

All's set for fun run competition tomorrow

Tomorrow members of the American, French and British forces stationed here, along with civilians from the German community will be enjoying one another's company, while keeping in shape.

The event is the German/American Fun Run, which is scheduled to begin with registration at 8 a.m. The races will start at Marshallstrasse near the shopping center bus terminal, and finish at the BB Sports Center soccer field.

The event will feature runs of 1,000, 2,000, 5,000 and 10,000 meters and American units entering the brigade squad competition should have already signed up. In order to earn Commander's Points all members of each team must complete the run.

A squad consisting of eight members from each company in the brigade will enter and run as an integral unit from start to finish. Team trophies will go to the members of the top two teams, and trophies for the individual competition will be awarded to the first three place finishers in each category.

In the individual competition, a 1,000 meter run for boys and girls ages 11 and under will commence at 9 a.m. and a 2,000 meter run for both boys and girls ages 12 and under will start at 9:30 a.m. The 5,000 meter run for boys and girls ages 13-17 kicks off at 10 a.m.

Another 5,000 meter run will begin at 11 a.m. This run is for women in the 17-30, 31-40, and over 40 age-group categories. At noon the men in age groups 14-30, 31-40, and over 40 will start their 10,000 meter trek, and, for the finale, which starts at 12:30 p.m., the U.S. squad entrées will run the 10,000 meters.

Everyone finishing the race will be awarded a special certificate immediately following the conclusion of each run.

Band plays Sunday

The 298th Army Band will present a show for the community at the Outpost Theater Sunday starting at 3:30 p.m.

The entire band will be featured and everything from marches to Manilow will be performed. Plus the Brandenburg Express, Westside, and Jass Combo will all be doing their thing.

In order that everyone in attendance may enjoy the show, it is requested that children be accompanied by an adult.

Volksfest ceremony set

A groundbreaking ceremony for the 21st German-American Volksfest will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the traditional Volksfest grounds at Marshallstrasse and Huettenweg in Dahlem.

This year's theme "Dakota Badlands" salutes South Dakota's development and contributions to the taming of the American West.

TCA opens house soon

Keep your calendar open for the Tempelhof Central Airport Open House May 9 and 10.

Among the highlights for this year's Open House will be static displays of aircraft, the Army Golden Knights, Berlin Brigade Drill team exhibitions, Allied events, armored personnel carrier rides and much more.

Shoplifting is worldwide; exchange, soldiers suffer

People are stealing from you around the world, everyday, in Shopping centers and stores, and the Army and Air Force Exchange Services are no exception.

According to Henry Vinson, Berlin Post Exchange manager, yearly losses due to shoplifting in AAFES outlets, worldwide, are staggering. He adds that it's the average customer who eventually pays the price.

Shoplifting hurts everyone. Everytime something is "lifted" from the PX, prices go up somewhere. The price increases may add only pennies to some prices, but they are a must to cover losses suffered by theft.

A Berlin PX detective put shoplifters in the same category with barracks thieves.

"Everyone hates a barracks thief, he's the worst of all because he steals directly from his buddies. Shoplifters steal from their friends too, either way somebody else pays."

Profits from exchange activities go into the Army and Air Force Morale Recreation Funds. These funds help provide facilities such as swimming pools, bowling alleys, libraries and craft shops — all of which benefit military communities. Shoplifters take a big bite out of these profits each year, PX officials commented.

The detective stated that small, inexpensive luxury items were most popular with shoplifters, cosmetics, jewelry, clothing are placed at the top of the list.

"The items are usually things the customer sees, doesn't have the money for and can't wait to have. No one has ever stolen a bar of soap or a bottle of cough syrup," he said. "I'm still waiting to catch someone stealing a tube of toothpaste. I think

IT'S ILLEGAL — Shoplifting is illegal, but it doesn't stop thousands of people from 'pocketing' small items in department stores and AAFES outlets each year. Unfortunately many of the thieves go free and it's the customers who end up paying the final price.

Housing work orders help; but . . .

My basic outfit is paper with a lot of printing all over. Like so many of my relatives I was created out of neglect. Neglect by the person who put cooking grease down the kitchen sink.

Now the drain is stopped up and nobody can do the dishes. They called the Work Order Desk at the Directorate of Engineering and Housing at 819-6666 and mentioned the problem, which even a amount of drain cleaner didn't solve.

The clerk took down name and address plus telephone number, and gave the caller an appointment time. It was acceptable and the clerk gave the caller the number assigned to me (of course I like to think of it as my name), so that in case of a cancellation or such, I can be traced and re-scheduled.

Then the clerk asked the caller to refrain from using caustic materials such as drain cleaner, since it burns the hands of the plumber opening the grease trap under the sink. Also, the three-inch pipes found in the kitchens of Berlin just aren't meant to "digest" anything heavier than water with perhaps some soapy suds in it.

While I was sitting on the shelf waiting for the plumber to collect me, I listened to the other work orders. My relatives are talkers!

