

THE BERLIN OBSERVER

OBSERVER THOUGHT
FOR THE WEEK:
"Care enough to be apathetic."

Vol. 28, No. 8

U. S. Army Berlin

Friday, February 25, 1972

"I don't think we would need to draft women unless public opinion demanded it in an all-out emergency."

"I joined in 1943 because it was the thing to do . . . Patriotism was also behind it."

Women's Lib In the Army Doesn't Have To Be Militant-- They Set the Pace

Women's Lib may be lagging in some areas but as far as an All Volunteer Army goes, the women are definitely leading the way.

"The Women's Army Corps has always been a volunteer organization and is the forerunner of the volunteer Army," pointed out Colonel Mary C. Guyette, WAC Staff Advisor at Headquarters, USAREUR. "We like to think we're ahead of the men in this area."

The colonel made her observations last week while she was in Berlin to visit the command and the WACs stationed here.

"I don't think that there is any problem with Women's Lib in the WACs because women in the Army get the same pay and benefits the men do," the colonel continued. "And WACs generally have better quarters than the men in Europe, though the men are starting to catch up."

As for drafting women, Colonel Guyette was very skeptical.

"It depends upon the situation. I don't think we would need to draft women unless public opinion demanded it in an all-out emergency."

At the present time there are almost 500 WACs in Europe, according to the colonel, with one third in medical units, one third in communications and the rest in miscellaneous units, principally administration.

As for why women become WACs, Colonel Guyette said,

"I joined in 1943, the year the corps was established, because it was the thing to do and for an opportunity to see another part of the world. Patriotism was also behind it."

"Women join today for the education and experience needed for civilian life," she continued. "And they join for the same terms of enlistment in their areas as the men do."

When asked about the difference between the WACs and other services (WAVES, WAFS, etc.), the colonel replied, "There's not much difference but with the WACs there's a greater variety of assignments."

At the present time the corps is coping with the same problem that their male counterparts have—the Early Out program. There has been a drop in the number of WACs in Europe, but additional WACs will be assigned to Europe as the corps is increased 50 per cent in the next six years to 18,000.

Presently there are more than 400 occupational specialties open to WACs and new fields are gradually being opened.

"But I don't think we'll ever go airborne," the colonel laughed.

She was also skeptical of the idea that women will ever go into combat arms.

"I don't think so, as our purpose is to provide the Army with skills that women can provide," she noted. "And the skills of women do not include combat arms."

What's Inside . . .

● A Guide for Voters

Are you tired of Howard Hughes? Could you care less about Clifford Irving? If so, then you've probably been wondering what's been going on back home as far as the presidential race is concerned. But have no fear. While others concentrate on Howard Hughes and his telephone calls, the B.O. is presenting you with a whole page of voting material for this year, half of which is actually even true. We'll leave it up to you to figure out for yourself fact from fiction after looking over this mess on Page 2.

● Don't Be a Chicken

Have you ever lost your temper and snapped some one's head off? If you have, then you know how the Chickenman of 3/6 feels as he prepares his meals in his own bone-crunching way. If you're not too chicken to find out what we're talking about, take a look at Page 3.

● Was This Rigged

The Army has been shot down again, only this time it was by the Air Force. The occasion this time was the TCA Basketball Tournament and there was Headquarters Company of 4/18 playing three games in one day and losing in the finals to some of those Air Force guys that are always high. If this was the Navy, then we'd figure the whole tournament was rigged. Anyway, see for yourself on Page 4.

Race Relation Efforts Aimed At Policy-Making Individuals

The efforts of the race relations program in the Army today are being directed at the higher levels where the individuals make the policy and have the greatest influence—not at the privates and Spec Fours.

This point was brought forth by Captain Joseph Gentry of the Berlin Brigade Office of Race Relations and Equal Opportunity during an interview on AFN Wednesday.

The discussion between Gentry and Captain Edward Miles of the Office of Social Actions at Tempelhof Central Airport was part of the activities of the National Brotherhood Week, which incorporated Black History Week.

Miles described his program at TCA as being in three general areas:

- Increasing awareness of racial attitudes and values and thus encouraging honesty and trust;
- Increase understanding between blacks and whites, thus trying to eliminate fear and prejudiced attitudes of both races and to start dialogue;
- Attempt to increase acceptance of the individual for his work.

Gentry's program is similar and investigates incidents of racial discrimination, provides human relations counselors and runs human relations seminars on black history and ideologies.

Gentry's program involves not only blacks but also other racial minorities, sex and religion. "We occasionally get some women's libbers who complain about sex discrimination," he said.

The human relations seminars that Gentry runs involve two areas:

- Ethnic studies on blacks, Indians, Orientals, Chicanos and Puerto Ricans, all of whom have had racial difficulties in the past. Gentry would like members of these minority groups to teach these studies. "It's more convincing to hear it from the horse's mouth," he said.
- Psychological study of institutional racism, racial and ethnic discrimination, the phenomenon of self-hate, etc.

The seminars should lead "to a better understanding by individuals of each other," he added.

"They are directed primarily at the higher levels of the Army where the individuals are who make policy and have the greatest influence," Gentry said, "not the privates and Spec fours."

Why has there been a holdup in the establishment of a human or race relations office? (The Berlin office was set up in 1970.)

Gentry replied that while overt racism in the Army supposedly ended in the 1940's, covert racism hasn't. The racial problems of the 60's brought everything to the surface.

He went on to describe the types of persons, according to racial attitudes:

- The racial discriminator who is prejudiced — the outright bigot;
- The non-discriminator who is prejudiced ("the individual we can accept"). He tries not to discriminate on the job despite his feelings, primarily because of pressures;
- The non-prejudiced discriminator who harbors no racist feelings but acts according to prevalent attitudes;
- The non-prejudiced non-discriminator — the ideal.

