Operation Eagle of CSC-2/6 concludes as a skiing success

by Bill Sheehan

On March 10, the final phase of the Berlin Brigade's ski training program, "Operation Eagle", came to a close as the Radar/Redeye platoon, Combat Support Company, 2nd Bn, 6th Inf, made its final, triumphant return to the walled city.

"Operation Eagle," under the sponsorship of the Brigade's Adventure Training Program and under the leadership of SSG Sidney Katz, was initiated in December of last year with an intensive, eight day course in the basics of skiing, a course which drew immediate, enthusiastic response from all of its participants.

This phase, 11 days in duration, consisted of a combined program of downhill and cross-country skiing, and brought into use all of the skiers' newly-acquired skills, skills which won the R and R platoon 10 medals out of a possible 12 in the Garmisch ski competitions, held the previous December. According to Katz, however, none of the difficulties proved insurmountable, and "except for blisters," the program was carried through safely, unmarred by the appearance of any major obstacles.

The first five days of the program consisted mainly of setting up camp in the St. Andreasberg area of W. Germany's Harz mountains, and of attending classes in such varied subjects as the construction of snow shelters (with practical application) and methods of survival in wintry climates. On March 5, the skiers set out for the town of Torfhaus, central location for cross-country skiing, and five days of unbroken travel-by-skies began.

Their route, during the course of the first four days, took them from Torfhaus to such towns as Oderbruck, Braunlage, Altenau, Bad Lauderberg and Osterhagen.

On the fifth day, they completed their circuit of cross-country skiing and returned to the St. Andreasberg area, where an afternoon of downhill skiing marked the climax of their excursion. At 6 p.m. on March 10, the skiers loaded up and headed home. At 4 p.m. that afternoon, they arrived in Berlin and "Operation Eagle" was concluded.

The operation, according to Katz, was a success from beginning to end. Without singling any of the participants out for individual praise, Katz drew attention to the overall quality of the platoon's performance, and to the value of the Adventure Training program in general and to the ski training program in particular. He summed up his feelings on these matters by starting flatly that "... Operation Eagle was a great success, and was highly beneficial to my men, the Berlin Brigade and the United States Army."

AYA Junior All-Stars, Girls basketball teams win, reach finals

by John Gregg

The Junior Division AYA All-Star Basketball team won both games of the first round of the USAREUR Championships at Robinson Barracks near Stuttgart last Saturday.

Berlin slaughtered Bremerhaven in the first game, 62-11. Bill Curry led the well-balanced scoring with 15 points. Nine of the ten players scored in the lopsided victory.

The second game was with the much taller Kaiserslautern (Rheinland Pfalz) team, a contest touted as a real fight to the finish. But the Berliners once again proved their superiority by walking away with a 36-20 victory. Wardell Turner connected on several long range shots and led the scoring with 15 points.

Neither of these opponents could effectively break the devastating press put on by the Junior All-Stars. By winning both games, the boys earned a trip to Kaiserslautern where they will play Fulda tomorrow at 1 p.m. for the USAREUR Championship.

Senior All-Stars lose

Meanwhile, the Senior Division All-Stars Basketball team lost a close game to Rheinland Pfalz, 46-41. The leading scorers for Berlin were Tony Gasque with 15 points and Ray Edwards with 10. Berlin's full-court and half court press were so effective that Rheinland Pfalz had to use three time outs in the first period. By the beginning of the third period, they had used all five of their time outs.

At one time, the Berlin team led by as much as 7 points, 19-12, in the first half, and had a 21-1 lead at the end of the first half. Berlin led by 3 points most of the second half when a questionable technical foul on Tony Gasque plus two free throws by Rheinland Pfalz turned the game around.

Rheinland Pfalz beat Bamberg by 7 points in the semi-final game to qualify as the representative at K-town.

Girls team wins two

The Girls AYA Basketball team, under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Bland, won both of its games last weekend to advance into the finals at Kaiserslautern tomorrow.

In the first game, Berlin's girls beat Nordbayern 18-4 with Judy Sinnard leading the scoring with 8 points. The second game was closer with Berlin again coming out on top, 19-15. Gayle Garrison led the scoring with 8 points.

Tomorrow the Girls team will play against Frankfurt at Kaiserslautern at 3 p.m. The Girls team record now stands at 16-2.

3/6 is tops in reenlistments in USAREUR in January

by Al Soto

The 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry recently received a certificate from General Michael S. Davison, Commander in Chief of USAREUR and 7th Army, "for attaining the highest Enlistment and Reenlistment of first term personnel for the month of January 1973" of all USAREUR battalions.

Cited were Lieutenant Colonel Richard E. Buchalter, battalion commander, and Sergeant First Class Thomas F. England, the assigned career counselor. Major General William W. Cobb, U. S. Commander, Berlin, also praised the unit, saying that the "distinction reflects the soundness" of its leaders, adding that the battalion had "created an environment in which young men wish to serve."

