Here's to your health!

There once was a time when it was a common practice for the family doctor to make house calls. But in the 1970s, we've forgotten what a "family doctor" is, and house calls are all but out of the question. The knowledge and equipment needed to treat illness have reached such a level of sophistication that it is virtually impossible to bring health care into the home.

But what about common childhood diseases, runny noses, minor fevers? Is there no way to handle such illnesses at home? Is there no way to provide the community with preventive health information?

In the Berlin American community, the answer to that last question is yes. The Home Health Care Program at the U. S. Army Hospital here goes out into the community to provide health information to families. At the head of the program is Captain John E. Robinson, Army Health Nurse.

Helping people care for themselves

"One of our responsibilities among others to our military community is to help them help themselves in caring for their common health problems without running to the outpatient department for every runny nose," says Robinson.

Since his arrival in Berlin in November 1972, Robinson has developed an extensive community health education program designed to reach as many people as possible.

"It goes without saying," says Robinson, "that all medical and paramedical personnel are health teachers every day, whether in the clinic, on the ward, or at the PX."

Only when they're sick

One difficulty in health care services is that people only seek help when they are sick. They get treatment and return home, only to come back again sometime later with perhaps the same illness.

So, asks Robinson, "Have we given them previous counseling as to how to take measures not to get the illness again, and what to do at home if they should?"

"We've all had the feeling of frustration at . . . not being able to teach the patient with our unusually brief hospital encounter on how to prevent the same happening again!"

It was a letter in the January 9, 1973 issue of "Stars & Stripes" that set Robinson to thinking. The letter was written by a young mother of two children. She expressed disappointment in the lack of adequate health education given by those she looked to for medical help. Why not give some sort of classes where young mothers and other family members could learn how to care for and prevent common illnesses at home.

The writer happened to be stationed in Berlin, and Robinson called on her to convey the hospital's concern for her feelings.

"She was speaking from her past experience in other hospitals," says Robinson. "Her concern was the common lack of community based health teaching. We accepted the challenge, however, and developed the present concept of Berlin Home Health Care Program for the community, in the community."

Unique to Berlin

While Army Health Nurses are not uncommon to Europe, the Home Health Care Program is unique to Berlin. Berlin's close-knit American community provides something of a "captive audience" for health training. Robinson asked the letter writer to conduct a canvas of the American housing areas to find out what topics people would like to know more about if such a health program were started.

When the first class was held on March 22, 1973, 50 women filled a room at the All American Service Club at McNair Barracks. Mothers, mothers-to-be, teachers and some high school economics students listened to a two-hour program on topics they have chosen: taking a temperature; an explanation of fever; when to take an infant or family member to the hospital; how to handle convulsions; common childhood diseases and how to handle them at home; what to tell a doctor when you call him over the phone; how to handle a hyperactive child; educational toys and children's clothing; child abuse; prevention of poisoning by household poisons; fire safety; electric shock; mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and falls.

The chief of the hospital food services was present to answer questions on nutrition, diets and economy buying.

Strong response

The unexpectedly strong response to the first program led to more such sessions. In May, the chief of pediatrics spoke on children from birth to five years. In August, Dr. Stephen Miller, one of the few pedodontists (children's dentists) left in the Army Dental Corps, discussed

"the questions parents ask most" about child dental care. The dental portion of the program was to have lasted only an hour, but it was so well received that it ran for the full two hours.

Robinson's duties as the public health nurse extend over a wide range of activities designed to take health care into the community. He makes regular visits to the maternity ward, for example, to meet new mothers. If a mother has just had her first baby, Robinson visits them at home within two weeks after mother and baby leave the hospital.

Other reasons for visits

Home visits are often made for other reasons, however. Most visits deal with chronic diseases, child health and discipline, rashes, potty-training—whatever problem a family may have that calls for professional attention. Robinson visits families both in government and economy quarters—in fact, over half his visits are to families living on the economy.

In recent months, the entire community education program got a boost with the addition of three volunteer registered nurses: Mrs. Judy McLaughlin, Mrs. Karen Hadley and Mrs. Linda Pollock.

Most home visits are made on an appointment basis, but an appointment is not necessary. To arrange for a visit, call the Preventive Medicine Section at Military 4173/4174. Visits are on a selected basis, but are available to all eligible active duty and dependent population with a genuine need for such counseling. Referrals to the Army Health Nurse may be made by physicians, nurses or patients themselves.

Robinson hopes that through the Home Health Care program, the Berlin American community will become "better aware of how to care for themselves and not presenting themselves or phoning continually to the clinic with problems which could and will be prevented by such a community health program."

Jones, Chu, Humphrey win tennis tourney

Seeded players dominated the action as the Berlin American Tennis Club's Open Indoor Tennis Tournament came to a close last Sunday. The action took place at the Sports Center tennis bubble on Hüttenweg.

Gil Jones bested Monte Humphrey 6-4, 6-3 in the finals to take the singles crown. Humphrey teamed up with Hank Chu to win two sudden death tie breakers and squeak by a father-daughter combo of Gil and Kim Jones 7-6, 7-6 to snatch the doubles title.