What must be done to eradicate racism?

"Reeducation is important, but we must go beyond the schools and start early in childhood," Gentry said, describing the problem of reaching behavior to change attitudes, especially in the home where they are formed primarily.

The ultimate question seems to be why men are reluctant to change ideas and attitudes on race?

"The intellect clashes with emotion," said Gentry. "The intellect knows the physiological differences but knows that they are not important. But his emotions can't accept that, given the background and upbringing in society."

Care Enough To Care

As of the first of the year, the Adjutant General's Replacement Detachment has been sponsoring the Bartel Orphanage located in the Marienfelde District of West Berlin. The orphanage is an eight-room German house and holds 35 children who range in age from four to 15 years.

As one might imagine there was quite a bit of work that the orphanage needed done and quite a few items that the orphanage needed for the welfare of the children.

The Detachment pitched in with all they had and 1500 DM worth of items were purchased—including a new Deep Freeze, indoor-outdoor carpeting and a new stereo system.

Thanks also to Staff Sergeant Hamilton of A Company, 2nd Battalion, 6th Infantry, Specialist Four James Briscoe of the 592nd Signal Company and Private Veltling of Headquarters 2/6, the carpeting was installed.

At a time when people have been talking about brotherhood, the AG Replacement deserves a special salute for stepping forth and doing something and not just talking about it. JH

A Presidential Preview

The Two-Party Party

by Mike Sowell

Those of you who are taking an active interest in the presidential play-offs this year have undoubtedly been dismayed by the lack of coverage given the contestants in the local news media. I mean, with daily front page stories on Howard Hughes' toenails and Clifford Irving's childhood days, who has room to run anything about something as insignificant as someone running for president.

But there is still one bastion of journalistic excellence left to carry the fight forward. Yes, in these dark days there is a guiding light cutting through the darkness of ignorance—The Berlin Observer.

While all of our other competitors concentrate on sensationalism and Howard Hughes trivia, the B. O. has maintained its high standards and continues to report on such newsworthy items as Pinocchio, all-time wars and people biting chickens' heads off.

And now to cap off National Voter Registration Month, the B. O. is presenting another public service to its readers—a list of characters in the drama "The Making of a President, 1972" or "Who's Who in the 1972 Presidential Games."

So here it is in its easy-to-clip-out-and-carry-in-your-wallet form so that you will always have it with you. Or, if you want, you can frame it and hang it on your wall to love and cherish forever.

REPUBLICAN LEAGUE

RICHARD M. NIXON (California, New York, Florida, etc.) — the defending national champion, Nixon is an overwhelming favorite to win his league title again. The initials may be a bit rougher, though, so he has been training in China and also plans to work out in Russia. He is a politician's politician but he sometimes has trouble with newsmen, who have a tendency to "kick him around."

PAUL McCLOSKEY (California) — he is a one-issue candidate who opposes the war in Vietnam. He also opposes the All Volunteer Army. "I am opposed to a corps of professional killers who enjoy this particular job," stated the 23-year-Marine veteran.

JOHN ASHBROOK (Ohio) — he's not to the left of Nixon so he must be right, or is he.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER (New York) — he hasn't announced yet, but as soon as someone else has the nomination wrapped up, he'll announce and then wonder why he didn't win.

DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE

EDMUND MUSKIE (Maine) — this Mainiac is considered to be leading the league at the present time. He's all for everything Nixon is for but since he's a Democrat he's opposed to everything Nixon is doing.

GEORGE McGOVERN (South Dakota) — some people consider him to be a one-issue candidate, but he avidly denies this. Actually, he has two issues — (1) Vietnam; and (2) the fact that he's not a one-issue candidate.

HUBERT HUMPHREY (Minnesota) — he holds the distinction of being the only man that Nixon has defeated for public office in 15 years. But he's back again telling us that if we'd done things his way, everything would be all right, but he never did say what this way was.

EUGENE McCARTHY (Minnesota) — he may be from Humphrey's state but they'll never be confused for the Minnesota Twins. He is the only poet who's running for the office, though.

HENRY JACKSON (Washington) — he's a no-nonsense man who seems to follow Nixon's thinking but wants everyone to vote for him because he's a Democrat, which must mean something.

SAM YORTY (California) — he ran a trashy campaign for mayor in Los Angeles, concentrating on the intricacies of garbage pickup, and now he wants to pick up the garbage across the U. S.

SHIRLEY CHISHOLM (New York) — they say that behind every successful man, there's a woman. Right now, she's behind almost all the men running for the office.

GEORGE WALLACE (Alabama) — he may not win the Democratic nomination but he can make up his own league like he did last time — he always was out of our league.

TED KENNEDY (Massachusetts) — he hasn't decided whether or not he's going to run yet but as soon as he can find someone to take his entrance examination he should be back on the road to success.

JOHN LINDSAY (New York) — he's so far removed from the right that when no one else is left, he'll always be left. But like they always say, "New York City is a nice place to visit, but I'd hate to vote for anyone from there."

WILBUR MILLS (Arkansas) and VANCE HARTKE (Indiana) — everyone else is running, so why shouldn't they.

Dylan Bobs Back Up Again In Bangla Desh Performance

by John C. Hinds Jr.

I'm pretty sure that you have experienced the feeling of being somewhere in your journey through life and running into someone who you once knew and haven't seen or heard from in a number of years and suddenly there they are in front of you. Or maybe you hear some song on the radio that reminds you of some fond memory or the performer is one that you haven't heard in a number of years and suddenly they are back again.