SPRING IN BERLIN has finally arrived and we hope it stays a while. Flowers are just starting to bud and will soon look like these in the vicinity of the Funkturm.

Berlin has one of the best park systems of any city in the world, with the huge, famous Grunewald providing footpaths, lakes and play areas for weekend strollers. Don't vegetate at the barracks this weekend — vegetate in the Grunewald and enjoy the (hopefully) beautiful weather while it lasts. (Photo courtesy AMK Berlin)

Article 15 myths

Eavesdrop on a bunch of "barracks lawyers" rapping about Article 15 sometime. You'll probably come up with about the same amount of factual information that would emerge from a similar discussion on what causes warts.

Article 15 is a legitimate part of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ). But it is not a club which can be used by a commander to discipline anyone he doesn't happen to like, disregarding clearly spelled-out military legal rights. Your basic legal rights don't just disappear in a puff of smoke when you enter the service.

First, not just anyone can impose an Article 15 — only the commanding officer of a unit, or (on rare occasions) someone to whom the authority has been legally delegated. And it can only be given for some clearly stated act or omission which has breached the UCMJ.

An NCO can't give an Article 15 on his own. He has to convince the commander that it is merited, so he had better be sure on his facts. And — contrary to widespread misunderstanding — neither can a Judge Advocate. His job is to make sure that everything is done by the book.

How many Service members know that they don't have to accept an Article 15? They can say "no," and will then probably be given an opportunity to present their cases at a court-martial, more like a civilian trial.

Before requesting a court-martial remember this: although an Article 15 does go onto a military record affecting promotions, assignments or security clearances, it doesn't return with you to civilian life as a court-martial conviction would. There is no need to even mention an Article 15 to a prospective employer.

If you're about to have an Article 15 laid on you, make sure that the commander (who is just as interested as you are in getting at the truth), knows all about your side of the story.

How? It's quite simple. Talk to a legal officer immediately — before you sign anything. That's why he's there. That's what the government pays him for — to advise you. (You can't beat the price, either. It's free.) He will see that your specifically stated right to have written statements or other pertinent documentary evidence attached to the file is observed.

Now wait just a minute before you run out and nail up a shingle as a gilt-edged barracks lawyer! These are just a few sketchy highlights of a very complex subject. Go to an expert, the one best qualified to lead you through legal bramble patches — your legal officer. It's your right.

Have you written home?

by Al Soto

Every seasoned soldier will tell you that correspondence from the folks back home is the most welcome morale builder. When a private has left home, he is given a lift by the mail he receives from "Mom and Dad" and his friends.

Such home ties are renewed through the mail one receives. The letters from home need not contain much news since even a word of greeting suffices to help one over the rough spots of military life.

Conversely, this situation calls for regular correspondence on the soldier's part. Write home frequently and keep the folks informed about your progress in the Army. Your parents certainly show enough interest in you to the extent of making sacrifices for your welfare.

Suspense and lack of knowledge concerning your whereabouts can harm your parents in many ways. At times, such a situation is unavoidable, but most of the time it is neglect on the part of the soldier that causes this sorrow to his parents and friends.

You certainly can find a few moments to jot down a brief note or at least a greeting card which will put them at ease. Then, when the situation gets a bit rough and you are not able to keep them informed, they will understand. Be faithful and regular in your correspondence to those loved ones you left back home.

LIBRARY NOTES

by Miriam Steward

Hope we haven't upset anyone. We shuffled the card catalog at Crump Hall Library around just a bit so perhaps we should explain ourselves. The card catalog, as you know, is a complete listing of all books in the library by author, title and subject.

All we've done is taken the mix and separated it, so now you have an author file, a title and a subject file. We think you'll find it easier to work with from an alphabetical viewpoint, and it reduces considerably the possibility of misfiling (and really losing!) cards.

Users of McNair and Andrews libraries have already experienced this type of arrangement, as have recent arrivals from the "land of the round doorknobs." It is an eminently sensible one — sorry we didn't get to it sooner. The questions you ask help us to serve you — and make library work a pleasure, so don't hesitate. Keep reading — and have a good week.

Beginning April 2, the libraries at Andrews and McNair Barracks will be closing for dinner break at a new time — 4-4:30 p. m.

Women in our military past

Women have served alongside their men since the beginning of the Nation's Armed Forces.

In 1776, when John Corbin of the Pennsylvania Artillery went off to war, his wife followed him to the battlefield. She was beside him when a cannoner at a nearby gun was wounded. Molly caught up the fallen rammer, stepped to the muzzle of the gun and took over his duties. When her husband slumped to the ground mortally wounded, his widow served the gun until she too was seriously wounded.

