THE

SAN ANTONIO

VF opens July 25!

THE EYES OF TEXAS may not be upon them, but everyone in Berlin who attends the 14th German-American Volksfest will see the Volksfest Queens, Maureen Bartsch (left) and Marilyn Kay Hover at "Fiesta San Antonio". This year's Volksfest promises to be bigger and better than ever. With queens as pretty as these are, how could it be otherwise? (Photo by Arthur MacDonald)

Some helpful hints about the Volksfest

Because of the large crowds expected at this year's Volksfest, several streets in the dependent housing area have been established as one-way streets. Parking will be permitted on one side of the street as indicated by temporary traffic signs. All visitors will be allowed to park in these areas, however the parking lots for the individual buildings will be reserved for occupants only. Signs have been erected advising visitors of the parking restrictions. Experience in the past, however, has shown that there will still be a few people who will disregard the signs. Members of the American community are asked to display patience and courtesy in these instances to enhance the spirit of the Volksfest.

In addition, visitors to the Volksfest are reminded that while they're at the Volksfest, criminals might not be. Lock your car while in the Volksfest area and/or the adjacent housing area parking lots. Remove all valuables from your car when you leave it. When you leave your apartment, lock your doors and leave a light on. Please, for your own safety, don't carry valuables or excessive amounts of money to the Volksfest.

Oops!

We made a boo-boo last week in the "Community Observations". Contrary to what was published, AMEXCO's business hours have not changed. The hours for all the AMEXCO facilities are the same as ever, 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and 2-4 p.m., Mon-Fri. Sorry about that.

The American Yacht Club Berlin (AYCB) got two new regatta series underway last weekend, and each experienced totally different weather conditions. Saturday was a day best forgotten for its wind. Several of the boats took upwards of 20 minutes to complete the last 75 yards of the course when a virtual calm set in. It brought to mind the old Grantland Rice comment, "Watching sailboats racing is like watching grass growing," or words to that effect. I was thankful to be in the tower, serving on the race committee, instead of inching around the course.

The first race of the Sunday series turned out to be just the opposite. As a matter of fact, there were several times when it seemed as though there was too much wind! At race time storm clouds were building up in the West, and it looked as though the race might have to be cancelled. But the braver (or dumber) of us decided to have a go at it, and the race continued on schedule. The wind built up in strength and became somewhat gusty. It also began to back and veer around the compass, providing exciting, if sometimes frustrating, sailing.

There are still some places open for sailors who want to compete in one of the series. Both series will run two more weekends. Meeting times at the AYCB club rooms are 10 a.m., tomorrow and Sunday.

RUGBY IS A HARD hitting, fast moving game. It faintly resembles football although the rules are quite different and the teams wear absolutely no padding while they play. Anyone looking for a "non-criminal" release for aggression and violence should check into

Rugby comes to Berlin

Are you looking for a non-hate way to dissipate basic, subliminal aggressions? Has your body ached for violent contact ever since you had to give up tackle football? Or are you already one of the initiates of the non-criminally insane world of rugby after being torn from your first love by the vicissitudes of assignment and late World War II diplomacy?

If so, American Forces Rugby offers you the violence, color, travel, and machismo of this fantastic sport. It asks from you no experience, but only an unlimited sense of aggression for 80 minutes a week, coupled with a certain disdain for pain. Army and Air Force troops are gathering together now for the fall season of the Allied Forces Rugby league, with a few side tours planned to Scotland and "the zone."

Captains Campen (6737 or 813-7108) and Towns (5833 or 813-6517) are serving as contacts for the early season organizational work. If you are interested in playing rugby, get in touch with them and they'll give you all the info you need.

Pee Wee's play hard

by B. J. JONES

The Reds completed the first half of Pee-Wee League baseball with a perfect record of seven wins and no losses for first place honors. The Athletics finished second with only one loss and the Mets came in third with a 5-2 record.

In the second meeting of the season the Athletics lost a close one to the Reds with a 19-17 final score. The Athletics just couldn't get it all together during the first inning and when they finally woke up in the second, they just couldn't catch up. Both teams played very serious ball and there were a lot of exciting plays on both sides. One of them was an unassisted triple play by John Willcock of the Athletics. He caught a flyball just behind his shortstop position, ran to third base to get a forced out on the returning baserunner and then, ran over to second to tag another baserunner for the third out.

In other action Saturday, the Dodgers beat the Braves in a game that could have gone either way. The score of 25-23, as well as the action, was close.

