Policemen take races

by Thomas Jandris

On Saturday, Sept. 1, the Annual Berlin American International Cross-Country Meet was held in the Grunewald Forest.

The 52 contestants, representing British Forces, Berlin Brigade, The German Police and U. S. Forces, Berlin Brigade, struggled through wet sand and narrow paths, up steep hills and down treacherous gulleys.

There were two divisions included in the day's competition. The Senior Division was for men 35 years of age and older. The Open Division was designed to be more competitive and was open to anyone of any age.

Two German policemen amazed everyone by copping first and second in both the Senior and Open Divisions. Bernd-Dieter Hecht was the man who took first — both divisions. In the Senior Division Hecht was clocked at 10:48.3 for the distance of 3319 meters. In the Open division, which was twice the distance of the Senior course, the winning time was 20:57.0. Jurgen Brose, also of the German Police, also placed in both divisions taking second in each.

There was excellent presentation on the part of both British Forces and the German Police. Such fine inter-service and international cooperation contributed greatly to the success of the meet.

"Super Nick" Radoe was the only U. S. participant in the Senior division and Nick, as always, represented Berlin Brigade well.

In the Open Division, Jim Rose of AFN TV copped third place behind the two Germans. Gary Newman of HHC Sp Trps; Ron King, B Co. FSB; Bob Tablecat, A Co. FSB; Wilson Timmons of the C 94th; Robert Harman HHC Sp Trps; Tony Zimmerman, Svc Co.; Wally Frank, A Co. FSB; and Kevin Matthews of A Co. FSB represented Berlin Brigade in the open class.

Also competing in the races were Brad Malloy, Dave Aura and Robert Burbo of the Berlin American High School Cross-Country Team.

Following the meet, Berlin Brigade's Adjutant General, Major T. J. Leonard, presented awards to the tired but appreciative winners and participants.

In the European tradition, A. G. Special Services Sports Section also provided refreshments for all meet participants and guests, immediately following the awards presentation. Beer, soft-drinks and fruit were enjoyed by all.

All in all the day was most enjoyable for all those who participated and the friendship and sportsmanship exhibited between individuals and nations was encouraging.

AND THE WINNER IS . . . Bernd-Dieter Hecht, German policeman, took first place in both the Open and Senior Divisions at the Annual Berlin American International Cross-Country Meet.

TIRED BUT HAPPY — Both first and second place were taken by members of Berlin's police department. Jürgen Brose (left) placed second in both divisions and was more than happy to receive his award from MAJ T. J. Leonard (right), who made the award presentations.

4/6 gets new commander

by Norman G. Ham

Lieutenant Colonel Richard J. Kattar assumed command of Berlin Brigade's 4th Battalion, 6th Infantry from Major William T. McNamara in a change of command ceremony held here Friday, August 31, at 10 a. m.

Accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Kattar arrived in Berlin August 23. Prior to his assignment to Berlin, LTC Kattar attended the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island. A graduate from the University of Maine, Kattar has also attended the Armed Forces Staff College.

New assignment

Major McNamara, formerly the battalion's executive officer, has commanded the Vanguards since August 9, 1973. McNamara left Thursday for the states and his new assignment at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

A 13-year veteran of the Army, McNamara graduated from West Point in 1960. He also has a masters degree in international relations from Boston University.

Poor weather

Poor weather conditions forced the ceremony to be held in the bubble, behind the PX at McNair Barracks.

After McNamara's final review of the battalion, Brigadier General Robert D. Stevenson, commanding general, Berlin Brigade, passed the battalion colors from McNamara to Kattar as orders were read by Captain Antonio W. Medici II, battalion adjutant and S-1 officer.

The colors were then transferred to First Sergeant George L. Peters, the battalion Command Sergeant Major.

Command of troops was Major Michael C. Deprie, executive officer of the Vanguard battalion. Representing the battalion staff were Captain Antonio W. Medici II, adjutant and S-1 officer; Master Sergeant Luis Diaz-Matos, the battalion S-2; Major Lester W. Rooker, S-3 officer; and Captain Dan R. Bunnell, S-4 officer.

Good food & drink

Once again, the Infantry Hall of Honor at McNair Barracks was filled with delicious food and drink for the champagne reception which followed the ceremonies.