Later, upon her release to the Army's Invalid Corps, Molly Corbin lived the rest of her life as a typical old soldier with the invalid regiment at West Point. Dubbing herself "Captain Molly," she wore an artillery coat and insisted on salutes as her right. After her death, her body was moved from an obscure grave to the cemetery at the U.S. Military Academy, where she is now interred beneath a statue commemorating her role.

Because Revolutionary War records are scanty, it is not known how many women served in the Army, but the National Archives has record of a deposition for a pension claim by a black woman Revolutionary soldier named Deborah Gannett who enrolled in the Army under the name of Robert Shurtleff. In a skirmish with Tories at Tappan Zee, she received a saber wound across the left side of the head. At East Chester, she received a serious musket wound in the thigh. Rather than risk exposure, she allowed the wound to heal unattended.

In November 1782 she served with her company at Fort Ticonderoga in action against the Indians. Upon being exposed, she received an honorable discharge. Massachusetts awarded her a bonus and Congress in 1805 gave her a pension of $4 a month as an invalid soldier; in 1818, this sum was doubled.

Later, as perhaps the first lady lecturer in the Nation, she delivered a set speech about her experiences and concluded by appearing in military costume to perform the manual of arms.

In the Revolutionary era and after, women often went along with men on military expeditions as laundresses, wives and nurses. An officer's wife very often accompanied her husband. An enlisted man's wife, wishing to accompany her husband, was usually listed on the rolls of the unit as a washerwife, and drew rations no pay.

Women were often casualties along with their men. When the Indians attacked an Army column under the command of General St. Clair in 1791, among the more than 900 dead and wounded left on the battlefield were 30 women who had been accompanying the expedition.

A heroine of the Mexican War period was Sarah Borginis. Noted for her bravery at Fort Brown in 1846, she later made cartridges for the troops at Buena Vista. When she died in 1866, she was given a military funeral.

A large number of women, disguised as men, enlisted in Civil War units—400 in the Union armies alone.

Dr. Mary Elizabeth Walker, the second woman to graduate from Syracuse University Medical School, served as a contract surgeon with the Union Army. She was captured by Confederates at Chattanooga and imprisoned in Richmond. In January, 1866 she was awarded the Medal of Honor for her wartime services. (Her award was later revoked in 1917.)

Sarah Emma Edmonds, under the alias of Franklin Thompson, served for two years as soldier, spy and nurse in Company F, 2d Michigan Infantry with no one suspecting her true sex. When faced in 1863 with hospitalization after a recurrence of malaria, Miss Edmonds deserted rather than be identified as a woman. In 1886 she received an honorable discharge.

Seventeen-year old Annie Ellingridge of Detroit, Michigan, served as an Army nurse throughout the Civil War without compensation. Troops in the 2d Michigan Infantry called her "Gentle Annie," yet she participated in 28 engagements and had two horses killed beneath her. For her "noble sacrifice and heroic service" to the Union Army she received the Kearny Cross of Valor—one of the Union's highest battle decorations.

Kady Brownell was as skillful a shot and as expert a swordsman as any soldier in her husband's 5th Rhode Island Infantry Regiment. During General A. E. Burnside's 1862 expedition to Roanoke Island, North Carolina, her bravery saved the regiment from destruction. The Rhode Islanders were passing through a dense wood when another Union unit mistook them for Confederates and opened fire. Unmindful of personal danger, Mrs. Brownell grabbed the regimental colors, dashed in front of the men and vigorously waved the flag until the identity of the regiment became known.

by Bob Sader

Last Saturday evening the doors of the Folke-Bernadotte Youth Center opened wide as KONTAKT and the district of Steglitz sponsored a "Get Acquainted Night" for young Germans and Americans. The evening was a success. The reason was obvious: everyone there was looking for, and found, the same thing — each other.

KONTAKT is the German-American youth organization in Berlin that exists to bring young people of both nations together. Through KONTAKT, many American military personnel have already formed fast friendships with young Berliners. They have found that the similarities in the youth of today far outweigh the differences. They took the opportunity KONTAKT provided to find German friends.

The happening Saturday night at the Folke-Bernadotte Youth Center demonstrated how interested the district of Steglitz is in encouraging close personal friendships between young Berliners and American soldiers. Steglitz provided the youth center and insured a comfortable atmosphere with candles, snacks and background music.

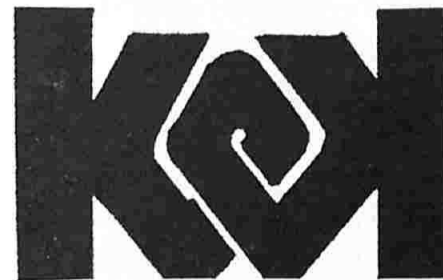

The gathering was small: only about 35 people in all. Those who came, however, found what they were looking for — young people ready to talk, ready to relate to each other. Whether it was a game of pool, a table tennis match or a deep political conversation, everyone seemed to find the medium in which he could express himself. Beer and coke were available at a small price. The atmosphere lent itself to just sitting down and introducing yourself. That is what most people did.