If you would like to watch these little guys play some very exciting base ball, come out to the Sundgauer Pee-Wee League diamond. They play every week-day evening, starting at 5:30 p.m. and on Saturdays at 9 and 11 a.m.

WE DID IT AGAIN! A couple of weeks ago we printed a lovely story about how HHC 2-6 had won the Guardian League championships over the Charlie Cobras. Fine. But in our headline we boldly stated that the Cobras had won the championship. For those of you involved, an apology. We have finally got it through our heads that HHC 2-6 won the game.

Racing flourishes at Friendship

THE RACES AT FRIENDSHIP are always action-packed with excitement. Cars collide, mud fans out from behind spinning wheels, and men and machines both strain to the limits of their endurance. (Photo by Charles Hardey)

by VIC WILSON

Friendship Raceway was a flurry of activity again last Saturday as drivers, pit crews and officials got ready for another day of racing. As the cars are towed into the pit area they are tech-inspected before being registered. The tech inspector goes over the car with care, to see if there are any defects which could cause trouble to the driver while on the track or anything else that could be a hazard to other drivers on the track. The cars passing the inspection are then registered with the officials. At this point the car can be taken into the pit for the pit crew and the driver to make some last minute adjustments or repairs that might be needed. The pit crews and drivers spent over a week making repairs to the cars after the last race day. They also had to clean a lot of mud from the cars and themselves. Both the car body and the engine take a real beating out there on the track. Transmissions and clutches sometimes need to be replaced after the races.

The weather was fair for the races. A little rain fell about mid-way through the day, but that didn't discourage any of the drivers. A little water on the track keeps the dust down. Too much water and it turns into another day like the 4th of July.

With the enthusiasm of the drivers and pit crews, the cars were made ready for the time trials and a full day of racing. The condition of the track was vastly improved. During the week, drivers and members of the B.A.A.A. had gone out to the track and smoothed out some of the rough spots left by the cars the week before. With the big holes filled in somewhat, it made racing better than the week before. The holes were soon dug out again and there were a few cars that went airborne. I think a few of the officials are going to check the drivers this week for pilot's licenses.

The Hobby Stockers were the minority for the day, but put on a good show with spinouts and a few bent fenders. The Hobby Stockers, being the less expensive built cars, are exciting as they all run the same size cars, stock 1200cc Volkswagon "beetles". It's the driving ability here that shows and the competition is great. The leader of a race can drop out with the next turn or from just over-taxing his engine. Many things can happen to a car or engine that is unforeseen before going onto the track. That goes in all three classes, as is seen in every race of the day. That brings us to the Super Stocks and the Modifieds. They too, put on a great show as the speeds are greater and there are many different models of cars competing. With big engines pushing lighter bodies and the ability of the drivers, the lead changes all the time. A race can look like it will be won by one car and on the last lap be overtaken by a faster car. The spectators really love to see these battles for position. They pick a favorite car and in some cases almost push it around the track with their yelling (or so it would seem). They seem to have as much fun as the drivers.

At the end of race day there is a thirty-minute stand-down. No cars are allowed to be moved in the pits. The spectators are then invited down to the pits to look the cars over and speak to the drivers and the pit crews. Many get the feel of the cars by sitting in them and thinking of how they might feel on the track. The kids especially like to "get in the drivers seat".

So all-in-all it was another fun-filled day with lots of action. Everyone at Friendship Raceway has a good time, drivers running their cars, spectators urging their favorite car on and the pit crews wondering what could happen next. It was an enjoyable Saturday, so come on out and enjoy yourselves as so many do at Friendship Raceway.

Ladies host golf

by VERONICA GARD

This week the Berlin Women's Golf Association (BWGA) hosted the European Command (EUCOM) Ladies' Invitational Golf Tournament. The two-day, 36-hole match attracted a total of 52 players from Heidelberg, Stuttgart, Ramstein, Wiesbaden, Spangdahlem, Naples, and Berlin. There were enough ladies for the BWGA Tournaments Chairman, Mrs. Sarah Sawtelle, to have four flights, and the handicaps ranged from 9 to 36.

Among the players was the defending champion from Naples, Mrs. Ann Davidson. At the practice round on Tuesday, her title came under attack by Mrs. Jackie Clark, from Heidelberg, who scored a hole-in-one on number 17.