It seems the thing that makes work order clerks unhappy is callers who can't seem to properly identify or describe the problem, whether it's a defective washing machine, a power outage or a broken window.

"Please come and fix a broken window," asks a caller. Now wouldn't the ordinary person think this means the glass? The clerk did and dispatched the glazier. As it turned out, it wasn't the glass at all. The rocker arm, which opens the window to the slant or the wide-open position, was broken. The Metal Shop had to take the work order. Wasn't that a waste of time! When calling for work orders, being specific can save wasted time.

We all love to come and visit in your home. The craftsmen of the DEH are here to serve you. But, think of the time and money wasted when we have to repair items made useless from neglect!

Everybody's gone

And one more thing! We hate to go up four flights of stairs when the occupant doesn't answer the door. Can you believe some people make appointments from the office and then forget to tell their spouse about it? Imagine people married for so long and no talking! Of course, that's another story altogether!

Cancelling an appointment with the craftsman is as easy as dialing a telephone. If there is a true emergency, perhaps a neighbor could still let in the craftsmen? At least the Work Order Section could be called later for another appointment.

When the work order clerk takes down an order, the caller is given a time and date when to expect the repairman. If the appointment between 8 and 10 a.m. in the morning, doesn't it follow that perhaps the craftsmen may indeed show up at 8 a.m.?

A true emergency

Before I let you go, may I remind you about the definition of an emergency? A true emergency exists when loss of life or limb may be expected or damage to government property is eminent or can reasonably be expected. A true emergency is when someone is stuck in an elevator or a small child is locked inside an apartment and mom is outside unable to find her keys, and dad, who carries the spare, can't be found.

Of course a fire is always an emergency and ought to be called in to 819-95 immediately (from a civilian phone).

However, anytime an emergency cry is being dispatched, night or day, and it becomes apparent that no true emergency existed, the occupant will be held liable for expenses caused by this "wild goose chase."

The administrators and the craftsmen of the Directorate of Engineering and Housing, from the director to the youngest trainee, are here to serve you, the U.S. community. They will come to your home anytime there is a true need.

For those of you who love statistics, in 1980 there were 48,896 Service Orders, 16,522 Individual Job Orders, 468 Monthly Orders, and 121 Standing Operating Orders filled. That's a lot of hours spent, and a lot of manpower. For myself, I am proud to be a Work Order from the DEH.

Crime stop

The Military Police are requesting assistance from parents in an attempt to gain information on the setting of a fire in the basement of 9 Taylor Strasse in the Berlin Brigade housing area April 17.

American juveniles were seen in the area just prior to the fire and investigators ask that parents talk to their children to find out if they were either involved in setting the fire or know who might have been involved in setting the fire.

Parents should also explain to their children the dangers and hardships that fire may cause.

Any information, whether official or confidential, should be given to Michael Loper, an investigator for the Berlin Military Police, at 819-3530 or 819-35

Don't invite theft

Members of the military community are advised that parking or storing bicycles in areas where they cannot be properly secured is inviting theft.

The Military Police would like to remind you that a simple chain lock placed through the frame of the bike that is secured to a permanent object is the best security available when riding about town.

When you finish riding, secure the bicycle inside your quarters or storage area out of plain view.

Your mistake hurts family

Error costs quarters loss

PFC John Doe learned some cold, hard housing facts today. His Article 15 cost him more than his stripes and a few dollars from his paycheck. He has to move his family from quarters, too.

No one had ever told Doe what the consequences were if an E-5 was reduced in rank to PFC or below. He didn't know he'd have to move from quarters within 30 to 90 days of the reduction, or that his only other option was to return his family to the states. He knows now, however, and he doesn't have much time to make up his mind.

Doe decided to look at the options available with each alternative before making up his mind. He found out that either way the Army would move him. If he moved into local housing he'd also receive separate rations, and BAQ, COLA and Station of Housing allowances totalling about $337 a month. If he returned his family to the states, he'd receive about $180 a month in BAQ and Variable Housing allowances each month.

The problem seemed pretty simple at this point. Doe figured with all the extra money he'd be making, getting an apartment off post would be no trouble at all.

Full of enthusiasm, Doe headed for the Housing Referral Office and his second big shock of the day. His $337 converted to roughly DM 670. Not bad except that an average two bedroom apartment would cost around DM 900 plus electricity, heat and telephone, each month. Of course the landlord wanted a two-month deposit, too. Suddenly DM 670 in benefits didn't seem to stretch very far.

A couple of minutes with some basic arithmetic only further depressed him. He estimated he'd be spending about $250 out of his basic pay of $558.68 each month to support his family. Added up, the total was a staggering $2,700 a year.

Doe still didn't know what to do, so he decided to talk it over with his wife. The talk wasn't going to be easy though, not after the way he'd let her down. And for Doe, the toughest part of all was knowing his wife and child would suffer for something he did without thinking about the consequences first.

news notes

Travel Requirements for Finland

U. S. citizens, including active duty military personnel, must be in possession of a valid U. S. passport to enter Finland. This applies regardless of whether the traveling servicemember is in a leave or duty status and regardless of whether travel is by air, sea, or surface means from any other country. Possession of a valid U. S. Armed Forces ID card is therefore not sufficient. Furthermore, the wearing of military uniform in Finland by members of foreign military services is prohibited; therefore, U. S. SM are not authorized to wear uniform while in Finland.