This mixer last week proved the premise on which the whole KONTAKT program is based: everyone has the opportunity to reach out, if he just tries. Friendship and understanding should not end at boundaries of nationality.

KONTAKT is co-hosting two more get-together evenings in April:

April 26, 7 p.m. at the Hi-Lite Service Club, Andrews Barracks.

April 28, 7:30 p.m. at the Folke-Bernadotte Youth Center in Steglitz, Jungfernstieg 19 (just off Koenigsbergerstraße, within walking distance of both Andrews and McNair caserns).

Will you be there? For further information on these activities, or any of KONTAKT's many interest groups, call Berlin Military 6809.

Housing costs data survey

HEIDELBERG — The annual Housing Costs Data Survey will take place in April, two months earlier than usual, in an attempt to bring early relief to military personnel living on the German economy, who have been hardest hit by the recent devaluation of the dollar.

The survey is used to determine eligibility for Station Housing Allowance (SHA), the extra money that many military personnel are entitled to if their duty station is in an area where housing costs are high. The SHA is in addition to the Basic Allowance for Quarters (BAQ).

The survey will include all military personnel — Army, Navy and Air Force who live on the economy, whether or not they are eligible for government quarters. The Army alone has over 30,000 families who will be included in the survey.

When completed, the survey results will be sent to the Per Diem Travel and Transportation Allowance Committee in Washington, D. C. The committee reviews the reported housing costs for each area, comparing them to the BAQ, and awards SHA where justified. The amount of the allowance depends on the individual's duty station, his pay grade, and whether his dependents are command sponsored.

In Frankfurt, for example, an E-4 with command sponsored dependents now receives an SHA of $.80 per day, while an E-4 whose family is not command sponsored receives $.55 per day.

Housing Survey

Based on the results of last year's survey, the number of locations in Germany authorized SHA increased from 14 to 32. (When the dollar was devalued in February, 33 more locations were added to the list.)

In spite of increases in SHA based on last year's survey, some shortcomings were noted. Many personnel did not respond, and some who did respond failed to report all of their housing costs, resulting in the reduction or loss of SHA in some areas.

A USAREUR spokesman said that full and accurate reporting of all housing costs, including such expenses as electricity, gas and water, is essential for all servicemen who want to "do something" about rising housing costs.

The survey forms (DD Form 376) will be provided to all units by local Army and Air Force family housing offices.

G.I. Bill guide book

A 35-page "best seller" is off government presses for the 10th time to chronicle G. I. Bill changes and other benefits for veterans and their dependents.

Formally titled Federal Benefits for Veterans and Dependents, the book also carries a filing reference of Fact Sheet (VA-IS-1).

Each year the booklet is updated to incorporate the latest improvements in veterans benefits such as G.I. Bill education assistance, vocational rehabilitation, compensation, pension, home loans, and life insurance. It also lists the locations of VA offices and hospitals, and the locations of VA's 44 drug abuse treatment centers.

The new booklet, compared to earlier editions, traces the rise in benefits that has helped add more than $3.6 billion dollars to the VA budget in the past four years. Education benefits for Vietnam veterans, for example, are double those paid Korean Conflict veterans, and there have been two raises in the past four years for an increase of 70 percent. During the same period, compensation for service connected conditions has been raised by 22.4 percent, widows' dependency and indemnity compensation service connected death benefits by 31.4 percent, and income maintenance pension for disabled veterans with no service connected problems by 18.2 percent.

The VA booklet also covers veterans programs administered by other government agencies. These include job-finding assistance by the Department of Labor, Civil Service job preference rules, loan programs in the Small Business Administration and Department of Defense information.

Copies of the booklet are available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20420 for 30 cents each.

'Las Vegas' 1973 Volksfest

Construction for the 13th German-American Volksfest will begin officially after a ground-breaking ceremony May 3 (Thursday) at 11 a.m. on BBde Sports Center Field Volksfest site on Marshallstrasse in Dahlem.

Major General William W. Cobb, U. S. Commander, Berlin; Brigadier General Robert D. Stevenson, Commanding General, Berlin Brigade; and Zehlendorf District Mayor Dr. Wolfgang Rothkegel will turn the first shovelful of earth marking the start of the re-creation of "Las Vegas of Today and Yesteryear."

LAS VEGAS, the entertainment capital of the world, is the theme of the 1973 Volksfest. An architect's model of the Volksfest area as it will look upon completion will be displayed at the ground-breaking.