The tournament program included plans for Colonel Herbert H. Ray, Chief of Staff, USCOB, to address the ladies at the opening ceremony and for Mrs. Sam S. Walker to present prizes during a final luncheon yesterday. The ladies also enjoyed a banquet at the Harnack House and were entertained by a Berlin Barber Shop Quartet which calls itself The Four Power Agreement.

Mrs. Dottie Ray won low net in the Berlin Women's Golf Association Tournament yesterday. For details, see next week's paper.

TAT presents play

The Tempelhof American Theatre will open their production of Inherit the Wind on Monday, in the D-2 conference room of the Sky rider Recreation Center, TCA. Production dates also include Tuesday and Thursday through Sunday, July 25-28.

The play, written by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, is based on the so-called "Scopes Monkey Trial" which took place exactly 50 years ago on July 21, 1924.

Curtain time for each of the six performances will be at 8 p.m. There is no need to call for reservations and admission is free.

The dentist is a golfer too!

by MICHELLE LOWRY

Dr. (Major) William G. Newton is a dentist at the U. S. Army Hospital, Berlin. But after duty hours he sheds his white hospital jacket and leads an entirely different life.

Dr. Newton is an avid golfer. Last weekend he won first place in the Berlin Open Golf Tournament with a six under par score of 220. This is the second year in a row Dr. Newton has won the tourney. And out of nine other tournaments he has played in this year, Dr. Newton has won seven.

The Berlin Open is an annual tournament that everyone is welcome to enter. The match is played on the combined German and American golf courses. This year, second place went to Veit Pagel of Hamburg (who also won the tourney in 1969 and '71) with a score of 235. Third place was won by Fritz Sössner of Hannover with a score of 236.

The 30-year-old dentist has played golf for 21 years. "When I was nine," he said, "my father gave my two older brothers and me golf clubs and told us just to go out and play." Dr. Newton took it from there.

He lived in Ann Arbor, Mich., for 27 years. In high school, he was captain of the golf team and the number one man for two years. After graduation he began college at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Along with his dentistry studies there, he continued his golf. He was number one man on the University golf team from 1964-66 and served as team captain in 1966.

Dr. Newton kept winning tournaments. For three years (1964-66) he played in the Big 10 Championships and placed all three years. In 1964 and '66 he placed third and in 1965 he won first place honors. It was one of the best three-year records in the tourney.

While still at Ann Arbor he won the Junior City Championship and the Men's City Championship. In 1964 he won the National Golf Association's Driving Contest with a three ball average of 283 yards. He spent his last years at Ann Arbor (1968-71) as assistant golf coach for the University.

In the summer of 1971, Dr. Newton received his commission in the Army. He served his first tour at Fort Jackson, South Carolina and still continued winning golf tournaments. He won the club championship, the post championship and placed third in the 3rd Army Tournament. In the spring of 1972, he won the Jacksonville Southeastern Military Invitational at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

Golf isn't Dr. Newton's only love. He was married three years ago. He and his wife, Susan, are expecting a baby in October. Although his wife doesn't play golf, he said maybe his child would be a golfer.

Actually, Dr. Newton said that golf isn't his favorite sport. Hockey is. But his golf coach dissuaded him from playing hockey because of the injury factor of hockey.

If golf isn't his favorite sport, I'd sure like to see him play hockey.

Trackers meet at Andrews

Special Troops and FSB will be gathering on July 27 at 10 a.m. for a Battalion Track and Field Competition. The event will take place at Yankee Stadium, Andrews Barracks. Any one interested in competing in the event is welcome to enter.

The competition will be open with no limit to the number of people from each battalion who can enter in each event. The events at the tourney will be: pole vault, long jump, triple jump, discus, shot-put, javelin, 100, 200, and 400-meter dashes, 800, 1500, and 5000-meter runs, 110 and 400-meter hurdles, 440-yard relay and the mile relay.

If you are interested in participating, contact your Training NCO or Specialist Four Kevin McNickle at Andrews Gym, phone 3527.

I want to take you higher up the Matterhorn, that is

by DAN MERZ and HOLLY HOWLETT II

Eight men from the 2nd and 4th Battalions, 6th Infantry, Berlin Brigade, accomplished a "first" on July 10. They were the first U. S. Army team to successfully climb the Matterhorn.