Wall patrol's mission is emphasized

by Dave Moreland

Soldiers of the 4th Battalion had a visit from Brig. Gen. John E. Rogers on a recent wall patrol. The Berlin Brigade Commander observed the Scouts in action and for the soldiers it was a special patrol, since it isn't very often that Rogers gets a chance to actually accompany a wall patrol.

For the most part the patrol was routine for the Scouts. Sightings of East German patrols along the wall were recorded. Being a warm day there were smiling West Berlin children waving to the patrol along nearly every street.

Sp4 Gary Young, of Combat Support Company, 4th Battalion, said, "I've been conducting wall patrols for a while now and before it was only a duty. Having the brigade commander go out with us made me realize how important our mission is."

Young wasn't the only member of the patrol to realize the importance of his job. PFC Kenneth Allen also of Combat Support Company, 4th Battalion, said, "Being a gunner I felt more conscience of my responsibilities for the patrols security when the brigade commander was present."

Both Young and Allen remarked that Rogers seemed very interested in how the Scouts performed their mission. Young said, "I like having the commander with us. I think it reminded every Scout that we're an important part of the brigade's mission here in Berlin."

It's not often that the junior enlisted soldiers have such contact with a general, so when they do, it leaves a deep impression. As Allen said, "Having the general with us on a wall patrol is something I'll remember for a long time."

Entire battalion joins FTX

2nd prepares for ARTEP

by Sue Sweeney

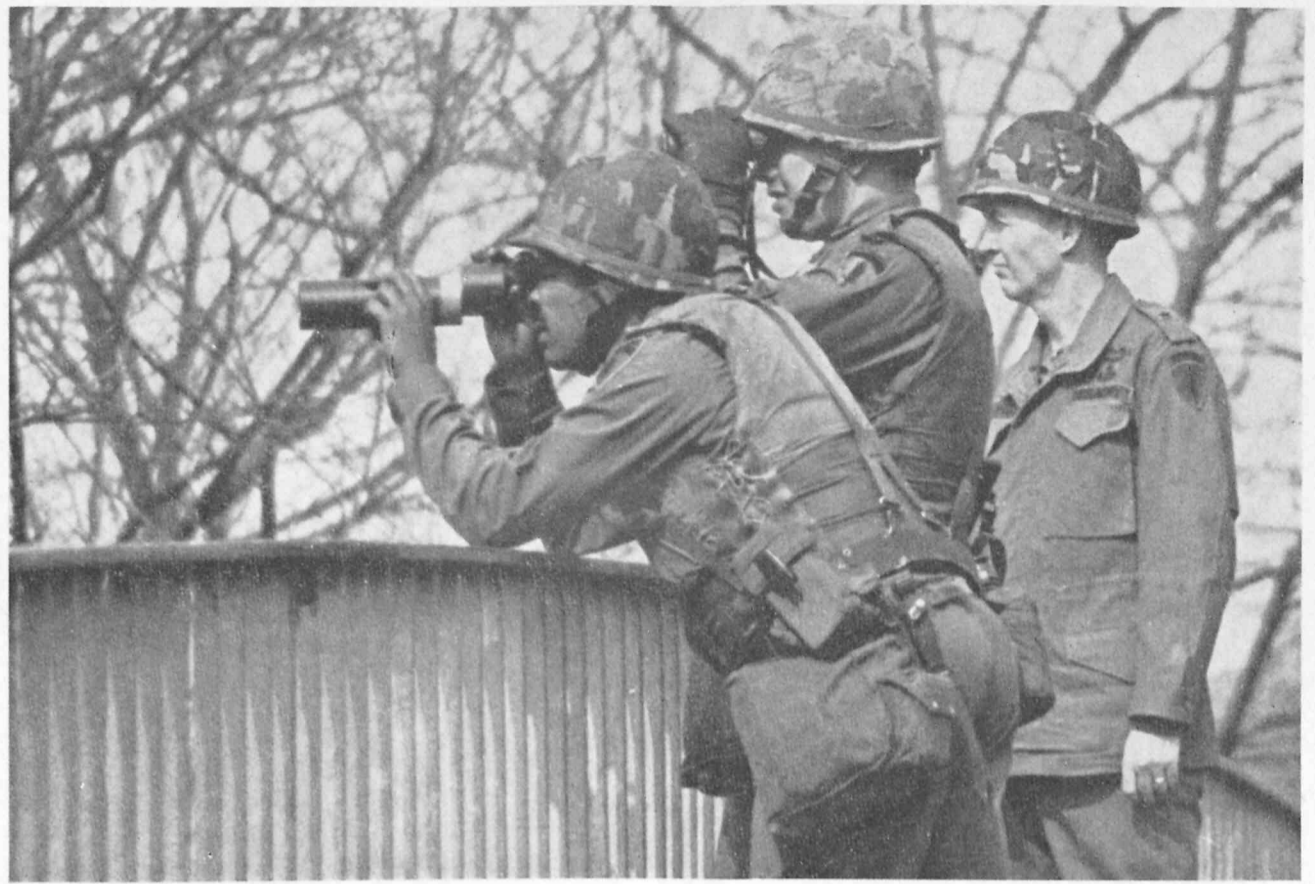

Lots of training and little sleep were the characteristics of 2nd Battalion's Field Training Exercise held last week.