In earlier singles matches, Humphrey took a hard-fought 7-5, 6-4 victory over Glen Sherman and then ran into real trouble in the form of Hank Chu. Humphrey finally edged Chu in three sets, 7-5, 2-6, 6-1.

In a lively first round doubles match, Humphrey and Chu scored an impressive win over a tough and tenacious team of Rusty Latta and Ed Gable.

Earlier action

Singles—1st round—Smith d. Bruckheim.

2nd round—G. Jones, d. Potts, Smith d. Wood, Wee d.

Gruber, K. Jones d. Huhn, Humphrey d. Frisbie, Sherman d. Selph, Hadley d. Fuller, Chu d. Roselle.

TENNIS TIPS—A program of tennis instruction for juniors is being started on a two days a week basis. Contact Rex Smith at 811-5400 for additional information on this program . . . Other events are listed under "Sport Watch" on page 3.

Berlin Bears drop two toughies

by Marty Best

The Berlin Bears had a tough weekend as they lost 21-16 to the German Turnsport Club and lost to the French Army Team 22-18. The Bears were plagued by lack of depth Sunday night as they were within one goal with four minutes left and just ran out of steam. Against the French Monday night the same thing happened again although it was more of a mental lapse than a physical lapse. The league record is 2-2 while the French game was a scrimmage.

One of the biggest factors that hurt the Bears was the lack of a clock. Americans are just so time conscious that when there isn't one, and it's a close game, the situation becomes one of pressing. The tempo increases to such a point that there's a let-down when you don't score, and there actually is a lot more time. Anyone interested in being the team statistician and timekeeper contact Marty Best at 3553/3536.

In both losses the scoring was well-balanced with an equal load shared by Chuck Swannack, Dale Pirkle, Pat Patterson, John Spiezia and John Evina. Willie Rios and Pat Valentini provided the defensive spark plugs at the point.

Floor hard to take

The Bears had a tough time adjusting to the French gymnasium. It had a cement floor and the always rough and tough Bears looked like they just finished a rugby game after the onslaught. But as they say in the movies, "You ought to see the other fellas!"

The Bears must get some more team work or it will be a long season. Senseless turnovers and bad shots hurt the team unmercifully this last weekend. The basketball tournament has taken away the Sports Center gymnasium lately, so it will be good to practice there again.

Newcomers Ogden, Alley and Veenstra will be trying to make the team. Veenstra is a former Soccer All-American and has as hard a shot as anyone. After he learns the when and where of shooting he will become a super asset to the team. The Bears have a lot of interested players but military commitments often make it hard to scrape up a team.

New players, coach sought

So if ANYONE wants to learn a new tough sport, come and give it a try. None of the present members ever played before joining the Army and this is a very respectable team by any standards. We need a coach if anyone wants to spend two to three nights a week. Call Marty Best at 3536 or 3553 if interested in any of the above.

Next league game is Feb. 9 at 6 p.m. at the Tiergarten Unionplatz. Read your Berlin Observer for listings of games to be played at the Sports Center.

HHC-4-6 conducts b-ball clinic for British team

by Norm Ham

Last Thursday, Jan. 24, members of HHC, 4th Battalion, 6th Infantry, held the first of three basketball classes for a team from the King's Own Scottish Borderers.

The basketball clinic was established when WO II Norman Arnott, KOSB, mentioned to SFC Donald M. Groux, Asst. Operations NCO, HHC-4-6, that his basketball team was doing poorly. Mr. Arnott then asked if there was any way an American team could help them out.

SFC Groux wasted no time in offering the needed assistance. He quickly arranged for the facilities, coordinated with the HHC basketball team, and within the week our British Allies were shooting hoops at the McNair gym.

The 12-man British team came to McNair on Tuesday, Jan. 29 for their second class, and Thursday, Jan. 31 for the final session of the impromptu clinic.

Definite improvement

Playing a game on the same night of their first session, the KOSB team lost. However, Mr. Arnott said that there was a definite improvement in their playing and that the team felt more confident despite the loss.

"Basketball anyone?"

R&R program praised by participants

If someone offered you a free (or close to it) vacation, would you take them up on it? Sure you would. Then what are you waiting for? If you're eligible for a three-day pass, then AG Special Services has got a deal and a half for you. As a matter of fact, it's an offer you can't refuse.

It seems that the Army is trying out a new R&R program this month to see if enough interest can be generated to do it on a full-time basis. A three-day pass in conjunction with two days free travel time sums it up pretty well. You can go to the Munich AFRC and the Army will foot the transportation costs.

In case you're thinking that this is an adventure training-type deal, stop right where you are. The R&R program is strictly for the purpose of getting young enlisted men acquainted with the AFRC areas and making things as easy as possible for them. You travel in civilian clothes all the way, you take your dependents and once you get there your time is your own for three days. Out of the 80 people who've utilized the program in the past two weeks, not one had anything bad to say about the program.