The men were First Lieutenant Holly C. Howlett II, C 2-6; Specialist 4 William C. Guenther, C 2-6; Specialist 4 Mark Bender, A 2-6; Sergeant Daniel L. Merz, C 2-6; Sergeant Neal Kingsley, A 2-6; Specialist 4 Timothy A. Swihart, C 2-6; Specialist 4 Edward J. Hottois, A 2-6; and Specialist 4 John Borema from A 4-6.

Nine months of planning

Nine months of planning and training had brought the eight soldiers to the foot of the mountain to re-enact Edward Whymper's triumphant and tragic first ascent of the Matterhorn. It was a training period that saw the men receive intensive exposure to rock climbing techniques, as well as ice and snow climbing. Included in the training was a shakedown trip to the Bavarian Alps in Mittenwald, West Germany, where the group spent several days climbing the Karwendelspitze and the surrounding rock gardens.

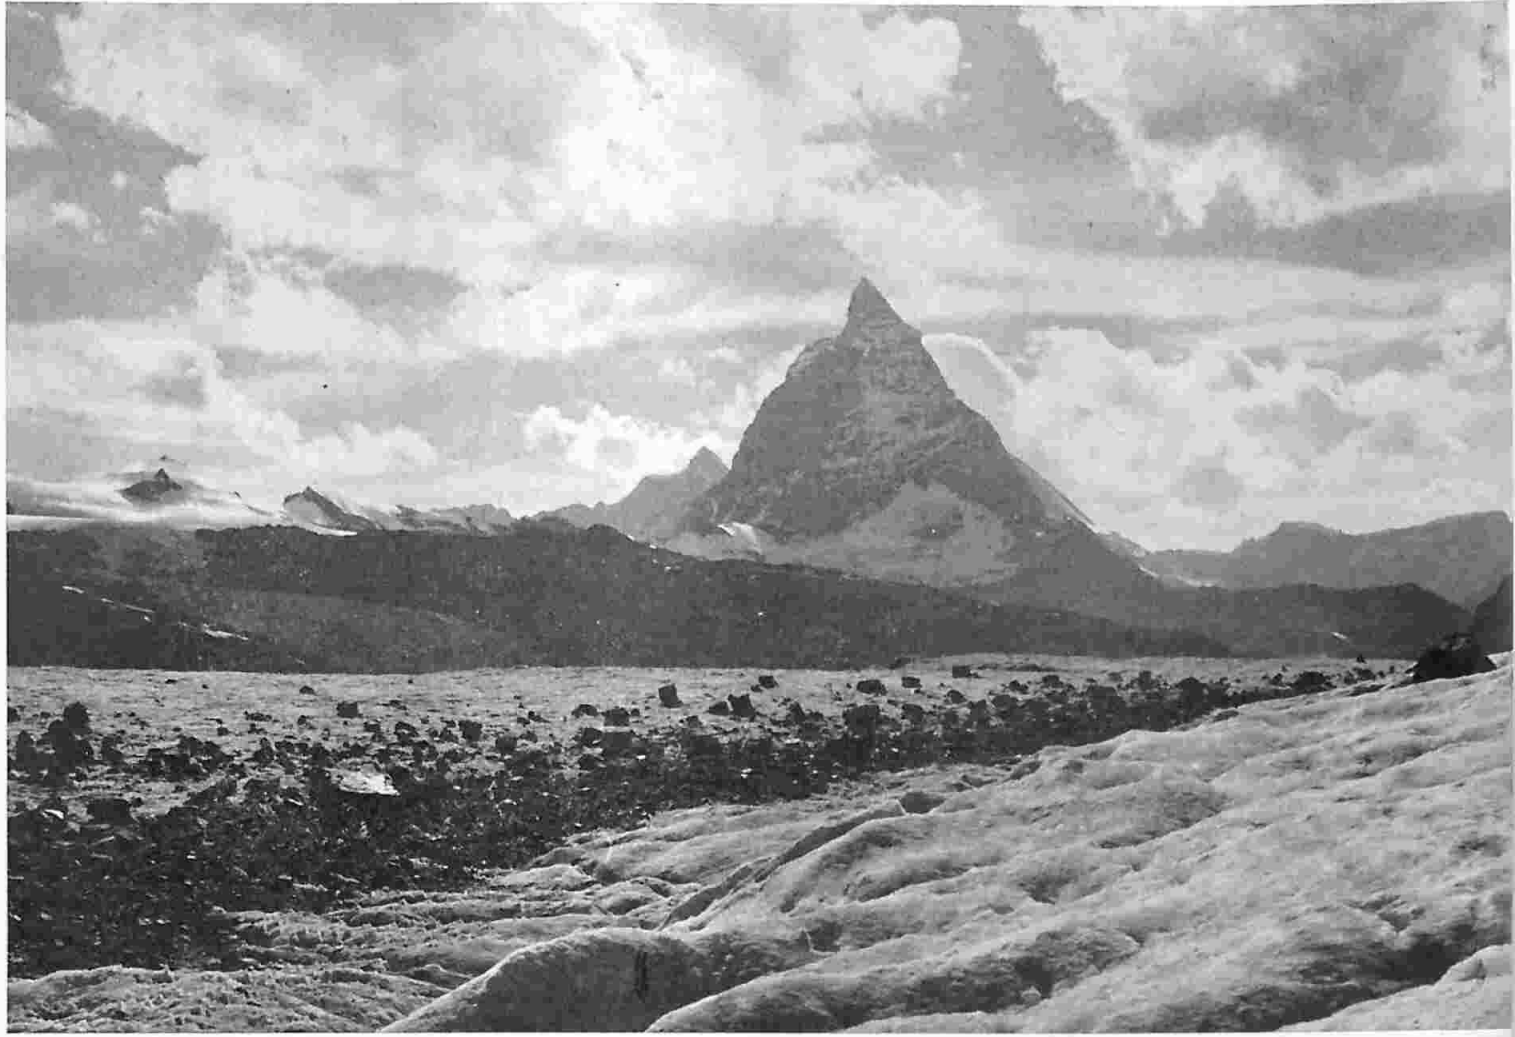

The group arrived in Zermatt, Switzerland on July 6. It was not until the following morning that they made preparations to set up a 10,000-foot base camp at Schwarzsee.

Began conditioning

On July 8 the team began conditioning themselves to the high altitude by hiking from Schwarzsee into the Zmuttbach river valley, and boned-up on their snow and ice techniques by ascending to a glacier. On the 9th, the team struck camp and ascended to Hörnli Hütte (at the foot of the Matterhorn) with only a skeleton of essential equipment in their assault packs. They were met at the hut by the men who were to guide them—all professional Swiss Alpine Guides, natives of Zermatt whose only academy was the craggy peaks of the Alps.

60 mph gusts

After spending a restless night in the hut, the team struck out for the summit at 3 a.m. The ascent was begun in the moonlight with one of the guides and Bill Guenther leading the roped-in, two-man parties. The route was difficult to the inexperienced eye and often misleading. But the guides picked their footings unerringly over poor rock, snow fields and