This happened to me over the Christmas holidays. I was sitting in a friend's house in Pittsburgh, of all places, and discussing music with someone whom I had just met. The conversation suddenly swung to Bob Dylan and the friend casually asked me if I ever really got into Dylan's music. To be honest with you, up until that time I never really had. He was one performer who I knew was around and knew that a large number of people were digging on but I never really got into Dylan all that much.

I decided the next day that it was probably worth my time to look into this mystery man who had been incognito for a while due to a motorcycle accident but was suddenly starting to make a comeback. Then, to my surprise, I heard the Bangla Desh Concert album for the first time and there was Dylan singing and playing his guitar and playing the harmonica like only Bob Dylan can play the harmonica. From there I proceeded to get into "New Morning" and "John Wesley Harding." I returned home to New York and turned on my radio and what should I hear but Dylan playing the song "George Jackson."

Now, I don't know if you know about George Jackson or how he died—he was a young black leader who was serving time in prison for something that is really unimportant, but anyway he was shot at the prison where they had him in California. There was something about the way Dylan sang: "I woke up this morning, There were tears in my bed. They killed a man I really loved. They shot him in the head." The power of the song and the love and at the same time underlying hate that Dylan was expressing plus the awesome power and the screams of the crowd in Madison Square Garden the night of the Bangla Desh Concert brought it all into focus.

Robert Zimmerman, who was born May 24, 1941 in Duluth, Minn. and became Bob Dylan in 1962, was back and better than ever. Perhaps one of my friends said it best the other night: "Dylan has always been there even when he stopped recording due to his accident. Other people were singing his songs and playing his music." Then we had "John Wesley Harding" and "New Morning." All of a sudden here he is with George Jackson and Bangla Desh. But perhaps the most striking example that he is back is his Greatest Hits Volume Two Album. On it he has such hits as "Lay, Lady, Lay," "When I Paint My Masterpiece," and "Don't Think Twice It's Alright."

Yes, Bob Dylan is back but as he said it: "You are right from your side and I am right from mine, we're just one too many mornings and a thousand miles behind."

In case you are looking for something to do this weekend, Jose Feliciano will be at the Deutschlandhalle Saturday at 8 p.m. and it is one show that if you dig folk music, like I do, you won't want to miss.

Some new albums released last week in New York include "Peter," a solo shot by Peter of Peter, Paul and Mary; "Baby I'm A Want You" by Bread; "Incredibly Live" by Country Joe and the Fish; and the new Stones releases "Jamming with Edwards" and "Hot Rocks" are all hitting it big.

Until next week Peace and Power To the People and remember the man next to you is your brother and you better treat him that way or we'll blow it all.

Escape From The Observer Primer for Prospective Voters

It's finally happened. After six excruciating installments we have finally come to the end of the line with Escape From the Observer Primer for Prospective Voters.

Our last batch of states has checked in and they are all on display in this exciting issue. There will be no more. This is it. If you want to read about voter registration you must do it now.

As part of our closing remarks, we would like to give credit to the Armed Forces Press Service, which did a good job of writing this information before we got hold of it.

South Carolina

Members of the Armed Forces and their spouses may register by mail at any time to vote in South Carolina. To vote in the primary election set for June 13, your request for registration must be in by May 13. Be sure to indicate your political party preference when applying for registration. Use the FPCA to register and vote in South Carolina.

South Dakota

Members of the Armed Forces and their spouses may apply for registration at the same time they apply for an absentee ballot in South Dakota. Be sure to indicate your political party preference. You may use an FPCA to take part in the June 6 primary.

Tennessee

Members of the Armed Forces and dependents residing with or accompanying them may register and request an absentee ballot at any time by using an FPCA in Tennessee. Be sure to indicate your political preference. Register now for the Aug. 3 primary.

Texas

Members of the Armed Forces and their dependents may register for a specific election by applying for an absentee ballot with an FPCA in Texas. Be sure to indicate your political party preference. Or, they may register for all elections by requesting an application form from the County Tax Collector, county of residence, at any time after Jan. 1, 1972. The Texas primary will be held May 6.

Utah

In Utah, members of the Armed Forces and their dependents are automatically registered when they apply for an absentee ballot. Be sure to indicate your political party preference. You may use an FPCA. Send it in today and get ready to vote in the Sept. 12 primary.

Vermont

Members of the Armed Forces and their dependents from Vermont will be placed on the check list (registered) when the affidavit on the back of the absentee ballot envelope is accepted. Be sure to indicate your political party preference when applying. Use an FPCA to apply for an absentee ballot and take part in the Sept. 12 primary.

It's as Easy as F-P-C-A

Standard Form 76—commonly called the Federal Post Card Application, or FPCA—is a postage free card which military personnel can use to request registration or an absentee ballot. Check the laws of your state to see how you can use the FPCA. The booklet, "Voting Information 1972," has the latest information, state by state.

Properly completing the FPCA is an important step in the process of registering or obtaining your absentee ballot. Shown here is a sample of a properly completed FPCA, along with some suggestions on how to prepare your FPCA for your state's primary election.

• Item (2): For primary election, complete Item 2 unless your state does not require such information. Check it out in "Voting Information 1972."

• Item (5): Make this address as complete as possible. It will help election officials to determine which ballots to send to you.

• Item (6): This request is required by some states, if you are not registered. For details, see your voting representative.

• Item (7): You may use any address, official or not. Use the current address where mail reaches you best.

• Item (9): You sign your name here in the presence of the person who attests to (notarizes) your signature.

• Item (11): Normally, any commissioned officer can complete this section for you.

In completing the front side of the card below, fill in the address of the election official at your voting residence. See "Voting Information 1972," or your voting representative.