The battalion's FTX was designed to prepare the soldiers for the upcoming Battalion Army Training and Evaluation Program as well as to improve the platoon and company level operational abilities.

It also gave the battalion a chance to work together as a coherent unit. The entire battalion participated in the FTX. The infantry soldier, the medics, the cooks, the support sections as well as many others spent three days in the Grunewald Forest.

The soldiers performed many missions while on the FTX. Among the highlights were night withdrawals, preparing for counterattacks, movement to contact operations and many defensive operations. Meanwhile the rear elements provided the support necessary for these troops to keep going.

The aggressors for the FTX were the members of Company C, 4th Battalion. The company used

Commo section chief helps unit win another 'best shop' award

by Sue Sweeney

"Who's responsible for this?" is a question that is often asked when something is wrong. Often it's a question that no one likes to answer, but not always.

SSgt. Sholon Rucker, Combat Support Company, 3rd Battalion, should be proud to answer that question. He is the soldier directly responsible for 3rd Battalion winning the Commo Shop of the Quarter award again.

Rucker is the tactical communications chief of the three-man shop although until last week, they were a two-man shop. Rucker has been in the tactical communications field for about two of his eight years in the Army.

"I have only worked with this type of communications since I have been in Berlin," said Rucker. "Before that, I was stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C. for signal communications. I used to splice cables and work with civilian telephone lines," he laughed.

"Winning this time was easier than the first time," said Rucker. "The first time, my shop tied with 2nd Battalion's, and Sgt. Phillip White, the 2nd Battalion's tactical communications chief and I were required to take a test on our general tactical knowledge."

White, Company C, is also a two-time winner of the award.

"Rucker's Shop is kept in excellent condition," said the inspector, SSgt. Dexter Tolbert, NCOIC of the Tactical Communications Branch. "His equipment is immaculate. He has a large number of vehicle mounted radios that are kept in outstanding condition. When I inspected Rucker's shop, I was very impressed."

"The Commo Shop of the Quarter Award is designed to recognize the work that is often done behind the scenes," said Tolbert. "It was also to increase professionalism and promote esprit de corps among communications personnel."

"I do my job as well as I can," said Rucker. "I get support from my company as well as from the battalion. Also my wife encourages me. I would say that she is the biggest influence on my career."

"She also encourages me with my hobbies," said Rucker. "I like to do things that are electronically oriented, and she often buys me electronic kits. I tinker with radios, and other equipment."

"For anyone who wants to be good in the tactical communications field, I would advise that you put your heart and soul into your work and study your technical manuals thoroughly. Also try to get as much schooling and on-the-job training that you can. It's very important."

the tactics that they had learned during their last ARTEP.

"Using these tactics made 2nd Battalion's job tougher," said Sp4 Tommy Johnson, from 4th Battalion. "We were well organized and that benefited the soldier's of our battalion as well as the ones from theirs."

"I learned a lot by being an aggressor," said Sp4 Rennie Collie, another member of 4th Battalion, "I learned how to work as a part of a large team and how to travel alone and orientate myself at night."

The 2nd Battalion members agreed that they learned new things by having this FTX.

"I learned how to withdrawal and some other new techniques," said Sp4 Jeffrey Ellis, Company C, 2nd Battalion. "Plus, I also learned how to work better with the members of my company."

"I really enjoyed being out there on the FTX," said PFC Wardell Edwards, "I just joined the weapons squad, so I learned how the other members work, some new fighting positions and I was very surprised to learn how important the soldiers that support the battalion can be."

PT is fun with new program

by Linda Jach

Female soldiers can stay happier and healthier thanks to a new program here.

It's called the Women's Physical Fitness Class and is given by the Women's Sports Coordinator, Sheila Graham. The classes are designed to maintain fitness, especially among overweight women or those who can't usually get out.

"Actually, what we're doing is giving women an alternative to Physical Training," Graham explained.

"The exercises we do are designed to help them stay fit and improve their posture and deportment — the way one carries oneself," said Graham.

Classes are held three days a week on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from noon to 1 p.m.

Ladies limber up on Monday and Tuesday during "land exercises." These classes are held in the swimming pool lobby of the BB Sports Center. Following a routine of stretching and stress exercises, the ladies hit the water for more exercise fun.

"It doesn't take a swimmer to do the exercises, either," said Graham. "Mostly we use the baby pool and maybe go into the larger pool on the shallow end."

