Draw!!

Sheriff Wyatt Earp, played by Hondo Fuchner, has no patience for one of the bad guys, Ike Clanton, portrayed by Dave Nelson, and has a draw to settle the score. This scene is replayed several times during the Volksfest so all the cowboys get plenty of practice at shootin' um up.

Hopes to resolve differences

Presidential Commission to study military pay

President Carter recently announced the appointment of a nine-member commission to review the question of military compensation.

The announcement stated that the blue-ribbon panel will recommend changes based on their study of current pay and benefit programs.

The chairman of the President's Commission on Military Compensation is Charles J. Zwick, former director of the Bureau of the Budget. President Carter has directed Mr. Zwick to submit the commission's report to the White House by March 15, 1978.

Several already completed studies of military compensation will be reviewed by the commission. One of the major studies to be reviewed will be the Third Quadrennial Review of Military Compensation (QRMC) which was made at the direction of President Ford. The QRMC discussed several systems of pay and allowances, one of which was a salary system. Another study was the Defense Manpower Commission's report on military pay.

The President ordered the appointment of the new commission to get a fresh view of pay, benefits and the military retirement system.

Fully taxable salary

Previous attempts to provide a fair and efficient military compensation system failed to achieve general agreement. In April 1976, the Defense Manpower Commission recommended that the members of the armed forces be paid in the form of a fully taxable salary. The QRMC felt that members should continue to be paid through a modified pay and allowances system. In addition each of the various reviews of military retired pay came up with a different approach.

President Carter said that he expects the commission to resolve these differences and to propose one integrated, longterm solution to military compensation. He expects the solution to be fair to the taxpayers, as well as members of the armed forces.

Some of the specific items for study as outlined in the Executive Order include:

● What form of military compensation is the most effective for meeting the needs of the nation in peace and war?

● Is the present pay and allowances system appropriate?

● What changes offer greater potential to serve the national purpose?

● Are specific standards appropriate and necessary for setting and adjusting military compensation?

● What provisions are appropriate for differential compensation (special and incentive pays) and what are the appropriate criteria for using them?

● What are the purposes of the military retirement system and is the present system effective in achieving these purposes?

● Are changes in the retirement system necessary?

● Should the unique characteristics of military service be reflected in the compensation system; if so, how?

The commission will consider the total aspect of compensation for members of the armed forces; based on the final report, the compensation system for the future may undergo major changes.

Getting that estimate can save trouble later

Any motorist will tell you that nothing quite beats an unexpected repair bill for increasing the blood pressure and shrinking the size of one's wallet.

To put it bluntly, it can cost a lot to get a car fixed in Europe, especially in areas with a booming economy and high local wage scales.

"AAFES-Europe garages operate according to fixed hourly labor and/or flat rate prices," said Colonel Oran T. Hrncir, director of services, "and customers can determine about what it will cost to have auto repair before actual work is performed."

According to Col. Hrncir, the first consideration is the hourly pay rate for labor. Exchange garages in Germany, for example, must charge $12 per hour for labor. Even so, that is well below rates charged at German garages.

He said that once a customer understands the labor charges, the next thing to look for is the official price list which includes charges for the various services performed.

AAFES-Europe garages keep complete price lists of all services and local management is happy to go over potential repair expenses before the work is performed.

Customers who want fast, dependable repair work at the lowest possible prices can do a few things in their own behalf. "I advise the customer with a problem to ask for a diagnosis which is an hourly rate charge," said Col. Hrncir. When AAFES repairs the vehicle there is no charge for the diagnosis performed by the mechanic. The mechanic can check out the problem and determine what kind of work has to be done in advance.

"Then the customer should be sure to get a written estimate, and he or she can be reasonably sure what the total bill will be when the car is finished." AAFES-Europe pledges to stick to the written estimate, with a 10 per cent leeway to cover the unforeseen.

According to Col. Hrncir, it is unwise for a customer to drop the car off and say "fix whatever is necessary." He said AAFES personnel are honest, but it is quite possible that latent defects will be uncovered.