Other hints: type or print legibly and use permanent ink.

3/6's Hagan Seems To Be Getting Cocky, But He Might Bite Off More Than He Can Chew

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BITE MY HEAD OFF — Sure 1Lt William L. Hagan Jr. is tired after a long day in the field but he doesn't have to chew out this chicken, does he. Actually, it's all part of 3/6's Ranger training, or "How to survive in the field when there's no Colonel Sanders' Kentucky Fried Chicken store around." Afterwards, Hagan was cackling over the fact that he wasn't too chicken, but the bird was crying "Fowl play." (Photo by SP4 Dan Eggleston)

by SP4 Dan Eggleston

If you saw First Lieutenant William L. Hagan Jr. walking down the street, you'd probably never suspect that he bites the heads off chickens. Whether you believe it or not, Hagan did just that while giving a class on Survival Techniques to A Company, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry at the Major Training Area.

Since one of the important aspects of surviving is eating, A Company procured 50 live chickens to give the men experience in dressing and cooking game they might catch if they were really stranded. One of these chickens had the bite put on him by Hagan.

"I don't think that the men thought I'd really do it," said Hagan, who learned the trick in Ranger School. "There's really nothing to it. The only bad part is getting feathers stuck between your teeth".

After the rather unorthodox beheading of his chicken (it was dubbed "Ranger Style"), Hagan demonstrated how to skin a chicken using only a pointed stick.

"Most people think you have to pluck a chicken's feathers out, but that takes much more time and is really harder than skinning the bird."

When Hagan had finished skinning and cleaning his demonstration chicken, it was time for the troops to prepare their chicken for lunch. One live chicken was assigned to two men, but since a chicken has only one head the men had to decide among themselves who would do it in.

When asked if they would try the "Ranger Style" method of chicken extermination, the general answer was "You gotta be nuts!" Among the enlisted men, the most popular style was be-heading via the open entrenching tool. It's quick, easy and you don't get feathers stuck between your teeth.

In just a short while the birds were skinned and cleaned and the air was filled with the aroma of chicken being cooked over an open fire. Add potatoes and vegetables and there was an outstanding noon meal that anyone could survive on.

When the men of A-3/6 return from MTA, they may not remember much about firing on the ranges or their field training, but they will remember Hagan's chicken feat. As for Hagan, he was last seen strengthening his jaws on chicken bones mumbling "I wonder if I could do it with a turkey . . ."

You Can See Rations Now Defenders Can Canned Dinners

by SP4 Dan Eggleston

Beside working seven days a week, cold weather and lots of mud, the men of the 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry training at Hohenfels usually have something else to look forward to — a daily noon meal of C-Rations.

This year, however, the Defenders won't be opening the little green cans for dinner because their mess personnel open them and prepare tasty meals from the "Cs".

The idea began in Company B when the First Sergeant told the Mess Sergeant that he didn't want his men eating luke warm chow from cans at lunch.

"The main problem in complying with the First Sergeant was having enough time to separate the different type meals and getting them opened and heated by chow time," recalled Staff Sergeant Wayne Singletary, Company B Mess Sergeant. "After we sorted and opened them, we added spices and extra meat and came out with a pretty good meal."

Now that the "no more cans for lunch" has been ordered into effect for the whole battalion, the sorting of the different meals is done by the supply section before the C-Rations are distributed to the companies.

There are 12 different meals in one case and they are separated so that each case contains only one type of meal. The Defenders receive 60 cases of C-Rations daily and after a time of trial and error the supply personnel have found a system which enables them to separate the meals in about two hours.

Besides a main course of ham and eggs, beans and meatballs or 10 other choice selections, the meals also contain fruit or a cake and crackers with either peanut butter, jam or cheese to supplement them.

In the mess hall, these portions of the C's are removed from the cans and are attractively arranged for the hungry trooper to help himself buffet style.

Last, but not least, a packet containing instant coffee, cream substitute, salt, pepper, sugar, chewing gum, cigarettes and matches is opened and sorted. The gum, cigarettes and matches are placed out for the men to pick up while the mess hall makes use of the rest. This way the entire contents of the small C-Ration box is utilized while previously much had been wasted.

What does the average soldier think of this innovating innovation of otherwise uninviting C-Rations?

"C-Rations are C-Rations no matter what you do to them," says average soldier Private First Class Doug Omdahl, "but having the cooks prepare them has made them more appealing. If nothing else, at least now I don't have to open all those little cans."

Drug Tests To Be Given

The Department of Defense has announced random testing will begin soon to detect drug usage among members of the Armed Forces on extended active duty.

Military personnel on extended active duty will be subjects to unannounced urinalysis testing an unspecified number of times. Opiates, amphetamines and barbiturates can be detected through these tests.

The primary objective of the program is to identify early those individuals requiring treatment or rehabilitation due to drug usage.

Other reasons for the random testing are to help drug abusers recover from the drug abuse syndrome prior to extensive physical or psychological deterioration, provide data on prevalence rates of drug abusers by area and provide a deterrent effect on experimental and casual users.

Special Troops Couples Visit Kreuzberg District

by SP5 Thomas Maguire

A Kreuzberg District Orientation Tour was conducted for Special Troops Personnel Feb. 1. The District Mayor, Guenther Abendroth, extended the invitation for 15 couples to attend. The couples in attendance consisted of both officers and NCO's, and their wives.

Special Troops is the "Partnership Battalion" to Kreuzberg District and has participated in various social events with the district on annual basis.

The Orientation Tour began at 1:30 p.m. with the welcoming of the guest in Rathaus Kreuzberg. Here the Special Troops party was given blems of the Kreuzberg District. At an introduction into the special pro-2:30 p.m. the group left for an hour-long guided bus tour through the district.