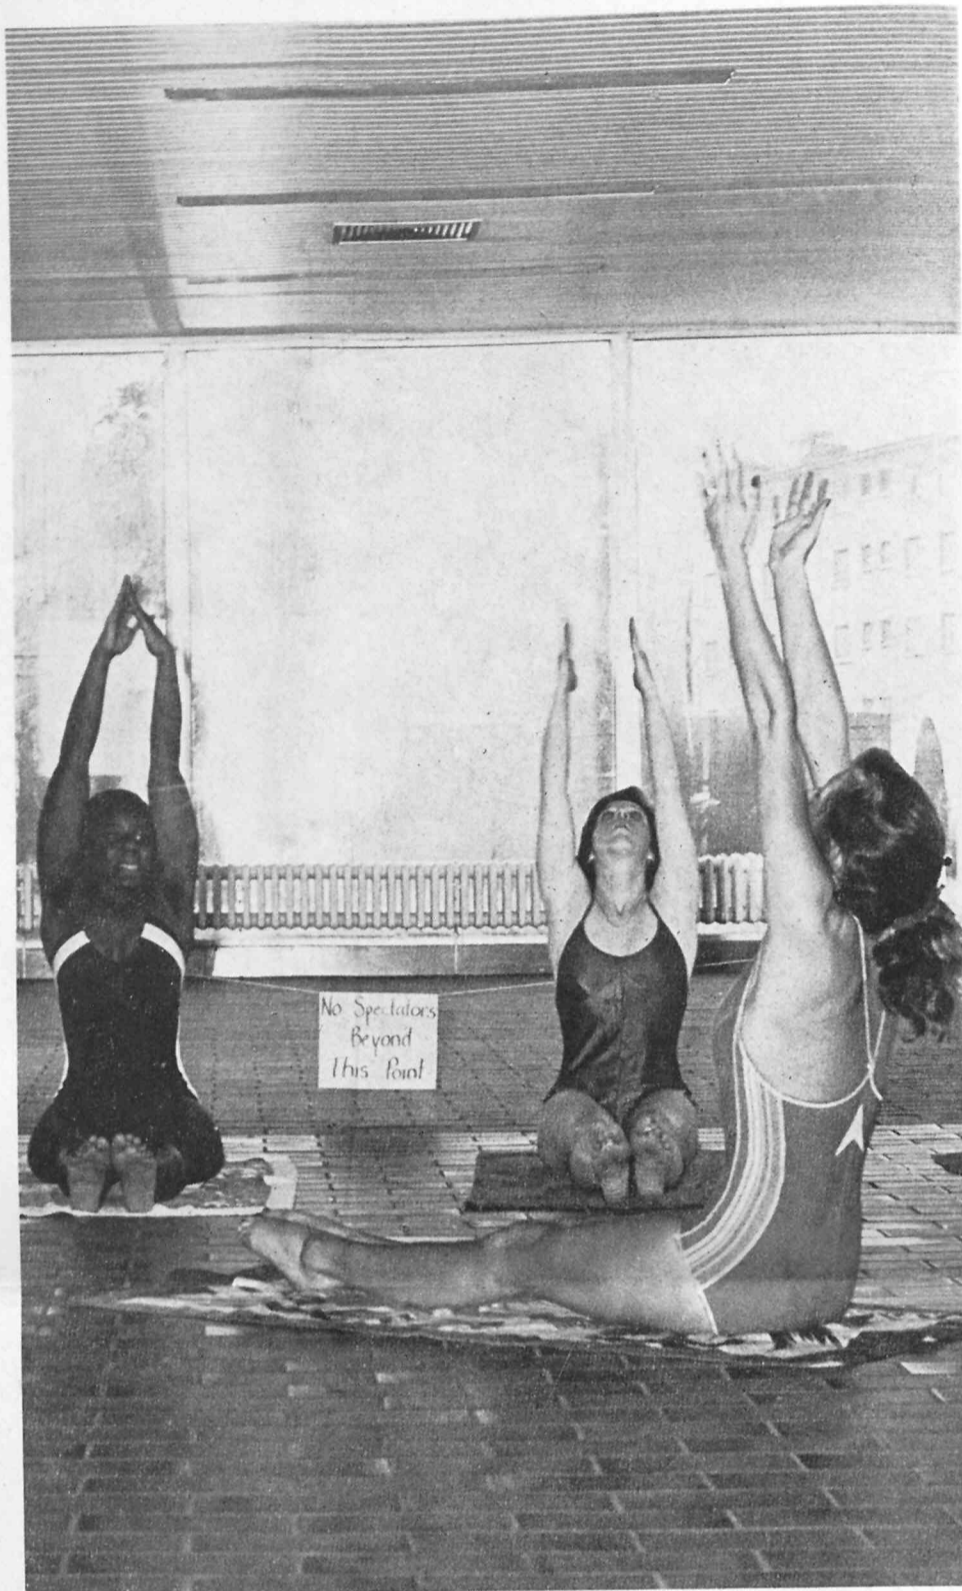

To help the cardio-vascular system and build endurance, Graham holds a "fartlet" run on Thursdays. "It's a form of aerobic exercise where we run and do exercises along the way," said Graham.