This is the way it works. You contact your first sergeant or company commander and tell him you'd like to go. Then he contacts the battalion S-1, who requests orders and in turn notifies AG Special Services. Your name is put on a standard reservation list and they take care of most of the paper work. The Thursday prior to leaving, you go and verify your flag orders and then you're ready to go.

The following Sunday you take the duty train to Frankfurt and then travel from there by bus to Munich. That's another thing. If enough interest is generated, then train travel will be offered all the way. AFRC rates are $3 per night for a room without bath and $4.50 for a room with bath.

On the fifth day you travel back home. What did your vacation cost you? Just the price of a hotel room and your meals for three days and that's not a bad deal in anyone's book.

Oh, about you officers. Every group that goes requires an OIC and although the program is primarily for E-4s and below and their wives, if you want to go, you can get on the waiting list and go space available. If you have any questions about Special Services' R&R program, see your first sergeant or battalion S-1. —MM

Travel Notes

Parties at both recreation areas are open to all authorized patrons of the AFRC facilities and their guests.

For hotel reservations, when attending the Fasching party in Berchtesgaden, write the BRA Billeting Office, APO 09029 or telephone B'gaden Military (2538) 623 or 823; and for your Garmisch hotel reservations, write GRA Billeting Office, APO 09053 or telephone Garmisch Military (2535) 557 or 757.

DID YOU HAVE TO MISS OUT on AG Recreation Services trip to London in January? Take heart! You can go on the same tour on Valentine's Day!

This tour leaves Berlin the evening of Feb. 14 and returns the evening of Feb. 17. Tour price of $85 includes round-trip flight from Tegel Airport, bus transfers, and three hotel overnights in rooms with bath, plus a Continental breakfast each morning.

Don't miss out on this great offer! Stop by the Tours Office, Headquarters Compound, Building 2, Room 3077. For information, call 6523 or 6681.

Restrictions lifted

Travel restrictions on official and leave travel to Israel, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Jordan, Egypt and Libya have just been lifted. Such travel is authorized in accordance with AR 1-40, AR 630-5 and USAREUR REG 550-80.

Fasching at AFRCs

Fasching and carnival fun are underway through Germany and as in past years, the AFRC Berchtesgaden and Garmisch Recreation Areas will join in this party tradition.

Two Fasching parties are set for Berchtesgaden at the Berchtesgadener Hof Hotel, Feb. 2 and 9, with both fun affairs starting at 7:30 p.m.

In Garmisch, the Fasching party will be held at the Green Arrow Inn, Feb. 15, starting at 7 p.m. The Green Arrow will have a special menu for the evening and a prize will be awarded to the visitor with the most original costume.

C-2-6 runners-up

CSC-4-6 wins Brigade tourney

by Vincent A. Drosdik, III

Combat Support Company 4-6, won the 1974 U. S. Army Berlin Championship Basketball Tournament Wednesday night by edging Charlie Company 2-6, 66-62.

Leading the offensive for CSC was Jim Blassingame with 25 points. Not far behind was Bill Clark with 19, who led the team in rebounds with 16. CSC won the Brigade Christmas Tournament a month ago.

Leading C-2-6 was Jackie Mitchell with 22 points, while Larry Johnson added 18 and Paul E. Smith 10. Johnson led in rebounds with 18 while Johnnie Bruton had 13 and Mitchell 11.

In the next to last game of the tournament on Wednesday, C-2-6 edged the Independents 54-52. Johnson scored 20 and Smith 12 for C-2-6 while four Independents' players had 11 each: Paul Koenig, Bruce Peltier, Hezekiah Sistrunk and Mike McGuinn.

Based on four or more games played, Sean Walden of H&S-FSB led tournament scorers in point average with 19.6. Larry Johnson of C-2-6 led in field goals (63), points (135) and was second in average at 19.3. Blassingame led in free throw percentage at 1.000, 11 for 11 from the line. 'Ski Weeks'

The ban on Sunday driving in Germany has been lifted, but the arrival day for the AFRC "Learn to Ski Weeks" at Berchtesgaden and Garmisch will continue to be Saturday for the remainder of the season. The final day of instruction and graduation banquet will be on Thursday.

The AFRC "Learn to Ski Weeks" are open to all military personnel, dependents and civilians with PX privileges. Dependents must be 12 years of age, except the special Garmisch Easter Children's Ski Week, April 13-19, and those under 18 must be accompanied by an adult.

Entry fees for the "ski weeks" are $65 at Berchtesgaden and $70 at Garmisch, plus billeting fees. The entry fees include five days of instruction, lift fees, all equipment, except socks and gloves, most meals and a graduation banquet.

Entry arrangements may be made by writing or calling: Berchtesgaden Recreation Area, Attn: USA Ski School, APO 09029; telephone B'gaden Military (2538) 623 or 823 or GRA Billeting Office, Attn: Ski Week Reservations, APO 09053, telephone Garmisch Military (2535) 557 or 757.