ice, pointing out the best handholds, footings, and occasionally rocks that they knew to be loose. They reached Solvay (altitude 4300 meters) by 4:45 a.m. Many times, whenever the route took them to the northern side of the Hörnli Ridge, they felt the bitterness of the 35 mph winds whose 60 mph gusts often threatened their balance. From the Solvay they climbed to a snow ridge above the dreaded shoulder. The ridge was only a foot wide with a 1,200-meter slide to either side.

Straight up

After negotiating 250 feet of fixed rope straight up the side of the mountain, they neared the top. The wind and exposure were harsh, but they finally reached the top. The view was spectacular. The battalion colors were planted and the team took the traditional photos. In a few moments the team began the long climb down to the goal of their nine months of preparations.

The team left Zermatt on the morning of the 17th wondering if the Matterhorn did, as some say, have a soul and a will—the composite of every man's soul who had tried her heights. Each man of the team left a part of himself and his spirit on that mysterious peak.

ONWARD AND UP is the only way to conquer the Matterhorn. The men were led by experienced Alpine Guides who helped them avoid treacherous footing, loose rock and dangerous areas in the ice and snow. (Photo by Neal Kingsley)

PAUSING TO REFLECT before making the climb, Mark Bender waits near a plaque commemorating those who lost their lives on the slopes of the Matterhorn. The 14,677-foot summit was not easy to attain. Loose rock, avalanches, and 35 mph winds gusting up to 60 mph are ever-present dangers that the climber must consider before committing himself. # Happy Birthday to the Berlin Command's ambassadors of goodwill

Drills and thrills

by RALPH CALLAWAY

Next Friday will mark the second anniversary of the Berlin Command precision Drill Team and the end of another year of successful performances given in Berlin and other locations in Europe.