The tour was conducted in English by Oberbaurat Herr Ratei, who is the Counselor for Construction in the District. After the bus tour the couples toured the Berlin Museum. The guide for this tour was Frau Dr. Thon.

The Orientation Tour was concluded with a typically delicious Berlin dinner and a discussion of the day's events in the Altbirner Weissbierstube of Berlin-Museum. For all in attendance the event was a very enjoyable and informative afternoon.

Fenton Shows the Way In Brigade Leadership

by PFC Jon Walbrun

Specialist Four Thomas Fenton of Company B, Field Station Berlin achieved 92 out of a possible 100 points and earned the distinction of being the first Honor Graduate of the Berlin Brigade Leadership School.

The school is basically geared to prepare those enlisted men who are specialist four or acting sergeant E-5 for the responsibilities and characteristics of a Non-Commissioned Officer.

Organized and administered by the 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry, the week-long course began its first session on Feb. 14. According to Lieutenant Colonel James A. Conley, commanding officer, 4/18, the program "helps the soldier realize the task he is about to take" in becoming a non-commissioned officer.

The 40-hour program includes instructional courses in Military Leadership, Methods of Instruction, Drug Abuse, Modern Volunteer Army and the Modern Professional Army, Staff Judge Advocate, Human Relations and Drill and Ceremonies.

Military leadership is the principle point of instruction, covering 15 hours of teaching. Among the various topics within military leadership, the course elaborates on human behavior, leadership traits, principles, leadership in combat and problem areas.

The first session of the program was attended by 37 soldiers from the brigade.

Sergeant First Class Alvin Williams Jr. of Company B, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry is the Non-Commissioned Officer in charge of the school, which is being held at the McNair Education Center.

Four NCOs Leave Soon For Officer Candidate School

Sergeant Kai R. Larsen of the 287th MP Company was in the United States only nine weeks when he was drafted in July 1968, but thinks the coming weeks will be a lot harder and meaningful than the first nine.

Now a U. S. citizen, Larsen is going to Officer Candidate School (Infantry) next month.

Larsen was a language student in a Danish college three years when he decided to move to the U. S.

"There are greater opportunities and possibilities for young people there than in Europe," says Larsen.

But soon he was in the Army. He spent a year as a processing NCO at Ft. Jackson before going to Vietnam for 1½ years as an MP.

He re-upped for Europe and came to Berlin in January 1971. Knowing Danish, English, German and French has meant he has been very busy in this occupied city as an MP.

He will be joined at OCS next month by Staff Sergeant Mark K. Thorne of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, Specialist Five Paul B. Ciszewski of Co. B, Field Station, Berlin, and Specialist Six Lawrence Anderson of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry.

Tired H-4/18 Cagers Battle For Second in TCA Tourney

TCA LAUNCHING — H-4/18's Greg Hildebrand sails up and over Tempelhof's Combined Units defenders Mike Carter (13) and Bob Bowden (30) in some fiery action from the TCA Championship game Monday. (Photo by TSgt. Bob Hoffmann)

Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion, 18th Infantry was handed a bridesmaid role again, dropping a 71-63 decision to the Air Force's Combined Units team in the Tempelhof Central Airport Tournament championship basketball game Monday.

Combined Units and H-4/18 worked their way up through a crowd that included Berlin Brigade champion, A-2/6, B-FSB, HHC, 6912th A team (Tempelhof) and 6900th security squadron from Frankfurt.

H-4/18 had tasted victory and wanted the championship in this tourney after playing second fiddle to A-2/6 in the Berlin Brigade championship, but was frustrated by a grueling schedule Monday that saw them play three games in a row.

The big 4/18 cagers chalked up their first tournament victory Saturday with a 65-53 pasting of the 6900th squad from Frankfurt and followed up Sunday by romping over HHC, 84-56. Greg Hildebrand scored 18 and Tom Marschner 16 in the first win, while Marschner piled up 25 in the HHC contest. In a second Sunday encounter, Headquarters tasted defeat at the hands of Combined Units, 70-64, as Marschner again topped his team with 27 points, aided by Art Adair's 18.

The pressure was on H-4/18 Monday, but they rose to the occasion and outgunned B-FSB, 65-55. Adair was the point maker in this one, scoring 18. Lynder Jackson led the FSB team with 16.

The semifinal matchup with Combined Units at 1:30 was the second game of the day for the Headquarters crew, and they outclassed the Units team, 64-53. The first half was all 4/18, as they built a 9-2 lead into a 10-point 36-26 halftime advantage. Tom Marschner led the onslaught with 13 first half tallies, aided and abetted by Hildebrand and Adair.

Outrebounded fiercely in the first half, CU came storming back on their fast break to bring the score to 45-38 with 9:04 remaining. Both teams began a deliberate, slowdown style of play, but a couple of three-pointers by hotshooting Marschner took his team out of trouble. Adair added some sharpshooting of his own, and with only 2:10 remaining, it was 58-49, H-4/18. Two free throws by Hildebrand iced the contest for the elated Headquarters team.

A scant hour and half later, the two teams were at it again for the championship.

Again 4/18's talented quint stormed ahead of CU, leading 18-10 with 9:00 remaining in the half, but CU was not to be outdone, bringing it to 25-18 with 3:54 remaining. A burst of Headquarters activity found Marschner netting three field goals and two free throws, a field goal and two free throws from Hildebrand and a free throw by Adair. A shocked CU team found itself behind 40-27 at the half.

