Company leaders ousted!

by RALPH CALLAWAY

July 25, started out to be a normal day at Company A, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry. It started out with the usual morning formation, all personnel in PT uniform. In front, the first sergeant was passing on the important info for the day—a couple of appointments and the fact that the majority of the day would be devoted to painting the billets, restriction placed on all platoon sergeants and above. . .

That's right, the hierarchy had fallen, and the privates and SP4s had taken over the company—long live the proletariat. No, not really, it was only a mini-revolution, and it only lasted one day, as the leaders of the company stepped aside and let the junior men of their platoons take over for the day.

In the orderly room, Acting First Sergeant Donald Wells tried to insure that the details worked smoothly, and fielded off-hand questions that barraged him from all sides. In the commanders office, Acting CO George Patton was deciding on who was to be Soldier of the Day, processing CDAAC appointments, and meeting with his platoon leaders to insure that the work would proceed smoothly.

In the platoon areas, the Acting Platoon Sergeants and Squad Leaders were pushing their men as fast as they could. If the billets weren't finished by Friday, they would be on duty Saturday, and who wants to work on Saturday? Oops, sergeant, you're slipping. You aren't supposed to be doing that, you're supposed to be supervising.

What did the exercise accomplish? A lot in the eyes of some of the men who took over their supervisors jobs. "I got to see how authority is used and how it is supposed to be used," said Acting First Sergeant Wells. He made it his policy of the day to explain any and all orders he gave, and directed his platoon leaders and squad leaders to do the same. When asked how the day went he replied, "Better than normal. But we had a tool that most NCOs can't use—peer pressure." And with your peers pushing you to show up the NCOs, it is quite possible to accomplish more than normal.

For many of the men a new insight was gained on the use of the Chain of Command, from its lowest link on up. And how some things shouldn't be done—for example, never give an instructor less than a day to prepare a class, or you've just wasted a lot of time for a lot of people.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM? — To make the chain of command work, orders are best passed in conference, where any questions can be answered as they come up. Acting commander, SP4 George Patton, confers with two of his platoon leaders, SP4 William Haney (background) and SP4 Larry Winstead.

In the background hovered a nervous First Sergeant Buford Berry, claiming he was sure the men could handle it, but showing that he was somewhat anxious that they couldn't. With the day over, relief showed in his eyes, and a little smile that the day had come off without a hitch. "Next time we'll do it in the field," he said.

The company is back to normal now, but the lessons learned still linger on. One of the actions taken was to send a questionnaire to the men on what they thought of the day. And any improvements suggested on the Chain of Command are all waiting the review of Captain Randall E. Slade, the real CO of A Company.

It was just a "normal" day in A Company.

A NORMAL DAY in any company always includes the morning inspection. PFC Albert Pinkham appears confident that his acting platoon leader, SP4 Larry Winstead, won't find a "gig." In the background, PFC Robert Tucker and PFC Kaller Bowen await their turn while acting platoon sergeant, SP4 John Neal, looks on.

The American Yacht Club Berlin (AYCB) wound up its latest Sunday racing series last weekend, with lots of wind, a barbecue, and even a little sunshine. The wind, which has been excellent for this series, held true to form, and increased for a while to planing conditions. The competition was much closer throughout the series than the scores would indicate. At times the difference between first and third place was only a matter of seconds. Here are the results:

Skipper/crew	Points
PIRATE CLASS
1. Lydia Kelly/Patrick Maniss	3
2. Dave Maniss/Ingrid Maniss	8
3. George Balint	11
470 CLASS
1. Hal Shanafield	6 1/2
2. Arthur Graham/Tom Nape	7 1/2
3. Kim Plank/Ellen Helvig	10

There will be a racing meeting on Wednesday, August 7, at 8 p.m., in the AYCB club rooms, for all those skippers and crews interested in the next series of regattas.

Pan Am hosts golf

The 8th annual Pan-American Golf Tournament was held here last Saturday and Sunday at the American Golf Course. The contest was a 36-hole handicap tournament with over a hundred people entered.

The winners of the tournament were: Championship flight—Gregory-131; second, Behnke-134; First flight—Duffy-138; second, Harris-141; Second Flight—Pickens-137, second, Freeman-141; Third flight—Turbyfill-137, second, Lewkowicz-140; Fourth flight—Netzler-139, second, Herz-141.

The overall low net place ended up in a tie between Gregory and Turbeyfill at 131. A play-off round was held and Gregory defeated Turbeyfill on the 1st hole.

The awards ceremony was Sunday after the tournament. Minister Klein and Major General Walker presented trophies to the winners.