Distinguished guests included Colonel James T. Bradley, deputy brigade commander, Berlin Brigade, and Mrs. Bradley; Mrs. Robert D. Stevenson, wife of the commanding general; Colonel Leonard L. Lewane, chief of staff, USCOB, and Mrs. Lewane; Lieutenant Colonel Robert W. Riddle, commander of the King's Own Scottish Borderers; Major Rothkegel; and of course "4 Ring Annie."

'Reflection' wins the prize

The Berlin phase of the 15th Interservice Photography Contest was recently completed. The first prize of $15 was awarded to MAJ Donald P. Hanson for the above black & white photo, "Reflection of Amsterdam." Hanson is assigned to the U. S. Army Hospital, Berlin.

The $10 second prize went to SP4 Robert W. Freer of USBER Security for a B & W print entitled "Ghost." SP4 Stanley D. Beggs of HHC, Berlin Brigade, took the $5 third prize with a color transparency entitled "Atomic Togetherness." PV2 David C. Weitzel of Co. C, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, took honorable mentions in B & W prints and color transparencies. Other honorable mentions went to SP5 William S. Winter of Field Station, Berlin, for B & W prints; and to PV2 G. M. Shin of Co. B, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, for color transparencies.

The entries for the local competition were judged by Michael Bislech and Mrs. Helga Retzer of the Exhibit Section of the Amerika Haus. The Brigade AG Special Services Crafts Office has sent 16 B & W prints and eight color transparencies to the USAREUR competition, which is to be judged today.

What's inside

Alcohol

Military leaders seek new approaches in dealing with this common affliction

by Ralph Callaway

Alcohol abuse and alcohol abusers are two terms that are hard to define within the military. From the sociological point of view, alcohol abuse is the excessive use of alcohol, and the abuser is anyone who uses alcohol excessively. Of necessity, within the military the definitions are somewhat more limited.

Alcohol abuse within the military is usually defined as excessive use of alcohol that leads to loss of work performance, family or financial problems, or instances of public disorderliness or problems with the law. The abuser is the individual who has run into these problems.

Dealing with abuse

Part of the activities involved in the recent seminars held in Berlin (reported in last week's BO) are involved in educating commanders and supervisors in actions they can and should take in dealing with alcohol abuse within their units. The military definition of alcohol abuse is actually the point where commanders must take action of some sort.

In the past, such action was usually limited to UCMJ proceedings or elimination from the service. But efforts are now being made to make supervisors aware of actions they can take of a less severe nature which will accomplish a solution more favorable for the individuals involved and for the military.

Counseling and assistance

Commanders will go to school in the future and will learn ways of counseling and assisting their men in preventing abuse before it happens, and will also be shown how to work more closely with agencies available in Berlin for assisting individuals who have already shown that they are having a problem with alcohol. Some of these agencies include Alcoholics Anonymous, Community Drug and Alcohol Assistance Center (CDAAC) and the Army chaplains here in Berlin.

Greater emphasis than has been shown in the past will be placed on making the soldier aware of the harmful effects of alcohol abuse. (I know we've all heard "Don't drink and drive." But there are still accidents every year involving alcohol.) Hopefully, the result will be that the individual will take it on his own to not abuse alcohol.

While the program is making our community aware of the harmful effects of alcohol abuse, it will be training supervisors to better help men to handle their abuse problem before it gets out of hand.

Individual initiative

But it is still an individual program. In the coming months there is going to be a great deal of talk about the harmful effects of alcohol, and about organizations to help alcohol abusers. Commanders and supervisors are going to be going to school a lot and coming back and passing on some of what they've learned.

Throughout the entire thing, the big YOU will still be there. You are going to be asked to help a friend who is an alcohol abuser. Friends might be asked to help you.

A lot of emphasis will be placed on de-emphasizing alcohol within our society (it is apparent that some people have been led into drinking problems by pressure from their friends to drink) and on making it quite acceptable to go to a cocktail party and order a cup of coffee.

Clearing up myths

You will also hear of efforts to clear up some of the myths involved with alcoholism—you aren't an alcoholic because you lack the will-power to stop drinking. Will-power doesn't keep you from being an alcoholic any more than it will prevent the measles.