If additional defects are uncovered while mechanics are repairing a previously identified problem, local garage management will try to contact the customer and obtain authorization to go ahead and do the added job. Without that approval, the car will have to remain dismantled until the motorist gives approval or decides not to have the work performed.

AAFES is proud of its warranty, which covers parts, plus work performed, for 90 days or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first. In cases where a car runs fine until just after the warranty expires, AAFES does not charge for replacement parts, but must charge for labor.

Customers who have repair work done at an AAFES garage will be asked to sign a release of responsibility, Col. Hrncir continued. This release protects the exchange against cases where customers want specific work done that is not recommended by the manuals or according to AAFES procedure. For example, when a brake overhaul is required, the customer is expected to return the car to the garage for a check and readjustment within a specified period. Should the customer fail to follow that requirement, the warranty would become void.

According to Col. Hrncir, public relations play a large role in repair of a customer's car. "We are stressing that our service people use the personal touch when dealing with a customer," he said.

"We expect our local manager to act as a calming influence, explain the problem — and the potential expenses involved — order the needed parts and make an appointment at the earliest possible date. Whenever possible, we'll try to fix the car the same day."

Plan ahead and enjoy that vacation

Leave or vacation time is fun time — right? Not always. Some people work so hard at having fun that they end up hurting themselves or others.

Some people try to jam so much fun into every available minute that they knock themselves out. They over-stress themselves by doing more physical activity or different type of physical activity than they are used to. Instead of getting more sleep, they get less. They eat too much, too fast, at wrong times.

The night before the first day of leave or vacation can be more hectic than the last day of the reporting period in the office, or the last day of the production cycle in the shop. There are so many things to do and so many things to remember: clothes, tools, car, maybe a boat, maps, food, medicines, etc.

The whole family may be busy late into the night, and then gets up early to drive a long distance! It doesn't make sense when you think about it, but a lot of folks do exactly that. Results? Oftentimes headache, upset stomach, fatigue, irritability and occasionally even an auto wreck. This is fun?

And think about the children. The children are usually the ones for whom a family vacation is planned. But look what can happen. Trying to do too much in too little time puts parents under great stress.

Children are instructed, but in their own excitement they easily forget their instructions or become involved in other things. Then a most unfortunate situation can develop if parents under all these stresses lose their patience. Child abuse? Possibly. And wasn't this supposed to be a fun time for the children?

Here are some suggestions for getting the most fun out of your leave or vacation:

- Plan ahead; make checklists.
- Go to bed at your usual time. Better yet, get even more sleep than usual.
- Eat at your usual times; eat slowly.
- Don't count on much help from your children.
- Don't schedule yourself for driving excessive distances.
- Don't work too hard trying to have fun!

Where to have your car checked out

ONE FOR THE ROAD — POV Inspector Holger Saro takes a good look at a car's suspension system. The POV inspection point averages 650 vehicles a month.

So your car is making funny little noises when you start the engine? Or you're buying a new one from a friend, and it needs a safety inspection.

Free courtesy and safety inspections are offered at the POV Inspection Point run by Maintenance Division next to Yankee Stadium on Andrews Compound.

An inspector is on duty at all times weekdays from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

"Anyone can bring their car over any time and have it inspected if they think something is wrong or if they need a safety inspection," said SFC Burt E. Pinney, NCOIC of Quality Assurance Branch.

To be registered with USAREUR, all privately owned vehicles belonging to military personnel or DA civilians must pass a safety inspection at least once a year.

During the twenty minute inspection, headlights, brakes, the exhaust system, tires and a list of other items are checked for operating condition.

A car in good condition gets the green light. If minor repairs are necessary, the car owner is given 14 days to have the repairs made and returned for reinspection. For any major safety hazards such as brakes that don't work, the owner is given 24 hours to have the car repaired and reinspected. Otherwise, the MPs are notified.

Safety standards for cars registered with USAREUR are defined by USAREUR Reg. 190-3 and USAFE Reg. 125-8.

A team with style, grace and guts!

by Peter Palmer
3-6 Correspondent

"Volksfest marks the beginning of the drilling season," said David Hubbert, drill master, Berlin Brigade Drill Team. This year it also marks the beginning of the Drill Team's sixth year.