Diet and nutrition are also covered by Graham.

"Many times, women think fitness comes automatically. They don't realize it takes a lot of work and discipline," she explained.

Graham has earned her title as a "qualified instructor." She has been a British Army PT instructor for women, and is also qualified to teach swimming, tennis and team handball. She's gone to many schools for her training and has 11 years experience in working with women.

Women on active duty who are interested in the classes may join anytime. A new class is starting May 5 and for more information on the program, call Graham at 819-6168 or 6763.

It can be a two-edged document

Use powers of attorney wisely, or else...

On your way back to the states and want your spouse to sell your old motorcycle during your absence?

Or, if you're single, planning on asking a friend to ship your car to you after you arrive home?

In either case, your spouse or friend will need a legal document known as a power of attorney.

This is a formal written legal document by which you appoint someone else to act as your agent in legal and financial matters, including buying, selling and managing bank accounts in your name.

Two-edged

A power of attorney is a very powerful document. It should be given only to someone you trust and should only give the agent the powers which are needed to do what is desired.

The individual to whom you give a power of attorney is known as your "attorney in fact." This doesn't mean that the individual has to be a lawyer.

Agent actions vary

It simply means that the individual is a species agent able to act on your behalf. What they are authorized to do and how they can do it varies widely from state to state.

Any action taken by the individual that is covered by the power of attorney is legally binding on you.

The first — and more powerful — is a general power of attorney. This gives another person total authority to act for you in any capacity during the period the document is in force.

With a general power of attorney, the holder could dispose of all your property with no questions asked.

The second type is called a special power of attorney.

This is given for special acts, such as the shipment of a vehicle or the packing of household goods in your absence.

Make it fit

Whichever type of power of attorney is considered, it should be tailored to fit the needs of the situation.