Headquarters finally discovered how it feels to be exhausted in the second half. Their timing, shooting and rebounding were lackluster as CU pulled ahead to stay, 45-44 with 9:12 remaining in the game. The closest 4/18 could get after that was 56-51 as CU pulled out the victory. Hildebrand scored 22 and Marschner 18 for Headquarters.

It was a disappointing loss for H-4/18, but they had both an excellent Tempelhof team and fatigue to battle. Who knows what they could have done under different circumstances?

Berlin Brigade teams fared well as a whole. B-FSB was the tournament's Cinderella team, knocking off Tempelhof's 6912 A team, 71-53; 6900th, 91-54 and A-2/6, 78-67, before falling to Combined Units, 80-69 and H-4/18, 65-55. A-2/6 outdueled 6912th, 80-75, to complete the show of Berlin Brigade power.

Auto Race Slated at McNair

Auto racing made its debut Feb. 12 at the 4-Ring, McNair, when the Berlin American Auto Association (BAAA) held its first Auto Slalom of the year.

Some 15 German and American drivers raced through a tricky course of pylons against the clock with Michael Kasner winning in only 37.1 seconds in a Lotus Europa.

By class, awards went to Ron Klecka in a VW 1300, Orville Teague in a VW 1600, Wolfgang Richter in a BMW, Tom Vick driving an MG Midget and Ray Chermack in a Morris Mini. Fastest woman driver of the day was Susi Moore who drove her Chevrolet to a win in the Powder Puff class.

The next auto slalom will be Mar. 5 at McNair and it's hoped that more drivers will come out to test their skills in the race hosted by the BAAA. Competitive classes are set up according to the type of car and the displacement of the engine. You don't need a super car or need to be a professional to enter.

Registration begins at 10 a.m. followed by practice runs at 10:30 and competition runs at 12:30. For more information, call club secretary Ron Klecka at 801-3496 or Charles Reilly at 811-8105.

SOME TCA TOURNAMENT OBSERVATIONS

Tempelhof's First Annual TCA Basketball Tournament was a semi-successful attempt to bring the best of Berlin Brigade and Air Force basketball together for the first time in a long time.

The tournament lasted three days and was completed Monday as Combined Units from Tempelhof bested H-4/18, 71-63, in the championship contest. That it could be called semi-successful hinges on the fact that there were a few sticky problems that detracted from what could have been a great affair.

There were four Berlin Brigade teams, H-4/18, HHC Special Troops, A-2/6 and B-FSB, while the Air Force was represented by Tempelhof's Combined Units and 6912th A team plus 6900th SS from Frankfurt. It would have made for a better tourney if there had been a proportionate number of teams from both services. This is true in both scheduling and fan enjoyment. It ended up that Army teams were battling each other as both 6912th and 6900th bowed out early.

The most glaring problem was the fact that H-4/18 had to play THREE games in a row on Monday with only a couple of hours rest at most between games. Combined Units played two games, and when the two met for the championship, it was obvious that both squads showed signs of fatigue . . . tired teams cannot expect to look good when they've played their hearts out earlier with little or no rest. It would have been helpful if the championship game had been rescheduled for later in the evening.

The refereeing was good, considering the fact that some teams of refs had to work two games in a row and were obviously tired by the experience. I talked with several players from both services and they had no real complaints.

Conspicuously absent was the selection of an All-Tourney team. There were some excellent players who deserved recognition for their outstanding play . . . the tourney didn't have the final flair and flourish that marks a spirited encounter.

The action was good, the fans enthusiastic and the atmosphere holiday-sports-minded. I just hope the bugs can be ironed out and that next year's tournament will be a great success. It was a neighborly gesture on the part of the Air Force and stands a good chance of becoming an outstanding yearly encounter that will foster goodwill between everyone.

All-Stars Tangle Tonight

Berlin Brigade basketball fans are in for a special post season treat tonight when the McNair All-Stars tangle with the Andrews All-Stars at 7 in the Sports Center gym.

Andrews boasts such established performers as Leslie and Willie Harper, 592nd Signal Company; Dan Burns, B-FSB; Clyde Stevens, 42nd Engineers and Tommy McGuire, John Harris and Larry Norris of HHC Special Troops.

McNair enthusiasts will recognize stars Dave Floyd, A-2/6; Art Adair, H-4/18; Fred Sims, B-2/6; Joe Bellmon, A-2/6; Pete Herrington, B-2/6 and Bruce Peltier, B-4/18.

The list is not yet complete for the number of stars competing, as performers from both leagues are expected to express interest in playing. Fans can look forward to a closely contested game, although the McNair Stars have to be given a slight edge.

The game is free and open to all military and dependents in the command.

Yacht Club Plans Water Safety Show

With summer fast approaching, people are getting ready for swimming, sailing and other water sports. In view of the dangers associated with water sports, the American Yacht Club-Berlin will give a demonstration on sailing and safety at Andrews swimming pool tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The demonstration will consist of the capsizing and recovery of an International 470 sailing dinghy by experienced and inexperienced crews under proper supervision.

On Sunday beginning at 7:30 p.m. the club will hold an open meeting at the Harnack House during which films will be shown.

All members of the community are welcome to attend.

Sharpshooting Pistons Eliminate Bullets' Unbeaten Hopes, 42-38

SPEEDING BULLET — Steve Mansfield of the Bullets scores against Tom Webb (10), Mark Phillips (6) and Bill Calhoun (7) of the Pistons Saturday evening in the Sports Center gym. The Pistons upset the Bullets, 42-38.

AYA's only unbeaten team, the Baltimore Bullets, met its Waterloo in the form of the hot-handed Detroit Pistons, 42-38, Saturday evening in the Sports Center gym.

