it's finally happened. The new oval dirt track is located on Parks Range.

The fledgling BAAA stock car drivers will be demonstrating their VW's and other souped up models, almost all of which were built in the last two months, a week from Saturday at the new track. The BAAA invites the American community to come out and watch the fun. There will be a minimal charge for admission to help defray insurance and administrative costs.
Registration for BAAA members entering their car will be 8:00 a.m. on Saturday the 19th of August with the track open for practice until 11:00 a.m. when the timed runs will begin.

THIS STOCK CAR and many others like it will compete Saturday on the new oval track built for the Berlin American Auto Association. For complete details see story on right.

Jean-Claude Goes Downhill

by Mark Huffman

The humorous writings of James Thurber are the steady rock upon which THE WAR BETWEEN MEN AND WOMEN is built. Whether or not the flick does Thurber justice is harder to say. Jack Lemmon stars as a near-sighted artist with an acute antipathy for females, carpet creepers, and canines and who ends up with a madhouse full of them. Also stars Barbara Harris. If you like smart alec New York taxi drivers, PIGEONS was made just for you. Jordan Christopher plays the wise guy and Jill O'Hara plays his girl friend in the tale of the hot shot youth who is determined to challenge the big town by himself. The flick is rated R, so you know this guy can't spend all his time driving that cab and giving people a hard time. All things considered, the Woody Woodpecker should give this one a run for its money.

Everything the press releases about SOUL SOLDIER is true. It is the story of the all black Tenth Cavalry, they did patrol the Texas-Mexican border in the 1870's, and they did earn the respect of the Indians they fought. Then again, the Indians never saw this movie. The movie is built on the premise that people want to see ex-

Olympian Rafer Johnson flex his muscles (he doesn't appear to own any shirts). He does have a lot of muscles. Also stars Lincoln Kirkpatrick.

THE LADY AND THE TRAMP is one of Walt Disney's most famous feature cartoons and if you haven't seen it you've missed something. Tramp is the happy mongrel from across the tracks who falls in love with the pampered and petted lady, the pedigreed cocker spaniel. But it's no mere case of puppy love, as Tramp proves, when he risks his life to save his love from the bad guys. Peggy Lee provides the music. Also: Short Subject on the 1971 World Series.

Jean-Claude Killy isn't really an actor and this isn't really a very good movie. The only thing that saves it, surprisingly enough, is Jean-Claude Killy. When he's not acting he's doing what he's most famous for: skiing. The scenery is fantastic and Killy is definitely a pleasure to watch as he zooms around the mountains stealing from the rich and giving to himself. When the film was being made there was a big build up about a jump that Killy would do for the camera. The fanfare was justified: the jump is enough to make any skier turn pale and surely the best thing in SNOW JOB.

I DON'T MIND SHARING the slopes with a skiing helicopter, but I'd hate to have to stand behind the thing in the lift line. A bad guy makes his getaway in SNOW JOB, starring Jean-Claude Killy. (Warner Brothers picture)

Music and Coffee House

Greetings and salutations! All vacations have the same fault — they are too short. So it's back to the old typewriter to try to inform you on how to make the most of your free time in Berlin . . . not such a very easy task if you've been away from the happenings for some time.

You are invited to come celebrate the 65th birthday of one of Berlin's big coffee houses "Hutmacher" in the "skyscraper" right across from Bahnhof Zoo today. Excellent cake and coffee plus a talented violin virtuoso are awaiting you for a five o'clock get-together this afternoon.

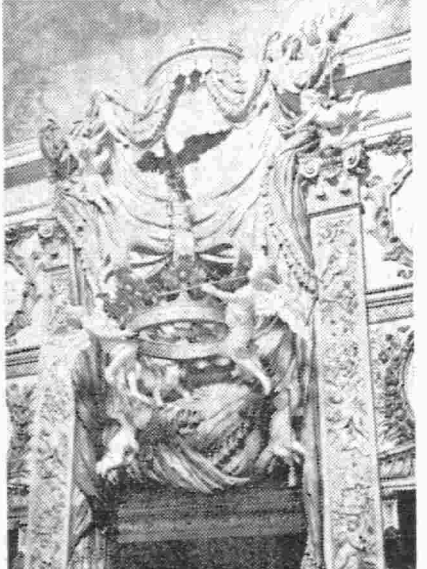

"Music, Humor and Gay Spirit" can enliven your Saturday night tomorrow if you travel out to the Spandau Citadel. On the pretty little outdoor stage a variety show will get underway at 7 p.m. featuring, among others, "The Dominos," the "Stettiner Singers" and "The Killer Girls." It costs only 3 DM to come and have a listen. As usual the event will take place in the Festival Hall of the Citadel if it rains.