All Stars play here

The Berlin Brigade All Star Softball Tournament is on its way. On August 6-11 eight teams will compete at Andrews Barracks in the double-elimination tournament.

Not only will there be teams from Berlin, but the All Star Game has attracted teams from outside, too. Two teams will be coming from Augsburg; Augsburg Field Station and the 502nd Security Group.

There will be three games a day through the week starting at 1:30 p.m. The final two games will be held Saturday starting at 1:30. If there is a tie, the play-off will be Sunday at 1:30 p.m. All the games will be played at Andrews.

The teams representing Berlin are: Special Troops, the Lodger League; 2nd Battalion, 6th Infantry, (the Guardian League); 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry, (the Defender League); 4th Battalion, 6th Infantry, (the Vanguard League); and Tempelhof Central Airport's traveling team, the Berlin Braves.

There is a possibility that another team might enter from Augsburg. The 299th Service and Supply company would like to play in the contest, but right now billeting them here is a problem.

So, all you baseball fans, if you would like to see some close, exciting games, come on out next week for the All Star games at Andrews. Admission is free to all!

And in addition . . .

In last week's report of the European Women's Golf Council Invitational, sponsored by the Berlin Women's Golf Association (BWGA), the winner of the overall low gross prize was inadvertently omitted by the BWGA. The winner of the low gross was Ms. Eileen Traficante from Wiesbaden with a score of 162 for 36 holes.

HORSE RACES

Mariendorfer Damm 222-298

Trotting Races at the Mariendorfer Race Tracks are scheduled for tonight to begin at 7:30 p.m. On Sunday, the DM 20,000 Brunn-Cassirer-Rennen (Standard race), starts at 2 p.m., while Wednesday's trotting race begins at 6 p.m.

Tracks dry at raceway

by VIC WILSON

It turned out to be a great day for racing last Saturday at Friendship Raceway. A large turnout of race cars in all classes promised some real action. The track had been smoothed out from the races two weeks before. This week it was dry, which made for a dusty day ahead for drivers and spectators. With the arrival of the water truck the problem of the dust was almost eliminated. Enthusiasm ran high in the pits and the drivers weren't really worried about a bit of dust. The mechanics prepared the cars for time trials and looked forward to a full day of racing. Because the races were cancelled on the previous Saturday due to rain, there had been two weeks of work put into the cars. The sounds in the pits indicated these racing enthusiasts had used their time wisely. Last minute, minor adjustments were made as the engines were warmed up for top performance.

Time trials of the day were soon over. These time trials are important as they tell a driver how well his car is actually running. If adjustments are needed, they are made before the first race. It could mean the difference between winning a race or breaking down in the middle of it. That extra boost can often make you a trophy winner.

The first three races of the day are the trophy dashes. The three classes of cars, hobby stock, super stock and modified, each compete in their own class for a trophy. Using the time trials, the officials set up races for the three fastest cars in each class. The first race was the Super Stock, won by Peter Stoy (who also won the modified trophy dash). Then came the hobby trophy dash with Klaus Michling in his stock 1200cc VW taking the checkered flag. Then came the slow and fast heat races. There are usually four or more cars in the heat races. In the slow heats for super stock and modified, William Huffman took the winners flag in his re-built MG. The slow heat in the hobby class was won by Klaus Michling. The next event was the fast heats with P. Stoy taking the flag in both the super stock and modified heats. Rolf Domrose took the checkered flag in the hobby class. Let's not forget the others that were on the track. The winners had to really drive to beat some of the second and third place cars. In the heat races there are three places to be taken. If you have four or more cars on the track there are battles going on for all three of those places. In the slow and fast heat races Lenny Morehouse, Mike Carstens, Fritz Feursinger, Robin Hutt, Chuck Hicks and E. Waskowitz all took second places in their classes. Bill Cullison, Robin Fugate, Dave Stewart, Graham Greene, Larry Hoppes and Harry Mehlitz all took third places.

The main event is the big race of the day. The hobby stock class started out with seven cars and finished with three cars getting the checkered flag. Rolf Domrose took first with Elder Green right behind him in second place. Lenny Morehouse took third place. What happened to the other four cars? It's a common occurrence at the race-track for cars to leave with blown engines and bent body parts, and that is what happened to those four. The next race was the super stock main. Mike Carstens and Robin Fugate battled to the end of the race with many others close behind all trying to get the lead. In the end, it was Mike Carstens in his BMW taking the winning flag with Robin close behind to take second place. The modified main brought out the weekly battle between the big BMW and the Porsche. Little did these two know, but there were others on the track they also had to battle against. But as the race progressed, cars dropped out for the usual reasons leaving the BMW and Porsche to finish the race. P. Stoy finally finished the race in first place with E. Waskowitz coming in a close second.