GRA ski races

Two special ski races, slalom and cross country, have been scheduled for February by the Garmisch Recreation Area.

The slalom race is set for Feb. 2, at the AFRC Hausberg Ski Slope and the cross country competition is scheduled Feb. 10 at the AFRC Grainau slope.

Both races are open to all authorized patrons of the AFRC facilities and will be run in accordance with the 1973/74 FIC (International Ski Federation) rules and regulations.

Registration fees are $1.50 per person per event and may be paid at the race registration point.

Competition in the slalom will be conducted in four classes; junior, intermediate, expert, and ladies. The cross country race will be run over a three to nine kilometer course for junior, novices, open, and ladies classes. Entry may be made by writing the GRA Sports and Tournaments Office, APO 09053 or by calling Garmisch Military (2535) 679 or 824.

Billeting arrangements must be made by each racer by contacting the GRA Billeting Office, APO 09053 or telephone GM (2535) 557 or 757.

POLICE TROPHY—Last Friday Det. A met with an 8-man rifle team from the German Police for a competition rifle match. The two teams used special match rifles firing 10 rounds apiece at 200 meters, freehand, from either the sitting or kneeling and prone unsupported positions. The American team chose the sitting and the German team chose the kneeling position. The American team walked away with the trophy with their highest scoring man, SGT John R. Paulos, shooting an 84 out of a possible 300 points. BG Robert D. Stevenson presented the trophy and the Americans are sponsoring the rematch to be held in April. (Photo by Rich Bailey)

BAAA Stock Car members meet Feb. 6

The Stock Car Division of the Berlin American Auto Association will be holding a meeting in the Berlin American Auto Association Bays located at Andrews Barracks on Feb. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

The vice president of the Stock Car Division will be elected at this time. He will hold this office for the next six month period ending in July 1974.

Several important matters will be brought up at this meeting such as track modifications for the coming racing season, how the energy crisis may affect the coming racing season and also the new technical inspectors to be hired for the race days.

Our rules committee will present the new rules for the coming 1974 racing season at this time. All persons interested in stock cars are invited to attend this meeting.

Girl Scout Summer Day Camp planned

by Jane Forsythe

Lots of laughter, singing and growing . . . learning, sharing and camping . . . and all to be found right here in Berlin. I am speaking about the Girl Scout Summer Day Camp.

The 1974 Day Camp is being planned now for two exciting weeks of fun to be held in late June or July. This year's camp promises to be an opportunity for learning camping skills the fun way and a glorious exercise in outdoor enjoyment. Featured at the camp will be lessons in camping skills, outdoor hiking and cooking, and a close look at the nature all around. Arts and crafts provide a chance to learn macrame, weaving, jewelry making and creative painting. There will be music, folk dancing and songs galore.

And for the older camper there will be overnight sleep-outs with all the surprises and games that are reserved for the adventurous camper. Awaiting everyone, however, is the special satisfaction of having shared and learned the joy of working with and for the Girl Scouts.

The camp is open to all girls in the American Community between the ages of 7 and 18. This wonderful experience is open to non-Scouts as well as girls who are already Scouts.

The planning, directorship and counseling is also open to any interested adults in the community regardless of their prior connection with Girl Scouts. The Berlin neighborhood is encouraging both male and female participation in the planning for this year's camp. So, if you are an interested parent, fun seeker or concerned American, a hearty welcome is offered for your participation.

If you are interested in sharing your talents and time in this rewarding effort in living and learning together, contact the Berlin Girl Scout Neighborhood Chairman, Mrs. Jan Baxter, at 832-4395.

New Orleans mayor visits Berlin

Moon Landrieu (center with glasses) enjoys a meal at the 2nd Battalion, 6th Infantry Dining Hall last Friday. Landrieu, mayor of New Orleans, was in Berlin to open "New Orleans," the U. S. Exhibit at the International Green Week now being held at the Funkturm Exhibition grounds. Monday, Landrieu presented MG William W. Cobb, U. S. Commander Berlin, the key to the city of New Orleans as a token of friendship and appreciation. (Photo by Rich Baird)

Not just illegal drugs

Legal medications are abused, too

by COL. C. C. RILEY
USAF Hospital Commander
Grand Forks AFB, N.D.

To most people, drug abuse, or the "drug problem," has to do only with illegal addicting or hallucinogenic drugs, drugs which have no legitimate medical use.

Unrecognized by most, but equally serious, is the other face of drug abuse: the misuse of legal medications. This group includes alcoholic beverages and medicines prescribed by doctors or available without prescriptions. Properly used, these are for the most part helpful and, at worst, harmless. The danger arises when these are misused.

There is, for example, a legitimate need by some patients for an occasional "sleeping pill." The drug abuse occurs when the medication is taken continuously and the patient develops a dependence on it, when over-dosage is taken, or for many sleep producing medications, when taken while drinking.