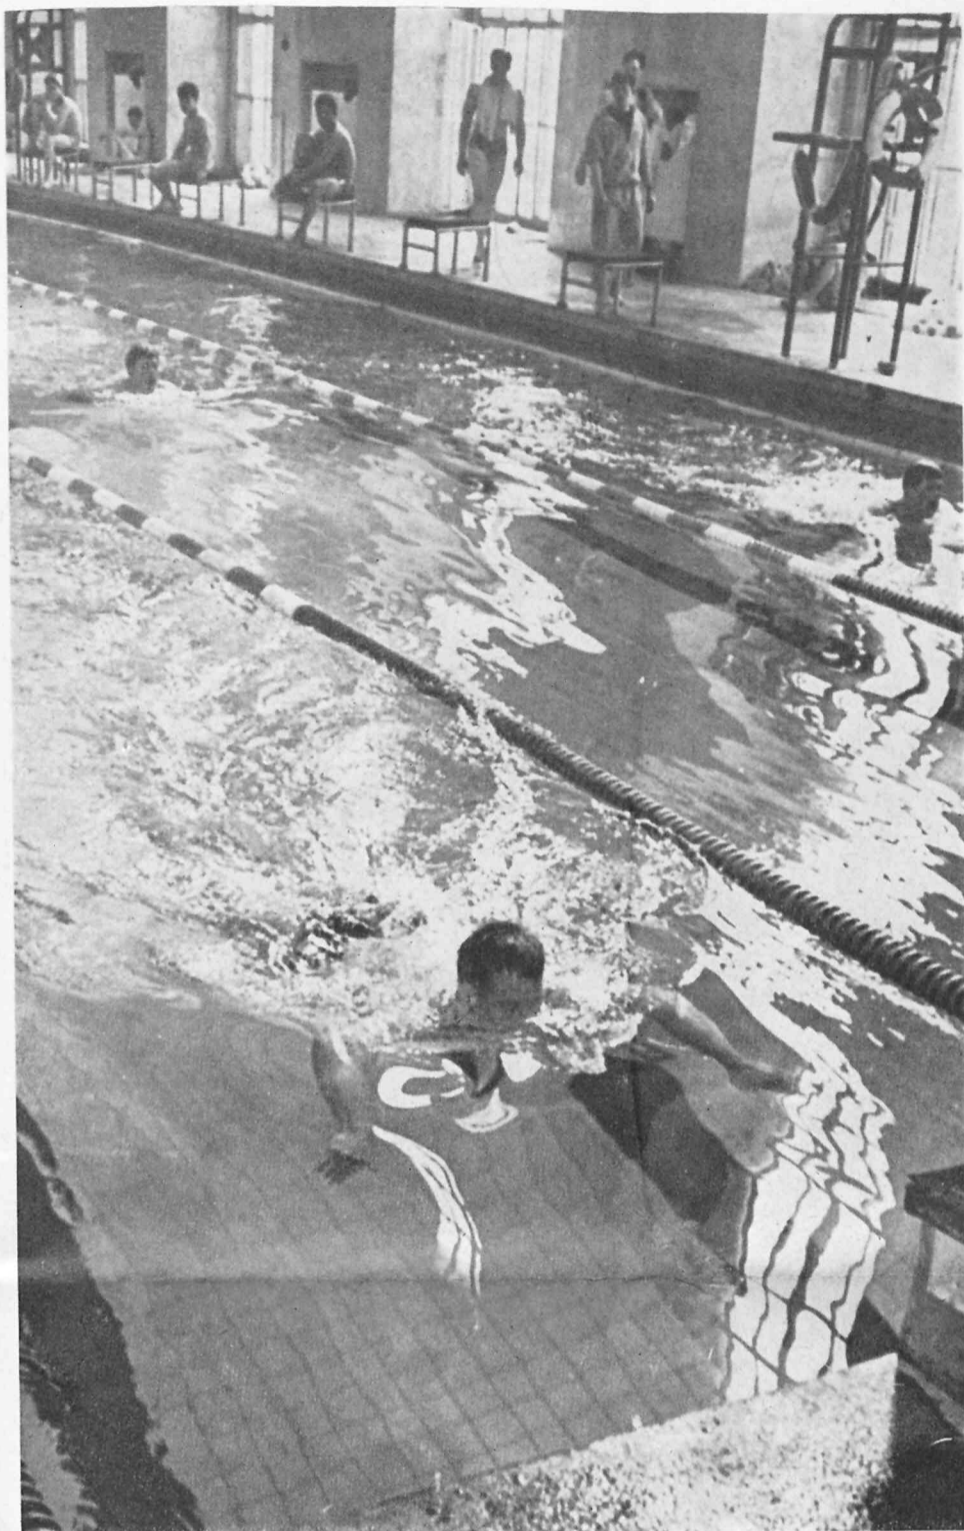

For instance, you could limit it to the period you will be overseas. Or, you can exclude from a general power of attorney certain matters.

It's not something to be taken lightly.

In fact, it calls for the finest legal advice you can get, since State laws also affect the validity of the action taken.

So, before you sign any type of legal document, discuss the entire procedure with one of the trained specialists in the legal assistance office.

3rd Battalion swim meet held

The six-man team from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion swam their way to victory, last Friday during the Battalion's swim meet.

The meet, held at Andrews Pool, began at 2 p.m. and lasted approximately two hours. Awards were presented to the winning individuals and teams by Maj. Harry W. Mohr III, battalion executive officer.

Combat Support Company grabbed 2nd place and Company B finished with a strong 3rd.

The top individual winners were 2nd Lt. William Bennet, Headquarters and Headquarters Company and SSgt. David Laufer, Combat Support Company.

Bennet took 1st place in the 50-meter butterfly, the 50-meter breaststroke, and the 200-meter individual medley. He was on the winning team for the 200-meter medley relay and the 200-meter freestyle relay.

Laufer placed first in the 50-meter backstroke, the 50-meter freestyle and the 100-meter freestyle.

"There were only six of us on the team," said Sgt. Nels Kinnerup, Communications Supervisor, "We practiced on our own rather than as a team. It was an individual effort that made us successful. I practiced during lunch and after work."

"This was my first time in a swim competition of any kind," said PFC John VanHall, a cook from Headquarters Company. "I was surprised at how well I did and was glad that our team won. I am eagerly looking forward to the next battalion swim meet."

AER campaign in full swing

"Even with only half of the first-day contribution turn-ins received, things are looking good for this year's Army Emergency Relief Campaign," said Marlene Bates, assistant AER officer.

The annual AER campaign kicked off here April 15 and continues through June 1. The goal for the 1981 campaign is $13,000, almost double the amount of money received last year.

Wednesday was the first day for turn-in of contributions by unit AER officers, and according to Bates, they were off to a big start. Over $3,500 was accepted by campaign officials. This figure contrasts greatly with the $522 accepted at the same time last year.

"With the new allotment procedure being used this year, the campaign looks like it's going to go very well," said Bates.

With the new option, active duty personnel now have three ways to give. Contributions may be made by check, cash, or by filling out the new allotment card. The new method is similar to the one use for the Combined Federal Campaign.

Last year members of the Berlin command raised $6,951 for AER, yet $30,140 was paid out to servicemembers and their families. Aid was given in the form of money, food, rent, required travel, utilities, essential car repairs, medical bills, essential dental care, funeral and personal needs when paychecks were not received, or funds were lost. Contributions collected this year will help ensure that the AER can continue to help the Army help it's own.

To make contributions, contact the unit AER officer. He or she has the forms needed. Voluntary contributions by private organizations or individuals may be made through the Community Life Office here. Call them at 819-6556.

Top students 'party' it up

Fourteen Berlin American High School students were guests of honor at a party celebrating their perfect report cards. The party for straight-A students was held in the school's Home Economics room on April 14.

Honored during the festivities by school principal Dr. Huston Jack, were:

Seventh grade students: Albert Beck, Kathleen Kennard, Tracie Payne, Eric Salahub and Marta Stowell.

Eight grade students: Delano Adams, Steven Hill and Maite Mendiola.

Ninth grade student: Doris Schulze.