Originally known as the 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, Drill Team, it was formerly composed of members of 3-6. Its name and organization have undergone changes during the past year, some due to misunderstandings with people out of town who make up their programs (a show in Giessen last October labeled them as a Drill "Sport" Team) and some because it's difficult for one battalion to totally support the team (personnel-wise). The team is currently made up of volunteers from all the battalions at McNair.

In its first two years of operation, the team has seen 36 different men pass through its ranks—most are two or three-year soldiers. Although it isn't difficult to find volunteers for the platoon, it's hard to find men who measure up to the standards of the platoon. A desire to work weekends and holidays, nights and off-time comes into play, along with an urge to excel in every phase of military activities. An average day includes a minimum of 4 hours of rifle drill, and countless hours of cleaning and polishing their equipment and boots. In keeping with activities outside the area of the old Army "spit and polish", many men of the platoon hold the Combat Infantryman's Badge or the Expert Infantryman's Badge. Those who don't are encouraged to try for it.

The team was organized by Platoon Sergeant Milton H. Cooper with the assistance and guidance of Command Sergeant Major George E. Otis. During the two years of the team's existence he has been the platoon's only Drill Master, and he and Staff Sergeant Raymond G. Childress are the only remaining members of the original team formed two years ago. An interesting note is that CSM Otis was Cooper's Drill Master 14 years ago—Cooper was a PFC and Otis a Staff Sergeant at the time.

Not all of the Drill Team's activities relate to their public side. During alerts they form the security team for the 3-6 Headquarters when they go to the field, and the team also works as a unit in most battalion training exercises, thus keeping themselves in line with one of their two mottos "A Soldier First".

WHICH ONE IS MINE? The Drill Team performed the now-famous overhead exchange, in addition to many other drills, duties within the platoon? Many—their prime objective is to serve as ambassadors of the Army in Europe, but they also do other duties within the Command. For example, they are usually in attendance at all types of honor ceremonies within the Command (to include welcoming ceremonies for visiting dignitaries), they post the colors for Officer and NCO "Dining Ins", serve as color bearers and door openers at Command parades and they perform special drills and ceremonies at formal parties and balls, both in Berlin and in West Germany.

The highlights of their second year of operation included performances last October in Hamburg before 30,000 people at the Hamburg Police Sports show; the halftime show for the University of Rhode Island vs USAFE All Stars at Rhein Main (they appeared on the front page of the Stars and Stripes for this one); an door performance in close quarters for the AUSA convention in Garmisch held in May, their drill this year for the 4th of July parade; and what they consider the highlight of the year, five days of performances in Mons, Belgium, at the Mons Military Music Festival. Altogether, the team has given 55 public drills this year (Cooper gave up trying to count people this year—"It is getting out of hand"). Last year the estimates were 400,000 live viewers and more than 4 million on German, Belgian and American TV).

The Drill Team will start its third season by performing at the 14th annual German American Volksfest this year during its entire run of 18 days. But their goals don't stop there—their future objective is to drill at half time at the 1975 Super Bowl Game. Perhaps . . . But until then, congratulations on their second birthday!

A CLOSE SHAVE is what best describes the speed shave movement. This one was performed in downtown Mons, Belgium. The Drill Team made eight performances in that city and they were viewed by over 50,000 residents of the city during June of this year. (Photo by John Gaines)

'The Deadly Trackers'

"... AND THAT'S for knocking down my sand castles when we were kids!" Two life-long "friends" relive childhood memories in this scene from The Deadly Trackers.

THE WAY WE WERE — rated PG — Some material may not be suitable for pre-teenagers. Winner of two Academy Awards, THE WAY WE WERE is excellent entertainment in the great Hollywood tradition. The story runs from the 1930's and into the forties following the uneven romance and unsuccessful marriage of a radical female and a basically conservative man. The study of their relationship reveals the many levels on which people interact. Starring Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford.

SHAFT'S BIG SCORE — Revival, rated R — That freewheeling New York City detective is turned loose on a new case. Black and white gangs are feuding over control of a numbers racket and Shaft is squarely in the middle. The action is capped with a helicopter and boat chase that climaxes in a raging gunfight. Starring Richard Roundtree and Moses Gunn.

THE LAST AMERICAN HERO — Revival, rated PG — Some material may not be suitable for pre-teenagers. Take an inside look at the lives of some real hard chargers. These are the good old boys who routinely push their stockers toward the 200 mph mark on the nation's big ovals. Jeff Bridges is Junior Jackson, the hardest charger of all. He paid his dues running liquor down the mountains in North Carolina and got it back on the big time NASCAR circuit. Also starring Valerie Perrine.