Overdoses not uncommon

At least two celebrities died in the not too distant past as a result of taking a barbiturate (sleeping capsule) after an evening of moderately heavy drinking. Both deaths were initially reported as suicides. Subsequent investigation led to the conclusion in both cases that death was the accidental result of mixing alcohol and barbiturates. The combined effect is far greater than a simple addition of effects of the two when each is taken alone.

While the benefits of moderate alcohol consumption by the healthy may be debated, there is no question concerning the delirious effects of excessive consumption. Alcoholism is one of the leading causes of time lost from work, of disability, of death, and the leading contributor to highway and other accidents.

Tranquilizers, sedatives and mood elevators have a legitimate role in treating acute problems or acute phases of chronic conditions. Abuse occurs when the use is continued beyond the acute phases and the patient becomes dependent upon them "to get through the day."

Prescription medicines have inadvertently contributed to the abuse of drugs. State and federal laws have, in the past, permitted refill of most prescriptions without further authorization and without limits. Unless the original prescription prohibited or limited refills, quantities beyond that intended could be obtained.

The Food and Drug Administration has recognized these areas of danger and established classes of drugs which require varying degrees of controls short of those always required for narcotics. Limitations have been placed on the amounts which may be prescribed, the number of refills which may be authorized and the period of time during which the prescription remains valid. A new prescription may be written if there is still need for the drug.

The safeguards afforded under these regulations are not foolproof. The patient can, by seeing several physicians and patronizing several pharmacies, still obtain excessive quantities of almost any drug. Obviously this can be done intentionally. It can also occur accidentally when the patient presents himself to several physicians and fails to inform them of these dictations prescribed by others.

Over-dosage and prolonged usage from ignoring the directions given, borrowing another's medication, or experiments by teenagers and even sub-teens are other areas of abuse of legal drugs.

Today, television, radio and other advertising media promise instant health, success, love and fame if their product is used. It is little wonder that we have as a nation developed a "drug" culture.

New laws and regulations are helping decrease the dangers of abuse of legal drugs. The awareness of the patient is essential to the prevention of this, the other face of drug abuse.

Anchovies dangerous

Two-ounce cans of "Sporting" brand anchovies have been removed from sale in the European Exchange System Foodlands because of possible contamination. Customers who have purchased these anchovies should return them to their nearest EES Foodland for refund. The oval-shaped cans are labeled "Rolled Fillet of Anchovies" and are packed by Marques Neves and Calda of Portugal.

Emergency travel paks

EES is now offering "emergency travel paks" for your car. Any EES auto parts store has the order forms for customizing a spare parts travel pak especially for your car's needs. The suggested pak costs about $50 for most cars. It contains a set of fan belts; upper, lower and bypass water hoses; two adjustable hose clamps; water pump with gasket; one jar of soft gasket cement; two tail light bulbs; one box of assorted fuses and a jumper cable. Deluxe packages are also available and might contain all of the above items plus a starter motor, sealed beam headlight kit and a set of points.

Save gasoline

To find out exactly how much gas can be saved, the government conducted dynamometer tests using the M151, 1/4 ton truck and the M35A2, 2 1/2 ton truck. The results are somewhat dramatic and prove that you can save quite a bit of gas by reducing your speed.

Using the 1/4 ton truck the results were as follows: 25 mph-26.0 mpg, 30 mph-25.2 mpg, 40 mph-23.3 mpg, 50 mph-19.1 mpg. The difference in mileage at 25 mph and at 50 mph is a 16.5% difference.

The difference with a "deuce and a half" is even greater. At 30 mph-8.7 mpg, 35 mph-8.3 mpg, 40 mph-7.7 mpg, 45 mph-7.0 mpg, 50 mph-6.3 mpg. The difference of 30 mph to 50 mph is one of 27.6%.

Well, those are the figures, and the figures say that if you reduce your speed whenever possible, you'll save the government and ultimately yourself a lot of gas and money.

Maintenance pays off for 3-6 drivers

by Ralph Callaway

Vehicle maintenance—a constant headache with little reward is the often-made statement by many drivers. But good maintenance paid off this past week for the 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry as the drivers prepared their vehicles for use during the winter trip to West Germany.

It paid off in the relatively small amount of last-minute repairs often encountered by units in preparing for a major move, and from that in less time misused and therefore available for other activities—such as packing personal items a week ahead of time. It also paid off in no night work, performing the maintenance that drivers are supposed to do on a normal and recurring basis.

The high standard of maintenance in the battalion will have one further, but as yet unrealized benefit. With the vehicles already operational, the drivers will have to spend less time with them in the field, and will be able to devote more time to the ski training that will highlight the training this winter.

Ah!!! Relaxation at last!

Being 'strack' at 4-6 pays off

by Norman Ham

Would you like a day off? If you're a member of Co. C, 4th Battalion, 6th Infantry, that isn't an impossible dream. As a matter of fact, everyone in "Cougar Company" has the chance daily, if they can meet the requirements.

In this case the requirements happen to be being selected as the Soldier of the Day.

Seeking to raise the standard of appearance and personal hygiene within the company, First Sergeant Gerard M. Hines established the Soldier of the Day program.