The past year was a year of travel and record exposure for the 16 "Good Will Ambassadors" from Berlin Brigade. They have performed for an estimated 5,400,000 people all around Europe, including TV shows at Birmingham, England and the Edinburgh Tattoo, Scotland. The list of engagements continues to the AUSA convention at Garmisch and all through West Germany as well as frequent performances in Berlin.

With the one drill left for this weekend, the Sogol NATO Ball, the Drill Team has 76 performances under its belt for the year. About their best performance this year, Hubbert said, "It's really hard to say. There's been so many of them. On TV in Scotland we had a really flawless drill. The most fun drills were the two times at Hagen, West Germany where the World Championship Go Kart Race Track is. They let us ride the go karts free and really showed us a good time."

Hubbert remarked that through travel the team has had the chance to meet soldiers from a different background, particularly during their Scotland sojourn, although the schedule was "pretty demanding."

"We go on a lot of tours which require the soldiers to give up their weekends," Hubbert said. They also practice every day for about five hours. Throwing a weapon around for that long is no easy chore, and it is done in addition to "other duties" required of soldiers with outstanding military bearing. Dress blues, TWs, greens and weapons, along with their rooms are all highly maintained.

Good weather poses no problem for practice, but when the weather is not so pleasant outside, the team must go inside, generally to the tennis bubble on McNair.

When walking down the first floor hallway between A Co.

and B Co., 3d Bn., 6th Inf., it is not unusual to hear the twirling of rifles from any of the rooms housing the team. If by chance you find yourself in the area, stop into the main office. One quick look at the walls covered with plaques and pictures presented to them on their travels will convince you of their really being ambassadors.

Hubbert has been with the Drill Team for a year and a half since his arrival in February, 1976. Coming from the Old Guard in Washington, D. C., he will soon be moving on to Hahn Air Base in West Germany where he will work in Air to Ground Liaison.

Viewing one performance of the Drill Team would convince you of how dangerous being the Drill Master can be. The knife edges that turn viciously through the air around the master's head and body require him to have that one rugged quality — guts.

Hubbert explained, "I've never been hurt really. I've been nicked by a rifle once or twice, but never stabbed. When standing in the center, I just stare straight ahead. Concentrating on that keeps me from thinking about anything else."

In addition to their various drills, the team also serves as the Honor Guard for the Brigade, a job which has led them to escort such notables as Henry Kissinger, Nelson Rockefeller and Vice President Walter Mondale.

The whole team deserves credit for their excellence and their spreading the STRAC image of the American soldier throughout Europe.

Hubbert added, "The older, more experienced men deserve a lot of recognition in helping the newer members attain the high level of performance required here. They're all top notch soldiers."

How does one get involved with the Drill Team? The team is authorized 24 total slots: Seven from each infantry battalion, one from each of the 287th MPs, 42d Engineers and C-94th Artillery.

They have 16 members now and, as Hubbert finished, "We're looking for a few good men!"

In DYA Major League action during the week, the Cardinals ended their season on a winning note with an impressive 9-4 victory over the Athletics on Tuesday night. Cardinal hurler Steve "Scooter" Foote, who pitched one of his finest games of the season, notched his second victory with strong relief help from Tim Bondiek. Timely hits by Bobby Harrell and Mike Foster helped pace the Red Birds' biggest win of the season. Greg Smell and Alex Mills cracked three and two hits, respectively; Martin Rice belted a 2-run double for the Athletics.

The Pirates scored their biggest triumph of the second half of the season with a blistering 14-5 beating of the second-half champion Giants. Pirate right-hander Robby Collins turned in one of his strongest performances yet in going the distance for the win. Collins helped his own cause by belting two hits on the day, including a two-run homer. Teammates Brian Peterson and John Roberson also collected two hits each. For the Giants, power-hitting Bob Colangelo boomed a two-run homer and Mike Miller added a triple.

The Athletics bested the Giants, 11-7, in the first game of the Major League championship series. Alex Mills smashed a booming two-run homer and Tim Garnto added a three-run shot to help give the A's a 1-0 series edge. Pitcher Kevin Sicotte picked up the victory in relief of Burke Slater; Frank "Tug" Greer took the setback.