Visitors to the Volksfest this year can enjoy many exciting rides and games of chance. There will be an ample supply of hamburgers, soft drinks, beer and mixed drinks to sustain their hunger and quench their thirst.

The 13th annual Volksfest will be the most interesting U. S. Army sponsored community relations event of its kind in Europe.

Plan now for summer

Water Patrol needs people

Application for duty with the Armed Forces Recreation Center's water patrol may still be made. Deadline for applying for the summer duty at Berchtesgaden, Chiemsee and Garmisch is April 1.

Enlisted members of the Army and Air Force may apply for water patrol duty as detailed in USAREUR Regulation 26-157 and USAFE Regulation 215-19. Applications are to be sent to: Commanding Officer, Armed Forces Recreation Center; ATTN: Sergeant Major; APO 09053.

In addition, each applicant must: give the location and date of satisfactorily completing a senior lifesaving or water safety instruction course, be able to swim 400 meters non-stop, demonstrate good form in side and breast stroke, perform surface dives and tread water for at least five minutes.

Personnel receiving proficiency pay, scheduled for proficiency pay testing or awaiting the results of such testing are not eligible to apply for the water patrol duty.

Make AFRC reservations now

Winter is fading and summer vacation planning by the military personnel in Europe is well underway.

If you are planning a vacation to one of the Armed Forces Recreation Center areas at Berchtesgaden, Chiemsee or Garmisch now is the time to think about making reservations.

Reservations for a visit to the recreation areas may be made as much as 90 days in advance by telephoning or writing the appropriate billeting office.

The request for reservations should include your name, grade, unit, APO, number of persons in your party, age and sex of children, and your arrival and departure dates.

Reservations are held until 6 p.m., later if you notify the billeting office you will be late, on the date of your arrival.

After this time unclaimed reservations are given to persons on the waiting list for that day.

For reservations write or call: Berchtesgaden Billeting Office, APO 09108, Berchtesgaden Military (2538) 823 or 623; Garmisch Billeting Office, APO 09053, Garmisch Military (2535) 757 or 557; and Chiemsee Recreation Area, APO 09108 and by calling Munich Military and ask for Chiemsee or Prien Civilian 08051/9264. Campsite reservations are also made through Chiemsee.

AFRC camp site at Chiemsee

May 25 has been set as the opening date for the Armed Forces Recreation Center Camp Site at the Chiemsee Recreation Area.

Located on the shores of Germany's largest inland lake, Chiemsee, the camp site affords the opportunity for some of the finest swimming, boating and water skiing in the republic. For the less energetic campers, the blue water lake and mountain scenery are more than conducive for relaxation.

In close proximity to the camp site are such conveniences as foodland, washers and dryers, showers and bathroom facilities, barbeque pits and picnic tables. Also in the area are a PX, Stars and Stripes book store and sports shop.

Chiemsee camp site is operated similar to the well equipped European camps. Campers provide their own tents and a small fee is charged for the use of the site. This year's fee is $3 per day which includes site rental, auto parking fee and any number of persons in the camping party.

The site has space to accommodate 90 tents. Reservations will be accepted on a first come, first served basis and should be made by writing Chiemsee Recreation Area, Attn: Camp Site, APO 09108.

When making reservations, please state the number in your party, as well as arrival and departure dates. The camp site is open to all military personnel, dependents and authorized civilians.

Boy Scouts summer camps

The Transatlantic Council of the Boy Scouts of America announced it will again operate camps throughout Europe this summer for boys enrolled in the scouting program.

With seven camps in six countries, the council expects a total participation of 3,500 boys in 1973.

Qualified adult camp members are needed for the camps to be camp commissioners, nature directors, rifle and marksmanship instructors, archery instructors, aquatic instructors, cooks, medics, drivers and handymen.

Military personnel selected to staff positions will be placed on administrative temporary duty orders. Payment of separate rations will be authorized.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Transatlantic Council at Heidelberg hospital (2122) 611 or Mr. Kenneth Singletary, at Patch military (2921) 8207; or by writing the Boy Scouts of America, Transatlantic Council, APO 09102, or Mr. Singletary, BSA Spt Act EUCOM, APO 09131.

Bears drop first game in 19 to Tus Lucerne, 25-24

by Mike Dunn

Thanks to an erratic offense and a mistake-plagued defense, the Berlin Bears Team Handball Team dropped its first encounter in their last 19 games, on Tuesday in action at the Berlin Brigade Sports Center. The opponent was TUS Lucerne and the final score, 25-24. The Bears jumped off to their normally accepted start, grabbing a 4-1 lead less than four minutes into the first period. As the period came to a close, however, it was obvious that the Bears were not experiencing one of their finer games. Trading goal for goal, the Bears mounted a 13-8 lead in the second period before their opponents moved to close the gap.