Each morning the platoon sergeants designate a candidate from their respective platoons to compete. They base their selections upon the individual's personal appearance. Subsequently, the selected personnel go before 1SG Hines, where they are given a thorough inspection.

If the inspection fails to yield a noticeable winner, the men are then questioned on topics ranging from MOS proficiency to current events. Therefore, just looking sharp won't necessarily get you the day off. You must also be knowledgeable in your job and aware of what's currently going on in the world.

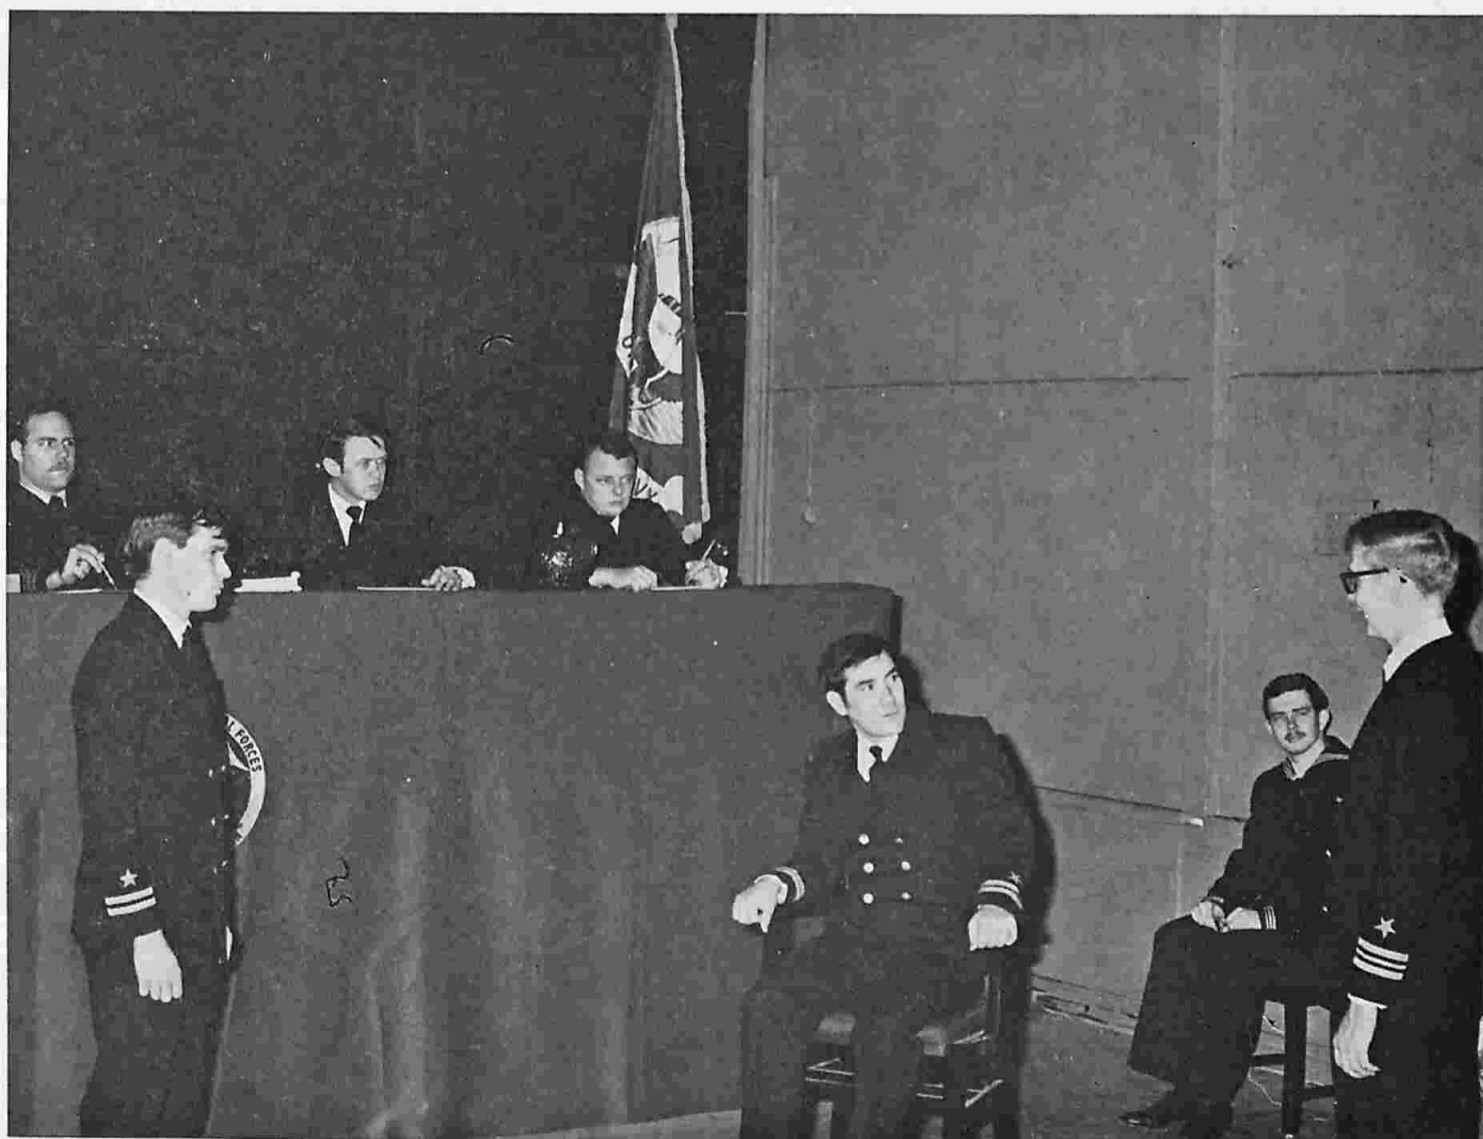

Upon being named the Soldier of the Day, the individual is exempt from duty from that point on for the remainder of that day.

With everyone knowing that the average G. I. will do almost anything to get a day off, the results of the program are quite obvious. Consequently, the appearance of the soldiers at C-4-6 has improved considerably.

Spring ain't sprung

The weather for February is usually similar to January's weather. Records dating back to 1851 show a normal maximum temperature of 35°F and a normal low of 25°F. The lowest temperature ever recorded was -15°F (1929) and the extreme high was 62°F (1912).

Most of the time we can expect a cold, cloudy month with snow or rain falling on an average of 13 days. Past records show February having more snow than any other of the winter months. We normally expect about 6½ inches of snow during the month, but in February 1969 and again in February 1970, Tempelhof had 17.3 inches of new snow, a record for the month. The past two years, however, February has had above normal temperatures and below normal snowfall.

FIVE FINGERS OF DEATH — Lo Lieh is a student of the oriental art of self-defense. It is his ambition to become the boxing champion of China. In this case the danger is outside the ring where our hero is subjected to a non-stop barrage of bullies and thugs. There is nothing but violence in this Kung Fu thriller. Nothing but. Also starring Wang Ping and Ping Pong.

AMERICAN GRAFFITI — Aaaaahhhooooo! Dis here's da Wolfman talking at ya. Dis here flick's about all da cats dat are cruising on main an' lookin' for da broads. It's all happenin' in da 60s wit da Pharoahs (dat's a street gang) and lotsa hot rods. Don't miss dis one.

PORTNOY'S COMPLAINT — The film version of Phillip Roth's steamy best-seller follows the adventures of a sex-obsessed young man and focuses on his relationship with a hypererotic fashion model. Hey Ma and Dad, don't send the kiddies to see this one or they come back knowing more than you do.