LIBRARY CORNER

Library's poor collection

At the Main Library, we have recently received a congratulatory letter from a University of Maryland professor. It was pleasantly fulsome in congratulations to the staff, which we very much appreciated. We don't get written kudos very often.

On the other hand, conspicuously absent were any compliments for the library collection—an omission with which I agree completely. Having just finished the shelf list inventory (thank you for your patience!), I am confirmed once again in my suspicion that we have a dandy collection of obsolescent—almost antique—books, particularly in the scientific and technological fields.

The worst limitation is in audio-visual materials, which are, in fact, almost non-existent. Young men and women just coming into the service have spent their early learning years with the television, media-instruction centers in their schools and with audio-visual equipment in public libraries.

No wonder so many of them don't use these libraries—for some people, their first and only visit is for clearance. Even worse, and more hurtful for me, are those we turn away because "No, we don't have tapes"; "No, we don't have any films on auto mechanics"; "I'm sorry, but we don't carry filmstrips"; "No, no C & W"; "No, that's all the soul we have"—ad nauseum.

Are these things really in the "nice-to-have" category? It is said that if you give a man a fish, he eats only once; but if you teach a man to fish, he eats for the rest of his life. And one picture is often worth a thousand words in the learning process.

I'll keep trying for them—you have a good week—and keep reading!

Jazz & Gospel group to perform at dinner

The Starlight Grove Club at McNair Barracks will be the scene tonight for a dinner to promote Berlin's "Ethnic Expo," scheduled for Nov. 15-17.

Besides a menu of ethnic dishes, guests at the banquet will be entertained by a host of local and "big-name" talent. The latter category was added to the playbill this week when a group of jazz and gospel musicians agreed to perform at the dinner.

Eddie Bonnemere, Ruth Brisbane and William McDaniel have been in Berlin since Wednesday to present a series of programs sponsored by the Chaplain Division. The three performers are well-known jazz and gospel musicians, composers and singers in the United States.

A host of local talent have been rehearsing for the past few weeks. This talent will include soloists, dancing troupes, actors and musicians.

Guest speaker for tonight's program will be MG Harold Hayward, former commander of the Berlin Brigade and now Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, at USAREUR & Seventh Army Headquarters.

The Ethnic Expo will be held probably in the Brigade Sports Center. The Expo will feature displays of black, Oriental, Mexican-American, Puerto Rican, Appalachian and American Indian cultures, and will be the only race relations exposition of its kind so far in USAREUR.

Combined Campaign to commence Sept. 20

The eighth Department of Defense Overseas Combined Federal Campaign will be conducted in Berlin from September 20 through October 31. The date for this activity have been shifted from winter to fall in order to bring this campaign in line with major fund-raising efforts in the United States.

This combined effort is the only regular on-the-job solicitation by authorized voluntary health and welfare agencies at overseas activities. Authorized organizations include 13 national health agencies, 10 international service agencies and the American National Red Cross.

The purpose of the appeal is to give all DoD personnel, both civilian and military, located at DoD overseas activities an opportunity to pledge through the payroll allotment system their individual citizen's share toward the support of the principal international and national health, welfare and social service agencies.

Through the many programs they conduct, these agencies make a very real contribution to the morale and welfare of the men and women overseas, and their families at home. They work toward better national health conditions through both research and clinical programs.

News Notes

Dental exams

As of September 4, the U.S. Army Hospital, Berlin, will schedule dental examinations by appointment only.

To make an appointment, call Berlin Military 4169, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. After making the appointment, the patient must pick up his appointment slip at the reception desk of the Dental Clinic not later than one week prior to the appointment. Those people who do not pick up the appointment slip on time will automatically have their appointments cancelled.

During the first appointment, the dentist will evaluate the patient's dental health. He will advise the patient of what treatment is required and what can be accomplished.

This change of procedure is an attempt to make dental examinations available to more patients.

3/6 tackles MISPIC

by Ralph Callaway

Part of the squad ATTs administered last month at Grafenwöhr to the members of the 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry included a period called MISPIC.

No, that doesn't mean someone goofed. It stands for Mechanized Infantry Squad Proficiency in Combat. And while it wouldn't seem to particularly apply to the men of 3/6 who are proud to be called "straight-leg" infantrymen, it was included to help test the men's flexibility and adaptability to mechanized situations.