THE DEADLY TRACKER — rated PG — Some material may not be suitable for pre-teenagers. When the sheriff sees his wife and child killed by outlaw he tosses away his badge to go on a very personal mission of revenge. The manhunt is savage and unrelenting. The brutal western contains extreme violence, profanity, some sex and nudity. Starring Richard Harris and Rod Taylor.

SPOTLIGHT

Chaplain (Colonel) Donald K. Adickes replaced Chaplain (Colonel) James J. Murphy as Berlin Brigade Chaplain on June 29.

In his 17 years of Army service, this is the second Berlin tour for the Army chaplain. He was here with the 385th Military Police when the Wall went up.

Prior to this assignment, Chaplain Adickes served on the Staff and Faculty of the United States Army Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. There, the Lutheran minister ran the Lutheran Service, sponsored a youth group, and also taught Sunday School.

Speaking of his duties as Brigade Chaplain, he said, "it isn't routine, it's different every day. My job is different than the chaplains at McNair because, as Brigade Chaplain, I have more administrative duties." He added, "it's most rewarding . . . being in a job where you can be of assistance to people and make their life more fulfilling."

Prior to his Army career, Chaplain Adickes was a student at Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania, and later at the Lutheran Theology Seminary of Philadelphia. He also holds a masters degree in communication and human relations from the University of Oklahoma.

Pondering the "old" Army as opposed to MVA and the problems therein, the soft-spoken chaplain remarked, "I would say two things which really weren't present 17 years ago were drugs and racial disharmony." He thoughtfully added, "the potential was there, if drugs were available they would have been used, and the racial problems—the fact the black man was not aware of his history, rights and ability to stand up for them."

Asked how long he would stay in Berlin, Chaplain Adickes smiled and said "it's a three-year tour, they say."

Command announces new housing

The US Command, Berlin, announces the acquisition of a 422 apartment complex, to be used as family housing. This complex, located at the corner of Schlangenberg and Wiesbadener Strasse in the Wilmersdorf district, consists of 2 buildings and contains 120 one-room (small one-room) apartments as well as 78 one-bedroom apartments and 40 two-bedroom apartments. All of these apartments are classified as adequate government quarters for enlisted men in the grade of E-6 and below. According to personnel assigned to these apartments will not receive Basic Allowance for Quarters (BAQ) or Station Housing Allowance (SHA). All personnel, however, continue to draw Cost of Living Allowance (COLA).

Each apartment will be completely furnished. The building will be equipped with elevators. Each apartment contains a TV outlet. Located in the basement will be a number of washers and dryers as well as an individual storage area assigned for each apartment. In addition, the complex will be equipped with an indoor children's play area. A covered garage is scheduled for completion in May 1975.

The services to be provided by the US Army include garbage pick-up, military bus service and commissary delivery service. A PX Foodland will be located on the ground floor of one building, and an Army Community Service Office and Army Health Nurse service will be located on the ground floor. 68 apartments will be available for occupancy by September 1, 1974, and approximately 70 new units will be available each month until the entire complex is completed in February 1975. The one- and two-bedroom apartments will be assigned to enlisted men who are on the family housing waiting list for these types of quarters.

Personnel not eligible for government quarters may apply for assignment to one of these apartments and must have a minimum of 12 months remaining in the command. The Housing Referral Office of E & I Division will maintain a waiting list of personnel applying for the quarters. Position on the waiting list will be determined by the date departed CONUS or the date of marriage, whichever is later. Applications for assignment to the apartments are available at the Housing Referral Office. Interested military personnel should apply as soon as possible. For further information, contact the Housing Referral Office in person by calling Berlin Military Office or 6575.

EIB or not?

by CHARLES R. KOTTICH

The Expert Infantry Badge (EIB) is just what the name implies. The testing of an individual for the EIB includes most of the skills that determine whether a man is indeed an expert Infantryman.

Any self-respecting Infantryman, regardless of combat experience, should aspire to qualify for the Badge. Indeed, the new test regulation concerning the EIB proposes that both the Combat Infantry Badge (CIB) and EIB can be worn concurrently on the uniform. I often hear the comment "Why should I take the EIB test when I already have the CIB?" There is no question that the ultimate test of an Infantryman is his performance under fire in actual combat. For this, he is awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge. The wearer of both badges, however, marks a man who not only performed admirably in wartime, but has also maintained current proficiency in his field.