THE WRATH OF GOD — Revolution-torn Mexico the '20s attracted all sorts of crazy, rogue gringos looking for a piece of the action. Robert Mitchem is a renegade priest who becomes entangled in some dangerous adventures. Also starring Rita Hayworth.

ONE LITTLE INDIAN — James Garner fires up a trusty camel to escape the blue-clad soldiers of the U. S. Cavalry, who want to hang him for various offenses. He meets a boy on the run while in the desert and the two become fast friends in the face of adversity.

IMPORTANT PROGRAM NOTE TO OUR VIEWERS
During the next few weeks, there will be numerous last minute changes to the published program schedule. The problem is caused by slowdown in the mail delivery of our television films. AFN-TV is sending us special film packages to insure that we have enough material to remain on the air. However, these packages do not contain all of the same programs that are presently being shown on AFN-TV Berlin. We can schedule these special film packages in advance, because we are not sure precisely when they will arrive here. We strive to stick to the published schedule whenever possible and will promote changes during our broadcast day. An undesirable situation should be resolved by late spring. Until then, we appreciate your patience and understanding.

Green Week tempts taste

What's green, lasts nine days but is called a week, will break any diet and brings spring to Berlin in January? You guessed right, if you tipped on Green Week, that grand international agricultural fair which is held for the 38th time this year in Berlin. This weekend is your last chance to visit this fun food happening and I'd not miss this chance, because you'll have to wait another whole year for it to happen again.

Thirty countries are offering their specialties and you can gain 10 pounds if you try to taste everything — not to mention the many brews that tempt you in every corner of the exhibition grounds. Wine lovers will most famous German wine street in a sober condition. Winelike have difficulties in trying to get through the eries from all over Germany have set up cozy little booths were you can sample (for a fee) the various vintages. But you must be careful here, because fast-talking salesmen will try to sell you a whole lot.

But not only the products of German grapes are offered. Spain, France, Portugal, Cyprus, Italy, Hungary and Tunisia bring some very delightful wines to the fair. If you come past the Israeli stand, be sure to sample the Sahbra. It's terribly expensive, but after tasting it, you'll know why. Fresh figs are sold here too.