Army terminology

In Army terminology, mechanized refers to those units who travel or fight in armored vehicles, motorized to those who do it in wheeled vehicles, and airborne or airmobile to those who arrive by air.

The MISPIC portion of the tests was also one of the few parts that used live fire of the squads' weapons. Firing at bunkers and targets, and seeing the impact of the weapons lent a more realistic feeling to the program than was felt in other portions when blanks were used.

Similar to combat

All of the squad weapons were used, including the grenade launchers and the 90mm recoilless rifle, letting all of the men fire their weapons in situations similar to actual combat.

HUSTLE IS THE word as members of Co. B, 3/6 pile out of an APC on the MISPIC course at Grafenwöhr last month.

Mark discovers KONTAKT & likes it

by Ned Morse

Mark was sitting at one of the tables in the salon of the boat when I managed to get over and speak with him. He was a quiet but pleasant type who had come on board a little nervously an hour before. When we spoke his nervousness left him and he was both relaxed and pleased with what he had found on this his first contact with KONTAKT.

Mark had been hearing of KONTAKT since he was in replacement school six months earlier, but he never thought he would enjoy meeting Germans.

Feeling "up-tight"

He expected he'd feel "up-tight"

with people he didn't know, that he would feel like an outsider and have a difficult time enjoying himself because he spoke only curry-stand German.

He told me, though, that he had grown a little tired of the night spots his buddies went to constantly. It had finally dawned on him that he had been in Berlin for half a year and knew, really, nothing about the city and its people.

Also Mark had heard from a friend who had been to a KONTAKT folksong evening that he'd really had a good time. Thus, when Mark heard about the boatride last Saturday he decided to give KONTAKT a try.

Glad he did

He said he was glad he did. The Germans and Americans on board had made him feel welcome, and he found the Germans spoke excellent English. In addition, the Berliners Mark met were willing to help him with his German and had invited him to join them at a pizza place after the boatride was over.

He said the boatride was a very enjoyable change from the pattern of bars-near-the-barracks he had gone to for the past six months, and said that he would certainly come to future KONTAKT programs.

Typical experience

I think Mark's experience is typical. If you find yourself constantly in the American ghetto, if it's difficult for you to break out of the American rut, why don't you give KONTAKT a try. Pick up a newsletter at the nearest service club and find out what's going on.

Upcoming KONTAKT events of interest include:

- Friday, Sept. 7: Ballroom dance party, Hi-Lite Service Club (coat and tie).

- Sunday, Sept. 9: Bicycle tour to vicinity of Funkturm and Olympic Stadium (meet at Main PX, 10 a.m. with lunch).

- Saturday & Sunday, Sept. 15 & 16 — KONTAKT Camping trip to Schwanenwerder. Cost: 25 DM (Reservations and details at KONTAKT office, 6809.)

Aquatics Club hosts swim meet

by Jim Donahue

The biggest thing to happen in international swimming this year was not the University Games in Moscow but instead the meet held August 27 at the Sports Center pool. On that day the Berlin American Aquatics Club (BAAC) hosted the combined British AYA and RAF swim club. The meet was the first of a long season that will extend to June of next year.

Competitive swimming is not new to Berlin but the enthusiasm that accompanied this recent meet with the British is. The meet was a development meet (where no team score is kept) and the boys and girls were racing for individual honors. Every swimmer on the BAAC team won at least one award and many went home with two or three.

No one realizes more than the coach of the swimming team that the American population in Berlin is very transient. The BAAC is constantly losing and gaining swimmers. However, it is felt that a lot of potentially good swimmers are not on the team because of lack of information. The BAAC will be holding its second tryout of the year at 9 a.m. Saturday Sept. 15, at the Sports Center pool for all boys and girls between the ages of 8 to 16. Previous competitive experience is not necessary but helpful. For further information call Jim Donahue at 6871.

Andrews Flag Football begins

I will be covering the flag football season this year for the Andrews League and hope to be just as "popular" as Vince Drosdik was with his softball coverage.

The flag football season started Tuesday where the softball season left off—that is, with a big bust by Special Services. Game time was delayed almost one hour because of a slight oversight on the part of Special Services, which was the lining of the field. We hope that this was just opening day problems and not a pattern for the season.