The Giants evened the series at one victory each with a 11-2 blasting of the A's in game two Friday night. The Giants erupted for nine runs in the final two innings to break open a close game. Bob Colangelo earned the victory in relief of "Tug" Greer. Southpaw Dave Smell was the losing pitcher.

The Athletics became the Major League Champions with a decisive 5-2 victory over the Giants in the deciding game Saturday. Kevin Sicotte went the distance for the A's and notched another victory. "Tug" Greer was tagged with the loss. Alex Mills was again the hitting star for the A's with two hits. Curtis Diehl had two hits for the Giants.

During the week the Major League coaches selected the 18 All-Stars who will represent Berlin at the USAREUR Championships Aug. 8. They are: ATHLETICS — John Boettcher, Alex Mills, Kevin Sicotte, Dave and Greg Smell; GIANTS — Bob Colangelo, Frank Greer, and Mike Miller; REDS — Mike Allen and Pedro Casanova; PIRATES — Robby Collins, Dave Newman and Brian Peterson; CARDINALS — Tim Bondiek, Steve Foote and Keith Taylor; RANGERS — Mike Olguin and Mat Saint Pierre.

Athletics win Minor League title

The Athletics edged the Orioles, 9-7, Friday to sweep the DYA Minor League Championship playoffs and close out their season with a 15-5 record.

The Orioles jumped out to an early lead in the first three innings, but the A's bats came alive to take the contest. Lloyd McRae was the winning pitcher.

In the first game held Thursday, the A's rolled over the Orioles, 23-2, behind an awesome offensive attack. Kevin Evans smashed a pair of triples and Mike Hale added another three-bagger for the A's. Troy Fox picked up the victory.

The sweep of the series gave the A's a string of 13 consecutive victories as they were undefeated during the second half of the season.

AYCB fights storms during races

by Hal Shanfield
AYCB Rear Commodore

Mother Nature decided not to cooperate last weekend when the American Yacht Club Berlin (AYCB) held its first club racing series.

Rain poured down as various fronts went through, and the wind rose and fell unpredictably. Throughout the stormy weather the hard-core sailors of the AYCB continued to trash around the course, although at times the bouys were virtually invisible.

Despite the weather the racing was quite keen and the final outcome does not accurately reflect the closeness of the competition. This type of racing always proves to be a valuable training for the various international regattas in which the AYCB regularly takes part. Several more are planned before the AYCB club championship, the Commodore's Cup, which is held in August.

Some teams have more than two names listed due to the fact some of the racers were unable to compete in all the races and had to be replaced.

Bowling could go to metric

Could be one of these days you'll look at the sports page and read that some Joe Bowler racked up a big series with his Fandango model 7,257.6 gram bowling ball.

And that the pins weighing 1,474.20 grams were being checked by the American Bowling Congress to make sure there wasn't any monkey business with the wood.

And also, that the full width of 1,054 millimeters of the 19.1993 meter-long lanes were being inspected for possible "doctoring."

Sound funny? Sure. But what it really says is that the ball was 16 pounds, the pins were 3 pounds, 4 ounces, and that the lanes are 41 1/2 inches wide and 62 feet, 10 3-16 inches long from the foul line to the pit.

It's almost certain that one of these days the entire ABC rule book will be rewritten to reflect the present specifications in metric terms. Truly, ABC officials would rather not discuss the matter now.

But with the trend moving firmly toward nation-wide adoption of the metric system, one day you'll have to drill it into your noggin that:

1. The approach of regulation lanes will be 4.6 meters instead of "not less than 15 feet."
2. It must be 18.288 meters from the foul line to the center of the No. 1 pin spot rather than 60 feet.

3. It must be 868.37 millimeters from the center of the No. 1 pin to the pit (not including the tail plank) rather than 34 3-16 inches.

4. The lane plus the gutters shall not be less than 1,524 millimeters nor more than 1,530.35 millimeters, which is the equivalent of 60 inches and 60 1/4 inches.

5. The gutters should not be less than 234.95 millimeters nor more than 238.13 millimeters, which currently reflects 9 1/2 to 9 3-8 inches.