Charlottenburg Concert
If you've been planning to go to one of the summer concerts in the beautiful Eosander Chapel located in the Charlottenburg Castle, better get a move on it, because this weekend is your last chance. Saturday and Sunday night at 8 p.m. a chamber concert will be performed by Marianne Koch-Hoeffler (flute), Rolf-Julius Koch (oboe), Etzel Gundlich (cello and organ), Goetz Bernau (violin) and Gudrun Eckle (cello). Selections by three composers out of the Bach family, Telemann and Muffat have been chosen for the program.

Should Sunday afternoon threaten to become a dull affair, why not put yourself in some nice duds and head for the Palais beneath the Funkturm? Here every Sunday afternoon in August, the Hans Karbe Band plays for your dancing pleasure from 3:30 to 6 p.m. There is no admission fee, but a DM 5 minimum to spend for something to eat or drink. The Palais am Funkturm is located on Masurallee right across from the SFB Radio Studio.

Another place where there is action on a Sunday afternoon is the trotting race track in Mariendorf. This Sunday's events promise to be especially interesting with the five-year-old horses competing for the European Championship in their class. Top trotters from seven nations will be at the start, competing for prizes totaling DM 50,000. For only DM 1.50 or DM 3.00, depending on which gate you choose to enter the track, you can come and watch beginning at 2 p.m. Various restaurant facilities are at your service.

And there certainly is no need to have a blue Monday anymore! For soldiers stationed in Berlin, the Eden bars are making the offer to charge only half of the prices on Monday nights.

"Wings" Flying In
On August 24 "Wings Over Europe" will land in Berlin. "Wings" is the name of Paul and Linda McCartney's group which lets the good old rock'n'roll style come back to life. For this purpose the McCartneys gathered together the American drummer Denny Seiwell and the two English guitarists Denny Laine and Henry McCulloch last summer. England and America have been toured by the band already and this summer they've done their thing in Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Sweden, Finland and Norway. Berliners can get acquainted with the "Wings" this Thursday in the Deutschlandhalle at 8 p.m.

Tiergarten Tunes
That same night you can also come to the Parkhouse in the English Garden section of the Tiergarten where the tender strains of a flute, played by Peter Martin, will be accompanied on the piano by Karl Bergemann. Pieces performed will include sonatas for flute and piano by Donizetti and Gaubert. For only DM 1-3 you can enjoy this recital which begins at 8 p.m.

Classical theater entertainment is coming your way from merry old England at the end of August. As a pre-event to the upcoming Berlin Festival Weeks, The Royal Shakespeare Company will present "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in the Freie Volksbühne from August 28 to September 2. The ticket sales have begun already and you better see about getting some right away (the PX ticket agency is open again), because such guests appearances sell out quickly. Then when you have your tickets, pay attention to the starting time — it's 7:30 p.m. in this case.

Something to look forward to: "Middle of the Road" will be in the Berliner Sportpalast on September 3 together with "Love Generation."

FSB Chess Enthusiast Organizes Club Here

by Dan Phillips
It was driving to Gatow every week that got SP4 Joe Orr of Co B, FSB, interested in organizing a Field Station Chess Club.

Realizing that not everyone wants to make the hour and a half trip to Gatow to play chess, the idea occurred to him to play at home.

The first meeting will be held at the Hi-Lite Service Club, September 7, at 7 p.m. The club is open to all interested personnel, regardless of chess ability.

The advantage of having a Field Station Chess Club, according to Orr, is that no matter what one's ability is, he would be able to find reasonable competition. The beginners could play the beginners, with the masters challenging each other.

"There are quite a few masters in the German Leagues," said Orr. "It's a great opportunity for anyone wanting to improve his game."

"It would be nice if the Field Station Chess Club could eventually have some sort of refreshment with the games," Orr said.

"Various chess clubs in the German Leagues usually have beer on hand," he said.

Orr hopes that once the club is underway, a separate room for the chess club could be arranged, and that official ratings could be obtained for those interested.

The club will meet every Tuesday evening after its first meeting, with plans for arranging an additional opportunity for the people on evening shifts.

Anyone interested in helping to organize the club should contact Joe Orr, Field Station, Co. B, Rm. 222.