The first two periods saw Joe Boland leading the offensive attack, but the third and final period forced another abrupt change. Playing with an outstanding defense and just sufficient enough offense, TUS Lucerne grabbed its first lead at 21-20, then increased this one more goal before being tied at 22-22. Each team managed to knot the score at 23 all, before TUS Lucerne garnered two quick goals with less than four minutes remaining.

With 3:50 remaining on the clock, TUS Lucerne borrowed a chapter from the old Berlin Bears and went into a stall. The Bears, with the aid of a "chaser" defense, finally managed a steal and a slick goal by defensive specialist Tom Jandris. However, that was the extent of the Bears attack as they failed to regain possession of the ball in time to score the tying point.

Giving credit where credit is due, a major cause for the Bears loss was the TUS Lucerne defense that all but eliminated the Bears patented fastbreak. For the Bears now, it is time to begin a new streak. A good opportunity presents itself on Sunday, April first, at 4 p.m. at the BBde Sports Center. The Bears play BSC IV in an attempt to raise their league record to nine wins, no losses.

Soccer Kwick Kicks

by Ray Stahl

Foul throw-ins: Last week's big soccer splash unintentionally failed to mention that the U. S. Air Force carried the entire burden (league fees, uniforms and physical equipment) of the soccer program up until this season. Air Force Special Services has provided the foundation and impetus that has brought the program forward.

Drop ball: The U. S. Forces did not have their home opener in the league this past weekend (no home field at the time). They could have played at the opponent's home pitch, but Forces would have then lost an all-important home match.

Direct free kick: The Royal Air Force at Gatow has come to the immediate rescue of the American Soccer Club by providing an excellent pitch on their ground for the Forces' match tomorrow starting at 11 a.m. The opposition will be the always volatile GASAG.

Goal scorers: In an "A" team match last Sunday, the Forces surprised a British signal platoon team by a score of 5-2 with Bruce Dubavecki scoring a hat-trick. Next "A" team match will be this Sunday at Montgomery Barracks at 10:30 a.m.

Personality sidelights: Ex-Forces player Tim Spokane, former inside-out, has ETSed and is presently enjoying a lucrative career as a pearl diver in Flagstaff, Arizona. So far he has the business all to himself. Add look-alikes: Forces sturmer Russ Williams and Robert Redford.

Soccer tip for the week: Use the instep and not the toe for more control. (This tip need not be applied only to soccer.)

Mountain Climbing

by Pat Tracey

The last article of this column provided information on the subject of boots, the basic foundation of mountain hiking and climbing. Therefore, it follows naturally that socks should be dealt with next.

Wool is the best material — for comfort, insulation, sweat absorption and durability. The durability of wool socks can be increased by 10-15% nylon reinforcement throughout, with up to 40% at the heels and toes. Also check a shrink resistant label.

The sock's thickness depends on the temperament of each individual's feet — whether they are cold or hot, soft or hard. Some people prefer to wear only one pair of socks with their boots, but two pairs will help reduce friction between boots and feet. Thinner socks are worn inside with a heavier pair over them. It is a good idea to take along the socks you intend to use when buying boots to allow for their thickness when trying boots on.

Brightly colored socks, such as red, have several advantages over plain white. They do not show dirt as much and they are very easy to keep track of. Because of their color, they will brighten up any pictures of you. An extra safety bonus, in case of accident, is their greater visibility.

Like any wool clothing, socks should be carefully washed and thoroughly rinsed and dried. They ought to be washed often, especially in hot weather. Dirty socks are ineffective — they can cause blisters, will insulate poorly and absorb less sweat.

BAHS soccer teams split two

by Wally Roberts

The Berlin American High School Soccer Team, coached by Pete Milhade and Jim Elwood, went down to defeat last Friday to a Munich team seeking revenge for last year's defeat. The Mustangs started out with a lot of hussle, but when the first half ended the score was 0 to 0.

The second half started with an easy score for the Mustangs. The second score came on a penalty kick. From then on the goalie, John Howard, put on a great showing playing in his first varsity game of the year. The Mustangs weren't finished as they scored one more, beating the Cubs 3-0.

The B team started off on the right foot as David Gillentin scored early in the first half and the Cubs got their defense together. The only threat by the Mustangs came close to the end of the game when the Mustangs got loose in front of the net. Keith Tood played a perfect game, with his first shutout of the year, as the Cubs put the Mustangs down 1-0.

Track action

The Berlin Track team traveled to Frankfurt this past week with only four competitors. Ray Sewell placed fourth in the long jump with an 18 foot, 2 inch jump, and fifth in the low hurdles. The three other men were Danny Shenefield, running the 1/2 mile, Robert Bourbo running the mile, and Peter Dauberman running the 2 mile. The track team will be in Bonn next week.