The loss to the Pistons still left the Bullets undisputedly in first place in the Senior Division as the San Francisco Warriors smashed the Boston Celtics, 63-45, in the other night contest.

Dave Howley of the Pistons scored 15 points to lead the upset, just enough to offset balanced scoring by the Bullets' Arnold Fulmer and Steve Mansfield, who dumped in 10 each. The Warriors got a lift from keen-eyed Gregg Swift who netted 24 points, and Marvin Kelker's 11. Bob Robinson paced the Celtics with 15.

In Junior Division action earlier in the afternoon, the Atlanta Hawks outgunned the L. A. Lakers, 32-18, as Sean McLean notched 17 for the winners and Ron Phillips eight for the Lakers. The N. Y. Knicks edged the Phoenix Suns, 15-13, in a low-scoring contest. Stan Donnell had six points for New York, and Mark Beavsoleil six for Phoenix.

The last afternoon tilt found The Milwaukee Bucks outracing the Cincinnati Royals, 39-24. Tom Wise was the Bucks' pointmaker with 13, while Mike Brians and Terry Roberts had 11 apiece for the Royals.

STANDINGS

Senior Division
Bullets	5-1
Pistons	3-3

Killer Sharks Shock Hunters In Blue Water, White Death

BLUE WATER, WHITE DEATH — The Great White Shark is a vicious killer who ends up eating more than his share of humans. He will attack anything and is crafty and elusive enough to get out of many manmade traps. This film records a six-month search for the Great White, resulting in some of the most fantastic underwater shots ever made. Also: A Pink Panther cartoon!

LIGHT AT THE EDGE OF THE WORLD — Hero Kirk Douglas outwits a band of bloodthirsty buccaneers who have plans for putting out a lighthouse at the point where the Pacific meets the Atlantic. Smashed ships on the jagged rocks would be easy prey for the pirates, led by nasty Yul Brynner. Also: Super Bowl highlights.

C. C. AND COMPANY — Broadway Joe Namath plays a motorcycle outcast who abandons his pack for the tempting wiles of Ann-Margret. He duels the gang leader, enters dirt track races and a bunch of exciting things that keep this movie thrilling you down to the last grunt and puff of dust. Also: AFL Championship football game.

THE BALLAD OF CABLE HOGUE — Jason Robards stars as the gnarled prospector who discovers liquid gold (water) in the desert and sets up a successful business as a way station for a stage line. Naughty Stella Stevens and a bunch of girls from one of the best houses in town liven things up.

LOLA — A 38-year-old artist marries a girl who is old enough to be his daughter. She is sweet 16 and never been either. He discovers he must be a daddy to her as well as a husband. Stars Charles Bronson and Susan George and has material which may not be suitable for pre-teenagers or anyone with a weak heart.

PLAY MISTY FOR ME — Clint Eastwood plays a DJ who is involved in an affair with a psychopathic admirer. He returns to his pad to discover that his cleaning lady is quite dead. Things get a little scary after that and the suspense will freeze you to your chair. Also stars the amiable Jessica Walter.

I DON'T KNOW IF I CAN HANDLE RIDING ON THE FRONT LIKE THIS — Lola seems to be carried away by this 38-year-old kid, who spoke up just in time to take her for a ride. This cycle of life is from "Lola," a film about teenagers who get married, which makes it unsuitable viewing for teenagers who might get something out of it. (Photo courtesy American International)

Observer Primer for Voters

Virgin Islands

Members of the Armed Forces are automatically registered when their absentee ballot is received and the affidavit on the back of the envelope is accepted by authorities in the Virgin Islands. Be sure to indicate your political party preference when applying for an absentee ballot. You may use an FPCA. The primary is slated for Sept. 12.

Virginia

Members of the Armed Forces and their spouses may register and apply for an absentee ballot by mail using an FPCA in Virginia. If you are not registered be sure to note "registration requested" in Item 6 of the FPCA and indicate your political party preference. The primary is scheduled for June 13.

Air Fares Take a Dip

New low air fares between Berlin and many American cities have recently gone into effect for U. S. servicemen and their families.

The low fares are for confirmed Economy Class reserved seats on regularly scheduled flights. Fly now, pay later loans are available through American Express.

Servicemen must purchase round trip tickets and return trip must be made within 45 days. Dependents may purchase one-way tickets. Children two or over must pay the new full fare. And if the reservation is cancelled within 48 hours of departure, only a 75 per cent refund is guaranteed.

The one-way fare either way between New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston or Baltimore and Berlin is $96.90. Either way between Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles or Portland and Berlin is $173.90. Several other U. S. cities in between are included in the new rates. For round trip prizes, double the one-way fares.

Berlin servicemen may want to save further by taking the free duty train to Frankfurt. Air fare from Frankfurt to the East coast cities is $84.90.

These fares may vary in the future with new German government regulations. Check American Express for full details and schedules.

Talent Show

The Berlin AYA will sponsor "Our World Comes in Colors," a talent show at the Entertainment Center Saturday at 7 p.m. Admission is free and children are half price.

Choir on TV

In celebration of Brotherhood Week, AFTV will present a special program at 7:50 Sunday, when the Interfaith Choir will present a program of music.

Washington

In the state Washington, members of the Armed Forces and their dependents who are not registered may register for each election by signing the affidavit on the ballot return envelope. Use an FPCA to request your ballot for absentee voting from the Secretary of State, Olympia, Washington, and vote in the Sept. 19 primary.

West Virginia

Members of the Armed Forces and their dependents may apply for registration when they apply for an absentee ballot with an FPCA in West Virginia. Be sure to indicate in Item 6 of the FPCA that you are requesting the absentee registration form and absentee ballot. Be sure to indicate your political party preference. The registration application must be returned by April 8 if you want to vote in the May 9 primary.