6. The pin spots shall be 57.15 millimeters in diameter and spaced 304.8 millimeters from the center of each spot to the adjacent pin spot, with those numbers being the equivalent of 2 1/4 inches and 12 inches respectively.

It shouldn't puzzle you why the ABC is ducking any talk about revision of its lane, ball and pin specifications.

How would you like to have to sit down and convert each and every detail of measurement and weight, including tolerances, to the metric system?

Probably would send you hurling head-long down the lane and smashing into the pins.

At least there's one redeeming factor out of the whole mish-mash: knocking down all the pins with 12 successive strikes gives you a perfect 300.

Haugen leads Berlin golfers

Skip Haugen led the Berlin golf contingent with a tie for third place at the USAREUR Golf Championships held last weekend at Garmisch.

Haugen shot a 77-78-77-77 for a 309 total. David Marrantette followed with a 78-75-84-76 for a 313 total and a tie for sixth place. Russell Farley shot a 86-84-72-87 for a total of 329 and thirteenth place.

The tourney is open to all active duty military personnel. As of press time, times and places have not been established. Registration for the tournament must be done with the Sports Office at 6168 by noon Aug. 5.

The USAB tournament will determine which athletes will represent Berlin at the USA-REUR tennis championships to be held at Garmisch Aug. 25-28.

Golf tourney deadline announced

The deadline for entry to play in the Berlin Invitational Golf Tournament is tomorrow. All interested golfers should contact Suzanne Campen at 813-7108. The tournament is scheduled for Aug. 22-24.

Housing policy changes

The Army's policy regulating application for military housing will change tomorrow for soldiers being assigned to CONUS posts, according to a recent USAREUR message.

Soldiers can have their names added to the quarters waiting list at the gaining installation by completing a DD Form 1746. The previous policy was that each soldier had to sign the list in person, which caused an increase in the waiting time on the list for the soldier.

At the time a soldier receives orders for the new Conus assignment he or she should fill out a DD Form 1746 to be sent to the Housing Office of his new assignment, so he can be added to the list at the soonest possible time and decrease the time on the waiting list.

Soldiers being assigned to Alaska and Hawaii on an accompanied tour must submit a DD Form 2370 that will add them to that installation's housing list.

Fitness of female soldiers being studied

With the expanding role of women in the Army, it is necessary to insure the continuing fitness of women soldiers. TRADOC is presently conducting a Physical Training Study to establish training policy and programs for all soldiers and raise standards for women. This study will parallel the policies in AR 600-9, The Army Physical Fitness and Weight Control Program.

DA staffers say that the study will establish higher levels of fitness for women and will support three categories of physical fitness:

- Baseline — applies to all personnel, male and female, who do not have higher standards imposed by MOS duty requirements or unit requirements.

- MOS related — acceptable levels of physical fitness in specific, critical, physical skills required of the soldier to do his or her job.

- Unit related — acceptable levels of physical fitness in physical skills required of the soldier to perform the mission of the unit to which the soldier is assigned.

Both the Surgeon General and TRADOC have started research to establish the physical fitness standards needed for each soldier to perform the tasks required in each MOS. Officials say that new screening procedures for recruits will evaluate general physical fitness (not medical fitness) relating to strength, stamina, muscular coordination, vision, hearing and other physical abilities for general military service and for specific MOSs.

House Services backs re-up bonuses

by John Hart

The House Armed Services Committee recently voted 23-2 in favor of a Senate amendment to the bill that extends authority for payment of enlistment and selective reenlistment bonuses to Sept. 30, 1978.

The Pentagon uses bonus payments of up to $15,000 to entice persons with critical skills to enlist and reenlist.

Earlier this year, both the Senate and House passed the bill extending the military's authority to offer the bonuses up to Sept. 30, 1978. However, the bill was not enacted because of the Senate amendment which the House had not considered.

The Senate amendment gives the Pentagon authority to recoup unearned portions of a bonus paid to an enlisted member who fails to maintain the technical qualifications required for the skill which was the basis for being awarded the bonus.