The officials for the games are from the Berlin American Officials Association and two officials are assigned to each game. One wonders how two men can competently cover a wide open game such as flag football. I covered the opening game and I must say that the officials did a good job for what they saw but there was a lot that was missed.

The game was between Co. B, Field Station Berlin, and those Keystone Cops of the sports program, Service Co., Special Troops. Co. B took advantage of the fact there were only two officials and did more holding than at a senior prom. Even with these tactics, Co. B showed very little considering Service Co. had nothing.

Co. B quarterback Mike Delabarre had scoring strikes of 10 and 18 yards thanks to Service Co. secondary taking lunch breaks. With no pass rush to contend with and his receivers wide open all day, the best Delabarre could do was throw side-arm passes that were way off the mark. Delabarre also ran 22 yards for B Co.'s last score with most of Service Co. making sure they didn't get in his way.

Service Co.'s lone and surprising score came in the fourth quarter when Tommy Caldwell, after having about 35 incomplete passes, realized he had to go to the ground game. Caldwell moved his team 35 yards and B Co. finally got caught for holding set the ball about one yard from the goal line. With fourth down and goal to go, Caldwell went over for the score. Final score 20-6 in favor of B Co., but it looks like a long season for them if Tuesday was one of their better days. As for Service Co., it looks like the only thing they may win football will be a few coin tosses.

Radio-TV fair closes Sunday

Have you been to the International Radio and TV Exhibition yet? This weekend is your last chance, because the exhibition closes at 7 p.m. Sunday and the next one will be in a couple of years. Be prepared for a very big crowd. I boxed my way through the halls last Sunday and must say that you really get bombarded with sights and sounds. From tiny batteries to complete TV studios in action, one has a lot of territory to cover. It is, by the way, pretty impossible to see everything.

I got the biggest kick out of the display the German Post Office set up. In a most witty way they make fun of themselves (you must know that they've been working with a huge deficit for years and are much criticized by the public).

When the air gets too sticky inside, wander through the pretty garden of the fairgrounds. At 2 p.m. a group of girls from Denmark called the "Odense Pigeante" parade to swinging marching music, and at 3 p.m. an international stage show featuring "Los Paraguayos" among others is held on the outdoor stage. This goes for today and tomorrow. On Sunday the Danish girls are on at 11 a.m. and at 2 p.m. a gymnastics demonstration is scheduled. The international stage show is on at 5:30 p.m.

At 5 p.m. on each day a fur fashion show can be viewed in the Palais am Funkturm (the restaurant straight ahead from the entrance on Masurenallee). Master of ceremonies for this event is Felix Knemoeller, who most of you know from the quiz show at the Volksfest.

These attractions are just a few sidelines of this great fair of the electronics industry. Why not go and take a look if you've nothing better planned for the weekend? Opening times: 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Admission fee: DM 4.

Greek pop singer
And then there is a Greek pop singer in the Philharmonie this Wednesday, Sept. 12. His name is Demis Roussos, he lives in Paris, was born in Egypt and his best-selling single was "Goodbye, My Love, Goodbye." Since I've not had the pleasure of hearing the gentlemen yet, I can't really tell you much about him, other than he mixes the folk themes of his youth with pop rhythm and instruments.

THE 1973 INTERNATIONAL Radio and TV Exhibition continues to draw large crowds at the Funkturm exhibition halls. It closes Sunday. (Photo courtesy AMK Berlin)

Hilton barbeque parties
While dwelling on Wednesday night, I want to once again call your attention to the barbeque parties at the Berlin Hilton, which are held each Wednesday night until the end of September beginning at 8 p.m. In the pretty terrace garden of the hotel a huge buffet with many different kinds of fresh salads and a grill with six kinds of meats are set up for these events and you can stuff yourself until midnight for 21.50 DM.

I've tried it out and can truthfully say, that the price is more than worth it. To my utter dismay, I couldn't manage to taste everything as I would. Later in the evening fires are lit in the garden and the band switches from dinner music to dance music, so that one can really make a night out of it. The word has gotten around that this is a good deal, so be sure to make reservations early by calling the Hilton.