Wisconsin

Registration is not required for members of the Armed Forces and their dependents residing with or accompanying them outside the continental U.S. if they wish to vote in Wisconsin. Use an FPCA to request an absentee ballot. Be sure to indicate your political party preference. Put one in the mail now and get ready to vote in the Sept. 12 primary election.

Wyoming

In Wyoming, members of the Armed Forces and their dependents who are not permanently registered may register for each election by completing the affidavit on the back of the absentee ballot envelope. You may use an FPCA to request an absentee ballot from the County Clerk, county of residence. Be sure to indicate your political party preference and take an active part in the Aug. 22 primary.

A Fair Preview of Summer Can Be Seen at Funkturm

by Judy Pricks

A foretaste of summer fun and maybe some ideas for the next trip to far off places is in store for the visitors of the fairgrounds beneath the Funkturm this weekend. Two big fairs open tomorrow — the International Boat Show and Recreation Exhibition and the International Tourism Exchange.

At the boat show, exhibitors from 17 European and overseas countries will display their products in 15 halls on some 45,000 square meters of exhibition space. The outdoor and water sports enthusiasts will have such a huge array of motor, sailing and sport boats, rubber dinghies, motor and boat equipment as well as trailers, camping and leisure time equipment, tents, swimming pools, water sport articles and garden furniture to examine, that they are sure to forget that it is still February and pretty darn cold outside.

Vacation fun and photos go together, so the Berlin Photo Associations will also take part in the exhibition with a display of a cross-section of the achievements of Berlin photo amateurs in the passage to Hall 8.

A large swimming pool has been set up in Hall 17, but visitors have to be spectators here (no need to take a swimming suit when you visit the fair) since competitive sport will take place in the pool.

But if you are looking for some place to go swimming, the Tourism Exchange is a good place to start. Many countries will be making propaganda in order to win the hearts of future tourists. In Hall 12, a "travel movie" will bring distant places closer, and among others, you can get acquainted with Israel, Cyprus, Finland and even Germany. In the same hall you will find a stage where the folklore of various lands will entertain you. There is even a group from the States there — "Up With People."

A stroll through the many displays at the Tourism Exchange is like a world trip in one day. Don't hesitate to ask about your favorite country — that's what the exhibit is for and there will always be someone who speaks English. Opening hours are 10 a.m.—7 p.m. until March 5. The admission fee is DM 3 for adults and DM 1.50 for children . . . this admits you to both events.

Good news for parents of small children who would like to visit these exhibits. In the lobby of Hall 23, a kindergarden has been set up, which is free of charge for kids from 3 to 10. Two supervisors will be in charge and instructive toys are available.

Why not do something for your education and visit some exhibits? Right across from the Charlottenburg Castle on Schloss Strasse 1, an historic exhibit opened last Friday, the Bauhaus Archives returned to Berlin. At this first display, one of the most active members of this association is put into the spotlight, the Hungarian Laszlo Moholy-Nagy.

He was probably the most modern of the Bauhaus masters, and when looking at his designs today, one often has to take an unbelieving look at the date; so up-to-date are his ideas still today. On the second floor one finds a photo exhibit of Moholy-Nagy's works which is really very rewarding to study. It often seems that nothing much new has been done in this field since then — over 40 years ago!

This Moholy-Nagy exhibit should be especially interesting for Americans, because the "Institute for Design," which was founded and led by Nagy in America, left a great impact on the architectural design in the States. You are welcome to take a look free of charge daily, except Tuesday, from 10 a.m.—5 p.m.

There is also no admission to the current display at the Academy of Arts, so you might as well take a look at Renato Guttuso's paintings. The Italian socialist realist, who puts his political conviction on canvases with glowing colors, is one of the few of this school who have also made a name for themselves in the West. This, his first big exhibition in West Berlin, can be visited daily, except Monday, from 10 a.m.—7 p.m. and until 10 p.m. on Wednesday. You have until March 12 to do so.

It's magic at the Academy of Arts from March 3—6 when a program with and about magicians will mystify and inform young and old. Considering that the first magic performance known to man took place at the time Egypt was building pyramids and today man is still amazed at this art, such a program is really of great significance. The program of the magic performances has been well organized in order to offer various ages "their" kind of magic.

On March 3—6 at 3:30 p.m. in the Foyer, the magic wands will be swung for children six years and older. Ralfo, who specializes in tricks for the little ones; Marvelli, fastest illusionist in East and West; Hexy, whose show is "for the birds" with lots of doves; and The Bossis, who won the golden Buddha Statue at the Olympic Games for Magicians in Turkey, will bluff the little ones.

The tricks that Hardy has up his sleeves are recommended for children four to eight years of age. He lets the little ones take part in his show, which will take place at 4 p.m. in the club rooms of the Academy on March 3, 5 and 6 and also at 11 a.m. on March 5.

The illusionist Alexander Adrion puts on a show at 8 p.m. on March 3 and at 10 p.m. on March 5. On March 4 at 4:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. an evening of the magicians will be held in the Studio of the Academy with many magicians participating. Finally, table magic and telepathy will be demonstrated by various magicians, March 5, at 8 p.m. Tickets for adults cost between DM 4.20 and 8.20 and for children DM 2.20, and they can be obtained at the PX ticket agency or directly at the Academy.

If you go to any of the performances, bring along a little extra time, because there is also a display at the entrance of materials used by magicians — maybe you'll succeed in finding out some of their secrets . . .

A note to fans of the classic ballet: The German Opera will present "Giselle" Thursday and "Swan Lake" March 7. Order your tickets now at the PX ticket agency, if you plan to go.