Vice Adm. John J. Finneran, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Military Personnel Policy, said that the Pentagon "strongly supports" the amendment.

However, under the current law, the Defense Department cannot terminate the bonus payments to enlisted members who are no longer technically qualified to perform the skill for which they are receiving the bonus.

Skill requirements

For example, when an enlisted member having received a bonus fails to maintain the minimum skill requirements, he or she is reclassified out of the skill but continues to receive the bonus payments if they remain in the service.

With enactment of the bonus bill as amended, the Pentagon will have control over such situations.

The Defense Department has "made a good case for the need for authority to recoup unearned increments of the enlistment and reenlistment bonus," Rep. Bill Nichols (D-Ala) said in his statement to the Armed Services Committee before the vote.

Nichols, chairman of the House Military Compensation subcommittee, said the Pentagon is developing procedures for determining when bonus payments should be terminated or unearned portions should be recouped.

The regulations "will provide adequate protection for the rights of the affected service member," Nichols said.

In May Finneran said the Pentagon's bonus administration regulation would be enacted when the bill as amended is enacted.

Rep. Donald J. Mitchell (R-NY) said the amendment "is a refinement of the existing system that is designed to remove an undesirable incentive resulting from the inability to terminate bonus payments when they have not been earned."

According to Nichols, the Pentagon estimates that approximately 1300 such cases will occur next year.

"Although the number of misdirected payments is not large compared to the total enlisted force, the adverse morale impact can be multiplied manyfold," Mitchell said.

TCA needs Airlift relics

Berlin . . . Help! This is what the United States Air Force is asking the Berliners to do. Help find old items that were used during the Airlift Days in 1948-49. Dig into your basements, closets or attics and see what can be found. Do you have one of the small parachutes that dropped candy from the Candy Bomber; an old flour sack that brought in life's bread; maybe you have special pictures or newspapers from that period; or just about anything can be used. The Air Force is asking that these items be donated to Tempelhof.

Special arrangement have been established to make sure all donated materials are protected and accurate records of who donated the material will be maintained. If anyone is interested and has an item to donate from the Airlift days for public display, please call the 7350th Air Base Group, Office of Information, Tempelhof Central Airport at Berlin tele: 819-5392/5283. Or, write to the following address: United States Air Force, Office of Information, Tempelhof Central Airport, 1000 Berlin 61. Mark the envelope: Attn: Luftbrücke Display. Arrangements will then be made to receive the donated material for display.

DYA gets new bldg.

by Shana Keller
Staff writer

The week following the Volksfest will be a hectic one for the Dependent Youth Activities (DYA) as they prepare for ground breaking ceremonies for the new DYA building.

The new DYA will be located across from the Commissary on Marshall Str. and will double the floor space of the old DYA as well as house many new features such as an indoor/outdoor forum, two terraces with grills, a non-spectators gym, carpeted floors, piped in music and a snack area with vending machines.

Next year the DYA gym, with its special tile floors, will be used for the Volksfest.

A special feature next year will be a separate area for teens and pre-teens to gather; the pre-teens located to the front of the building and teens in the rear. Both areas will be identical in appearance, but the separation of the kids will allow them to mix with their own peers.

The completion of the new DYA house is expected between Oct. and Nov. 19, 78. However, the Gym area will be completed just prior to next year's Volksfest.

She's a woman and soldier who's really 'tops'

by Marilyn Stringer
Staff writer

She's a master sergeant, a soldier and a woman.

However, that once not-so-ordinary combination is becoming less and less surprising in the Army.

Master Sergeant Doris M. Harding, NCOIC of Wannsee Recreation Center, is the only woman E-8 in the U. S. Army Berlin Command, and when she arrived in Jan. 1976, she was one of the command's first women E-7s.

She's part of the ever-changing look of the armed services which she herself has seen and experienced since signing up in "the old brown shoe" Army 19 years ago.

She was three years old when a cousin who was a World War II fighter first interested her in soldiering. When he came home on leave, she'd stuff his hat with newspapers to wear it. He was killed later in Germany.

She joined in 1957 after turning 18 and became a dental assistant assigned to Ft. Hood, Texas. "I was there when Elvis took his basic," she laughed as she told how one of her colleagues stole the rock star's bite-wing x-rays.