Learn to Ski Weeks continue

Near record numbers of aspiring skiers have taken part in the Armed Forces Recreation Center's "Learn to Ski Weeks" already this year but there are still several "Ski Weeks" remaining in the season.

"Learn to Ski Weeks" will continue at the Garmisch Recreation Area through April and at the Berchtesgaden Recreation Area through March, snow conditions permitting. Also, Garmisch has scheduled a special Easter Ski Week for children 8-12 years of age April 22-28.

Plenty of snow and excellent skiing conditions have resulted in two more "Learn to Ski Weeks" being added to the Berchtesgaden Recreation Area's schedule.

The two additional "Ski Weeks" will start April 1 and 8 and are open to all authorized patrons of the Armed Forces Recreation Center. Dependents must be 12 years of age or older and those under 18 must be accompanied by an adult.

Cost of the ski week at Garmisch is $55 plus billeting charges and at Berchtesgaden $50 plus fees for billeting. These costs include complete equipment, five days of instruction, lift fees, awards and graduation banquet. It also includes all meals from Monday morning through Friday evening at Berchtesgaden and at Garmisch a daily skiers breakfast, candle light dinner, special skiers supper, and a Bavarian beer bust (soft drinks for juniors).

Reservations for a "Learn to Ski Week" at Berchtesgaden may be made by writing: BRA Billeting Office, Attn: Ski Week, APO 09108 or by calling Berchtesgaden Military (2538) 823 or 623. For enrollment in a Garmisch ski week write: GRA Billeting Office, Attn: Ski Week, APO 09053 or call Garmisch Military (2535) 757 or 557.

Raquel Welch sprouts wheels as the 'Kansas City Bomber'

by Vincent A. Drosdik, III

Raquel Welch has some body, but doesn't show enough of it for some people. It's part of her game plan — she wants to be known as an actress, not a sex symbol. And she seems to be going quite well at it, playing a wide variety of roles, including her latest as the KANSAS CITY BOMBER. The exciting drama includes professional roller derbyists to add realism to the sometimes violent film. Increased admission for this one, of course.

Malcolm McDowell is a young cripple who falls in love with Nannette Newman, a paralytic, in LONG AGO TOMORROW, rated PG.

Stanley Baker plays an aging James Bond type who has to be comeback of the year to keep in good stead with his bosses in INNOCENT BYSTANDERS. Geraldine Chaplin also stars in this intrigue rated PG.

An ex-Green Beret, Jim Brown, goes on the prowl after a bomb kills his parents in SLAUGHTER. The Syndicate was responsible and does every dirty trick it can to stop Brown from doing justice to the killer. Stella Stevens also stars in this R-rated flick with increased admission.

Sandy Duncan is STAR SPANGLED

LED GIRL in a revival rated PG.

"Funny Face" is a championship swimmer who goes to Hollywood to train for the Olympic swimming team. She gets involved in politics, an underground newspaper, and gets into a conflict between love and politics. Tony Roberts also stars.

Sorry, no short subjects, cartoons or football highlights this week.

Fine Tuning

Archie Bunker on AFTV Tuesday

by Al Zemsky

Pity the poor Program Director. If I had a nickle (better make that a 10 pfennig piece) for every phone call I have received at AFTV asking why we don't run "All In The Family," I could retire in less than 20 years. The pre-recorded response has been a patient explanation of how some programs are restricted in certain areas of the world due to the wish of that program's distributor to try to sell his product commercially in that area, rather than allow it to air free of charge (except for print costs) on AFTV.

Such has been the case of "All In The Family," as well as other notables like "Mary Tyler Moore," "Mission: Impossible," "Gunsmoke," "Ironside," and, well, you fill in the rest.

EES bread gets color coded twist

MUNICH — The European Exchange System will help you eat fresher bread with a new color code system called GROWBY.

The new method of coding was suggested by EES customer Mrs. R. I. Pearson of Frankfurt. The color code on bread used by EES indicates the day of bake, which in the past spelled BRYGWO when each first letter of the color was placed in order of its corresponding day.

Mrs. Pearson suggested juggling the colors around to form the acronym GROWBY: green (Monday), red (Tuesday), orange (Wednesday), white (Thursday), blue (Friday), yellow (Saturday), as a bread freshness code. EES adopted her suggestion, and on 1 April all bread sold in all EES foodlands and military commissaries will be twist-tied with the new color coding system.

So remember, GROWBY eating EES bread, each and every color coded day of the week.

POV licenses

The USAREUR Registrar of Motor Vehicles has announced that anyone issued a USAREUR POV driver's license valid for three years between July 1970 and Feb. 1971 is authorized a one-year extension without re-examination. This is provided for in USAREUR Reg 190-2 which states "licenses are valid for 4 years, unless sooner suspended or revoked."