So that's the way things went Saturday, July 27, at Friendship Raceway. Every week is different as the drivers and mechanics rework their cars in a determined effort to take the checkered flag for points or a trophy. They also have to straighten out the bent fenders and damaged bumpers which make for the thrills each week. If you want to have some fun, come out to Friendship Raceway on Saturday and enjoy a day at the races.

BASC holds third in city league

by MARCEL RODRIGUEZ

The same club that brings you the exciting American Soccer League games, the Berlin American Soccer Club, continues the second half of the season in the Berlin German City League. The BASC, playing under the traditional name of the U. S. Forces, lost only twice and are within striking distance of the league leader, VSC. The U. S. Forces played VSC to a tie earlier in the year, but the game was nullified due to a technical error.

League play will begin next Friday with the U. S. Forces versus Bosch Elektronik in Wilmersdorf at 6:30 p.m. at McNair field. Team captain Pete Milhado stated, "This is the year to move up to the second division and show the Berliners that the American teams of the future will have to be reckoned with."

In the American Soccer League, Berlin, the current leader in the Eastern Division, will participate in the league play-offs at Schweinfurth on Sept. 1-2. Members on the starting lineup and substitutes will be notified by team captain Frank Chapman. Personnel wishing to join the Berlin Soccer Team should contact SSG Rodriguez at 5317.

Golf Tourney opens

Entry for play in the Berchtesgaden Recreation Area Alpine Pokal Golf Tournament, set for Aug. 5-9 at the Skytop Golf Course, may still be made.

Deadline for entry in the medal play tournament is Aug. 2 or when 40 entries have reached the B' Gaden Golf Course. Entry may be made by writing the BRA Golf Course, APO 09029 or by calling B'Gaden Military (2538) 786.

Open to all U. S. golfers and German members of U. S. golf clubs, fees for the tournament are $15 for U. S. players and DM 37.50 for German golfers. The fees include green fees, practice day and banquet.

Contestants must make their own arrangements for accommodations and may do so by writing the BRA Billeting Office, Attn: Alpine Pokal Golf Meet, APO 09029, or by calling B'Gaden Military (2538) 623 or 823.

U.S. Cricket Club remains unbeaten

The Berlin U. S. Sector Cricket Club defeated the Royal Military Police by 75 runs in the Berlin Infantry Brigade Minor Units League, played at the British Headquarters on July 28.

It was a victory reflecting much credit on D.A. Uchil, whose batting and wicket-keeping performance strengthened the side and made all the happier. He batted confidently scoring 30 runs and then dismissed three RMP batsmen, Cooper, Oswald, and Forstym by stumping while keeping the wickets.

U. S. Sector accomplished a notable performance in bowling, too. Talat and Paul shared the bowling honors, each capturing four wickets.

Royal Military Police suffered their biggest setback when their star batsman, Harrison, was caught by Butt for one run. They were all out for 29 runs in 15.3 overs.

The U. S. Sector, holders of the Minor Units Cup, are unbeaten in the league so far this year and are favorites to retain the championship for the second year.

Volksfest to host USO show

"The Lamanite Generation," a unique Indian show from Brigham Young University featuring exciting musical talent from more than 60 Indian tribes throughout the United States, will appear in Berlin August 5-11 at the Volksfest. They will give two performances daily with a day off on August 9.

The stop is part of their six-week tour of USAR-EUR and USAFE installations in Germany which began July 9.

Indian, Polynesian, and Mexican music

Sponsored by USO and Department of Defense in cooperation with Brigham Young University, the "Lamanite Generation" presents a superb and memorable program of traditional Indian, Polynesian and Mexican music and dances—artfully and imaginatively blended with the contemporary sounds of the exciting 70's.

Traveled extensively

The first "Lamanite Generation" show appeared in 1969, touring Indian reservations with a small BYU troupe under the direction of Jane Thompson—a veteran of some 18 USO and DOD sponsored shows. Since then "Lamanite Generation" students from the Mormon school have traveled extensively throughout the U. S. and Canada—and delighted Midwestern audiences while appearing on various TV programs.

Indian tribal affiliations represented in the show include such famous American history book names as the Navajo, Comanche and Cherokee.

Appeared on "Niteside"

The BYU group held a press conference at AFN Europe Headquarters in Frankfurt on July 8, where they recorded several musical numbers and made a guest appearance on AFN's popular "Niteside" show.

Your ears

Noisy military environment can endanger one's hearing

To meet the needs of today, the armed forces have been developing new and better equipment. The development and utilization of this equipment has been added to the resources of the modern soldier.