After her first enlistment, she claims "seven months and 11 days reserve time" before she decided to make the Army a career.

"Even though the pay wasn't that great, there were still a lot of benefits," she said, talking about the health care, insurance and housing offered. "I was living in Colorado and was afraid to even go skiing because I couldn't afford the insurance if I broke my leg."

Her second enlistment took her to Ft. Riley, Kan., where she was made company clerk. Soon after being awarded the MOS of personnel specialist, she received orders for Camp Zama, Japan. She arrived Sept. 1962 for a two and a half year tour.

Promotions up to E-4 came regularly. However, promotions in her specialty had been frozen. At Camp Zama, after six years time in service, she was promoted to Specialist 5.

Then, an admin specialist, she was assigned to Walter Reed Army Medical Center where she became associated with a senior noncom "who thought everyone should be in recruiting duty." The NCO, at least, sold her, and after three months back in the States, she had applied and was accepted for recruiting duty in Ohio.

For the next five years, she served as a WAC counselor to prospective women service members. She was promoted to E-6 six months after going on recruiting duty and a year later, Feb. 1967, she was promoted to E-7. "It took me ten years to make E-8," she smiled, shaking her head.

She spent five more years in Louisiana on recruiting duty when the Army did away with WAC counselors. So, she volunteered for a Berlin assignment as a career counselor.

She spoke of her early recruiting days and of the limited role for women. "For a long time we talked medic and admin. Then, the medical field became crowded and signal opened up." She went on to say that many women couldn't qualify for a school because they lacked the general mechanical aptitude.

When she was promoted to E-7, she replaced a woman in Dayton, Ohio, who was being discharged because of pregnancy. Until the early seventies, women soldiers with children meant a discharge and an automatic bar to reenlistment.

"I think a woman has more of a chance in competing with her male counterparts now," she said. "If a person is looking for a career in the service, man or woman, it is attainable if they're willing to strive and work for it."

As for women's expanding roles — perhaps even into combat arms, she said, "I think it depends on the individual. You can't put a five foot woman with a small build at the wheel of a truck where her foot can't even reach the pedal." She went on, "But I think a woman can do anything she has been trained to do, especially if she's interested in her work."

As for her own broadening role as an NCO, she feels there's a need for senior NCOs to become more involved and concerned with troop problems. "We don't really get involved enough with the lower graders. We don't always know their problems, such as the people who live in the barracks. We shouldn't be in a position where we are so far removed." She continued, "I like to feel that anyone with a problem that I could help, can feel free to come and talk it over with me."

Not planning to retire for "at least two years," the master sergeant soon expects reassignment to the States, "hopefully" in the south.

British Chieftains visit 40th Armor

by Peter Palmer
3-6 Correspondent

Could it be true? Two menacing monsters joined forces right here in Berlin. No, it's not the plot of a Japanese monster flick. It's the visit of three British Chieftain tanks to 40th Armor.

Last week, three Chieftains roared down the Autobahn from Smuts Barracks in the British Sector to Turner Barracks, home of F Co., 40th Armor. The visit came as a result of a coordination by 2LT Robert D. Glover to welcome the 5th Royal Inniskilling Dragoon Guards to their temporary home in Berlin. The "Skins" have been in Berlin for five weeks now, while the Scots Dragoons Guards are training in the zone.

One year ago the "Skins" who were relieved by the Scots Dragoons Guards came to 40th Armor with their tanks. "We had training and tank competition for a couple of weeks. Now we hope to do the same with the new unit," said SSG Robert M. Swadish.

Twenty British troopers accompanied the tanks. Shortly after they pulled into the motor pool they were treated to lunch in 40th Armor's Dining Facility. A few troopers sampled some Mexican food, but preferred roast beef.

"I think I'll stick to beef, potatoes and peas. And chips of course!" remarked Trooper "Taffy" Williams. "It's a nice place you've got here. More like a restaurant."

"After lunch we'll do some socializing with some softball," explained Glover. The day was spent leisurely playing ball and laying the ground work for the next time they meet. Then it will be for training and competition.