SAY CHEESE! — and you'll be confronted with varieties from Ireland, Denmark, Holland, Germany, France and Switzerland. You can take it home or try tasty toasts prepared with it. Sizzling steaks from Ireland deserve some attention. And then there are the biggest baked potatoes I've ever seen sold hot with butter in the British section.

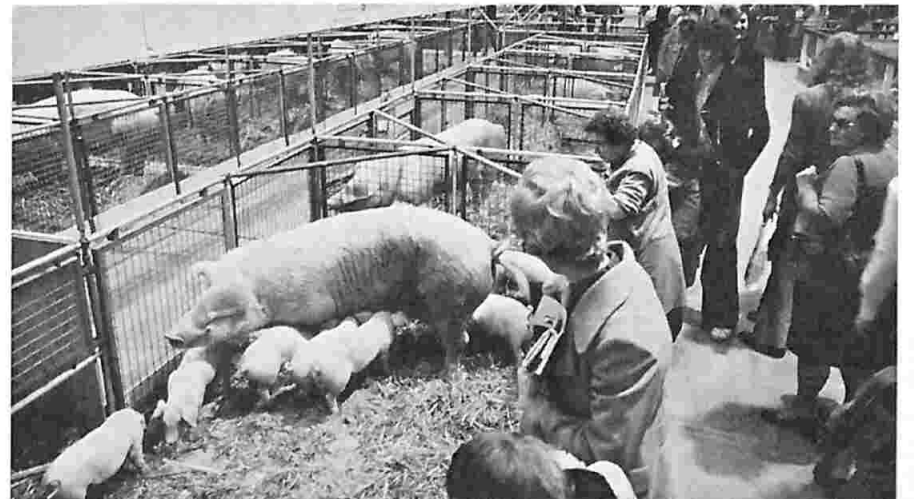

Got a sweet tooth? Then you won't be able to get past the cookies and chocolates that Holland and Belgium tempt you with. The popular Berliner Pfannkuchen are sold fresh right out of the oven.

LIKE I SAID BEFORE, a diet just doesn't have a chance at Green Week, and it would be a shame to resist all these temptations. But food and drink aren't the only attractions of this event. Nourishment for eyes and lungs are the big flower show and the garden center. The blossoms which glow brightly amidst green grass, trees and fountains are beautiful ambassadors of spring. Hobby photographers are always present here to take pictures of the delicate arrangements of precious flowers. The flowers are to be found in Hall 7, which can be recommended as an oasis in which to recover from the strain such a visit is bound to be, because there is so much territory to cover.

And then you have the big animal exhibition. Old MacDonald's farm with several new additions can be found in Hall 23. From tiny chicks which have just hatched to the biggest bull I've ever seen, the city dwellers can look, feel and smell a huge collection of farm animals. A great variety of horses is a special part of this exhibit this year.

BUT DON'T THINK that's all. Yours truly wound up with a pretty fur jacket after a Green Week visit. Adorable dirndl dresses, lovely china, a huge collection of garden furniture, fashions, gadgets and many, many more kinds of different wares are on display and for sale.

Hope that I've convinced you that a visit to Green Week is really worth your while. Don't dress too warm, because the exhibition grounds are well heated, put on comfortable shoes and take along lots of change for the sampling of food and drink. Do leave your car at home, because parking is a problem. You can take the U-Bahn to Kaiserdamm and from here special buses will operate at a normal city rate to take you to the main entrance of the fair on Jaffestrasse. Opening hours are 10 a.m.-7 p.m. and the admission fee is DM 4 for adults, DM 2 for students and DM 1 for children up to 14 years.

INTERNATIONALE GRÜNE WOCHE BERLIN 1974

International Green Week Berlin 1974

International Green Week Berlin 1974 on display at the Berlin exhibition grounds comes to an end on Sunday. Twenty-three exhibition halls in Germany's largest industrial city again are both the traditional and international meeting center for experts from the foodstuffs industry and from agriculture, as well as for hundreds of thousands of interested visitors. On the 88,000 sq.m of Berlin exhibition grounds, more than 1,000 exhibitors from over 30 countries submit a survey of the latest developments and technical achievements of modern agriculture and the foodstuffs industry, and present a world-wide range of foodstuffs. This year Halls 7, 8 and 9 form the garden center. Special attraction in the international flower hall (Hall 7) are thousands and thousands of flowers, and in Hall 8 the visitor is furnished with detailed information on flower production. The special show in Hall 8 organized by the Federal Ministry of Foodstuffs, Agriculture and Forestry takes place with the theme "Modern Gardening". Ornamental plants are the main subject. The exhibition can be seen daily from 10 a.m. — 7 p.m. Admission for adults is DM 4, students up to 18 years of age pay DM 2 and children 14 years and under accompanied pay DM 1. You can reach Green Week by buses 4, 10, 66, 69, 92, 94 or take the underground up to station Kaiserdamm or Theodor-Heuss-Platz.
ATTENTION MUSIC LOVERS — The Olympia Jazz Band from New Orleans is playing daily from 11 a.m.-5:45 p.m. at the American Exhibition of Green Week.