However, along with these advancements a new enemy has been introduced. Slowly and painlessly, this crafty enemy is sapping the efficiency of men and women, young and old alike. Just who or what is this enemy? High-intensity sound.

Somes losses are permanent

Doctors estimate 30 to 50 percent of all active-duty armed forces personnel suffer some noise-induced hearing loss during their military careers. For some, the effects are temporary, but for others they are permanent. No surgery or hearing aid can replace hearing which has been lost.

The U. S. Government is spending $50 million annually as compensation to retired members who claim that their hearing was impaired during their active years of service. This amount is increasing by $2 million per year.

It has been determined that hearing loss is attributed to excessive exposure to noise. By simple definition, noise is unwanted sound. This definition has a different meaning for different specialists engaged in this field.

To the physicist, noise is a sound, whose character can be defined and whose properties can be measured with the same equipment as other sounds. To the psychologist, who is also interested in all types of sound, noise is an unwanted sound, as contrasted with music and speech, which are usually desired sounds.

Where hearing loss begins

Scientists tend to agree that potential hearing loss begins when sound intensity reaches about 85 decibels (dB). At just above 120 dB, the ear begins to feel pain. The danger level for a sharp impulse noise, like gun fire, is 140 dB. A jet take-off may be from 100-120 dB.

Potentially hazardous noises in the military service come from five main sources: weapons, vehicles, heavy machinery, aircraft, various industrial operations like wood and metal-working, and recreational noises.

There isn't a weapon fired in the Army which doesn't jeopardize hearing. All weapons generate noise levels in excess of 140 dB. The quietest is the M-60 machine gun, which varies from 149 dB to 161 dB.

Military vehicles hazardous

Unlike civilian vehicles, which have sound muffling features, most military vehicles are potentially noise hazardous because of their great power and open design. The potential hazard not only includes passengers and operators, but mechanics as well.

Federal safety laws established 90 dB as the noise exposure limit for eight hours of continuous exposure. Higher levels are tolerable for reduced time periods.

The noise exposure may be controlled by one of three methods: control at the source, by changing the noise pathway and by protecting those exposed to the noise. Reduction in the amount of noise produced at the source is the most satisfactory method of hearing conservation.

Generally, this is accomplished by means of engineering design and control through selection of low-noise machinery, or by construction of noise reducing enclosures, sound traps, baffles, etc. Administrative control would include changing exposure schedules and the rotation of personnel to limit the degree of exposure.

Wear ear plugs & muffs

There are certain instances, particularly outdoor situations involving heavy machinery, explosives, aircraft and artillery, in which engineering and administrative controls are impractical or impossible. In these cases, personal protective equipment such as ear plugs and ear muffs represent the only practical and permanent solution to noise problems.

It is most important to insure that all personnel employed in such areas wear personal protective devices. This is the responsibility of the unit commander. Only in this way can he help to alleviate the adverse effects of noise on hearing, especially as it directly affects the soldier's personal welfare and his ability to perform his duties efficiently and effectively.

"Prevention is better than cure" and loss of hearing due to excessive noise is, unfortunately, irreparable and therefore incurable. A man who suffers a permanent loss of hearing is condemned to live in a silent and lonely world.

The Preventive Medicine Section, 279th Station Hospital, Berlin, will gladly give additional information regarding the hearing conservation program. Call 4173-4174.

"Redleg" wins new "Duster"

Library Notes

by ALTA K. DAVIS

Announcing the arrival of three additions to the periodical section! The Main Library, Berlin Command, is now receiving the Congressional Record, the Federal Register, and the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents. These are three valuable sources of information on congressional laws, executive orders, presidential speeches and more.

A little bit about the last one first, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents includes transcripts of the President's news conferences, messages to Congress, public speeches and statements, and other White House releases. The contents are in chronological order with periodic indexes. The library has received the issue of June 24, 1974 to date.

The Federal Register is published daily (except Saturday and Sunday) by the executive branch of government. It contains all presidential proclamations and executive orders; rules and regulations of the various bureaus and departments of the government; and the decisions of fact-finding bodies. Monthly, quarterly, and annual indexes are published to help with the location of information. June 27, 1974 to date is in the Main Library's collection.

Last, but certainly not least, is the Congressional Record which is published daily while Congress is in session. It contains the records of debates and proceedings in Congress, messages to the Congress, and records of voting. Biweekly indexes are published during each session with cumulative indexes each year.

A useful feature of the index is the "History of Bills and Resolutions" section leading to information on all stages of bills from introduction to defeat or passage.

Please ask one of the library employees to show you how to use these publications and a wealth of information will be at your fingertips.