Personnel may have this extension by completing AE Form 3398, having it stamped at the local POV Driver Testing Station, and mailing it along with their present license to USA-REUR Registry of Motor Vehicles, APO 09403. A new license will be issued. The original copy of AE Form 3398 acts as a temporary permit in the interim.

That AFTV-Germany does not suffer half the restrictions imposed on AFTV-Berlin is a sad but geographically relevant fact.

However, occasionally there is a happy reconsideration on the part of program distributors which results in the lifting of restrictions and happiness all around. Such is the case in April, when AFTV-Berlin will commence broadcasting two very popular comedy programs previously unavailable here.

American's highest rated program, "All In The Family," debuts, at long last, on April 3. "Family" has raised quite a row in the States these past two years in its representation of blue collar conservatism (as depicted by Archie Bunker and his wife Edith) vs younger generation liberalism (their liberated daughter Gloria and her unemployed husband Michael). No social taboo escapes the analysis of the Bunker family, with the result: hilarity.

"The Carol Burnett Show," which has not been aired in Berlin for over two years, returns beginning Saturday, April 7. Another previously restricted program, La Burnett offers an hour of variety and music with guest stars plus her own company of "regulars."

"Sanford and Son," seen here last year, also returns on Saturday nights. Be watching for Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson in their philosophic disputes over the junk business and mankind.

Locally, AFTV-Berlin will begin yet another new community program entitled "Answer Line." It will air Monday evenings, and present a guest manager from services in the Berlin area. Viewers will be able to phone-in questions to these guests and they will be answered on the air.

Outdoor cafés beckon us

The nice thing living in a four-season climate is that one appreciates the first sunny and warm days much more. It must be terribly dull on a tropical island where the sun shines all the time. Anyway, the city dwellers headed for the great outdoors last weekend and a few early birds even got out the bikinis. Great times for bird watchers are ahead and a stroll on Ku-Damm is quite "interesting" already. On such a stroll I discovered a pretty little café, which I highly recommend to all those who care for the European charm.

The place is called "Pientka Café" and is located directly on the Ku-Damm next to the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church across from the Wertheim Department Store. From 8:30 a.m. to midnight you can ruin your figure here in a cozy atmosphere with a variety of delicate cakes and pastries, ice cream dishes or hearty snacks. Wines and other brews are also on the menu, which you can read without problems since it is in English, too. On warm days you can sit outside. Early shoppers might be interested to know that breakfast is served here until 1 p.m.

Bockbierfest continues

Back to indoor activities — the nights are still pretty chilly. If you still haven't made it over to the Neue Welt on Hasenheide in Neukoelln for the merry old Bockbierfest, you better get a move on it. The fest, which began some time in November of last year, is coming to an end tomorrow. That means you can come and taste the dark brew (Bockbier) or, of course, any other kind of drinks, tonight and tomorrow night. Music, dancing, grilled ox and various kinds of amusements are typical for this happening. It's most fun if you come as a group.

Tonight and tomorrow night those adorable dolls which the Frenchman André Tahon has brought to Berlin, put on their variety show for the last time in the Sportpalast. Even though these dolls are of wood and cloth, they entertain you in a most delightful manner. Peppy music, imaginative costumes and a charming humor are characteristic of an evening with Tahon's company. If you don't know just what to do this weekend, get yourself some tickets at the ticket agency or directly at the Sportpalast. A sure-fire tip for getting into a good mood. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Workshop of Free Music

Anybody for experiments, improvisations, new sounds? Visit the Academy of Arts in the Hansa Districts this weekend. From 9 p.m. on you can wander through the exhibition rooms tonight, tomorrow night and Sunday and have a listen at the "Workshop of Free Music" for only DM 2.20. Informal concerts will be played by the Chris McGregor Group, the New Jazz Trio with Manfred Schoof, the Globe Unity Orchestra, the Mengelberg-Bennink Duo, Burton Greene and Brötzmann/van Hove/Bennink. This workshop is thought as a possibility to pass on information about free, improvised music of soloists or groups. For DM 2.20 what can you lose? It might be pretty interesting.

Or how about pop, jazz and rock "made in Poland"? In the Hochschule für Musik on Hardenbergstrasse you'll get to hear just that next Thursday, April 5, at 8 p.m. when Poland presents "Niemen."

Philharmonie fare

The playbill of the Philharmonie is quite international the middle of next month. On April 10 Jose Feliciano will bring music from the home front.

Two nights later, April 12, one of the most fascinating ladies of the chanson, Juliette Greco, will bewitch her fans.

A beauty from Israel, Daliah Lavi, will sing international pop songs on April 16.

The PX ticket agency will be glad to get tickets for you.

That's all I have to say for now and for the month of April. Those far off places are calling yours truly. Hope that somebody here will miss me. See you in May!