Tenth grade student: Mark L. Nelson.

And 12th grade students: Katy Balthasar, Michael Bowman, Alicia Muller and Robert Wieland.

Earning special recognition for maintaining the straight-A record for three quarters were: Eric Salahub, Mark L. Nelson and Michael Bowman.

Three local students make Honor Society

Three Berlin American High School students will be inducted into the Island of Freedom Chapter of the National Junior Honor Society on Tuesday. The ceremony will be held at 9:30 a.m. in BAHS, Room A8, (annex).

Students taking the NJHS pledge are: Delano Adams and Laura Williams, eighth grade; and Doris Schutze, ninth grade.

A reception follows in the Learning Resource Center.

Arbor Day tree planting tradition kept

Students of the Berlin American High School carried on the tradition of Arbor Day, April 16, by planting two trees on their school grounds.

The tradition of school students planting trees was started during the 1860's by B. G. Northup, chairman of the American Forestry Association. The boys and girls who planted or helped plant five trees were given $1. The custom of spreading greenery is now carried on throughout the United States.

Kermit H. Long's English students add a new twist to their plantings, which have been going on since 1971. Each tree is dedicated to one student and one teacher.

This year, eighth grader, Nicholas Meimaris and Rhoda Risner, the band director, shared the honors.

The recipients are decided by popularity, according to Long.

A small ceremony marked the occasion. As some parents looked on, students recited presentations on trees and Arbor Day and the history of the BAHS ceremony. Then, the trees were planted and watered.

After this, the band joined in to play selected songs for the attendees, one which was "Meadowlands."

Amy Wilkinson said that planting a tree is exciting. "This thing, this tree is soon going to be big and strong."

DIGGING IT — Paul South takes his turn at putting some dirt on one of the newly planted trees on the Berlin American High School grounds. South and other students from Kermit H. Long's English class celebrated Arbor Day, April 16, by planting two trees, a tradition Long started in 1971.

'Knots Landing', 'Love Boat' come to AFN

by Mark White

AFN Berlin officials were proud to announce that 13 of the TV shows being shown in "prime time" in Los Angeles are currently being shown on the station. This is the highest number of "prime time" shows ever aired.

These shows include: "Real People"; "That's Incredible"; "Tim Conway"; "Dallas"; "LaVerne & Shirley"; "Little House On The Prairie"; "MASH"; "Quincy"; "Three's Company"; "Waltons"; "Taxi"; "Love Boat" and "Knot's Landing".

The warm and sunny month of May sees the premiere of the highly rated spin-off of "Dallas" called "Knot's Landing."

"Knots Landing" has all the passion and power of "Dallas" opening with Val and Gary Ewing leaving Texas for a new life by relocating in Southern California. In their new surroundings, they quickly realize that problems plague people whoever and wherever they are. Gary and Val find themselves involved in a domestic dispute between a neighbor and his rebellious teenage daughter. "Knots Landing" will run 13 weeks.

Fun time returns with the two highly rated shows "Taxi" and "Love Boat".

"Taxi" stars the one and only great group of people from the land of the "Big Apple" — the New York cabbies. This hardy breed of individuals brave rain, sleet and dark of night to carry their native New York neighbors and out of towners alike to their destinations. Their amusing anecdotes in and out of their cabs create laughs galore on "Taxi". "Taxi" runs 46 weeks.

"Love Boat" is back on course with amiable Captain Gavin McLeod and his all star crew and cast.

The ship of fun cruises for 26 weeks with interesting and entertaining passengers walking up the gangplank every week.

Movie fans are in for a couple of great cinema portrayals with Charlton Heston and Richard Harris starring in the adventure-drama "Major Dundee" based on a true story in Mexico and New Mexico in 1865.

That outstanding British actor, Laurence Harvey, stars with Mia Farrow and Tom Courtenay in the color suspense thriller "A Dandy In Aspic". This is the story of a Russian born British agent (Harvey) asked to hunt down a Russian infiltrator who has caused the death of three other British agents. Only he knows who is the one he is to terminate.

Top box-office attractions, Lee Marvin, Jack Palance and Jeanne Moreau, team up for the tragic comedy of one of the best cowboys in the wild west named Monte West.

For 25 years, Monte rode horses, fought, drank and loved like no other cow-poke in the West. Then one day the West grew up and nobody needed cowboys. This is the story of a man who had nothing to show for a lifetime of being tough, except a woman who loved him. Adult viewing.

A pair of great actors, Jack Lemmon and Peter (Columbo) Falk, team up in "Luv" based on the successful Broadway play by Murray Schisgal. A suicidal derelict is persuaded from jumping off a bridge by an old school buddy who takes him home for dinner hoping that he will fall in love with his wife so that he can marry his mistress. The theme sounds serious but it's done strictly for laughs.

Truly a film classic is "Great Expectations" starring Michael York, Sarah Miles and James Mason with Robert Morley to mention only a few of the fine actors. The year is 1830, and in this adaptation of the classic Charles Dickens novel, a young poverty stricken English boy has a chance meeting with a convict.

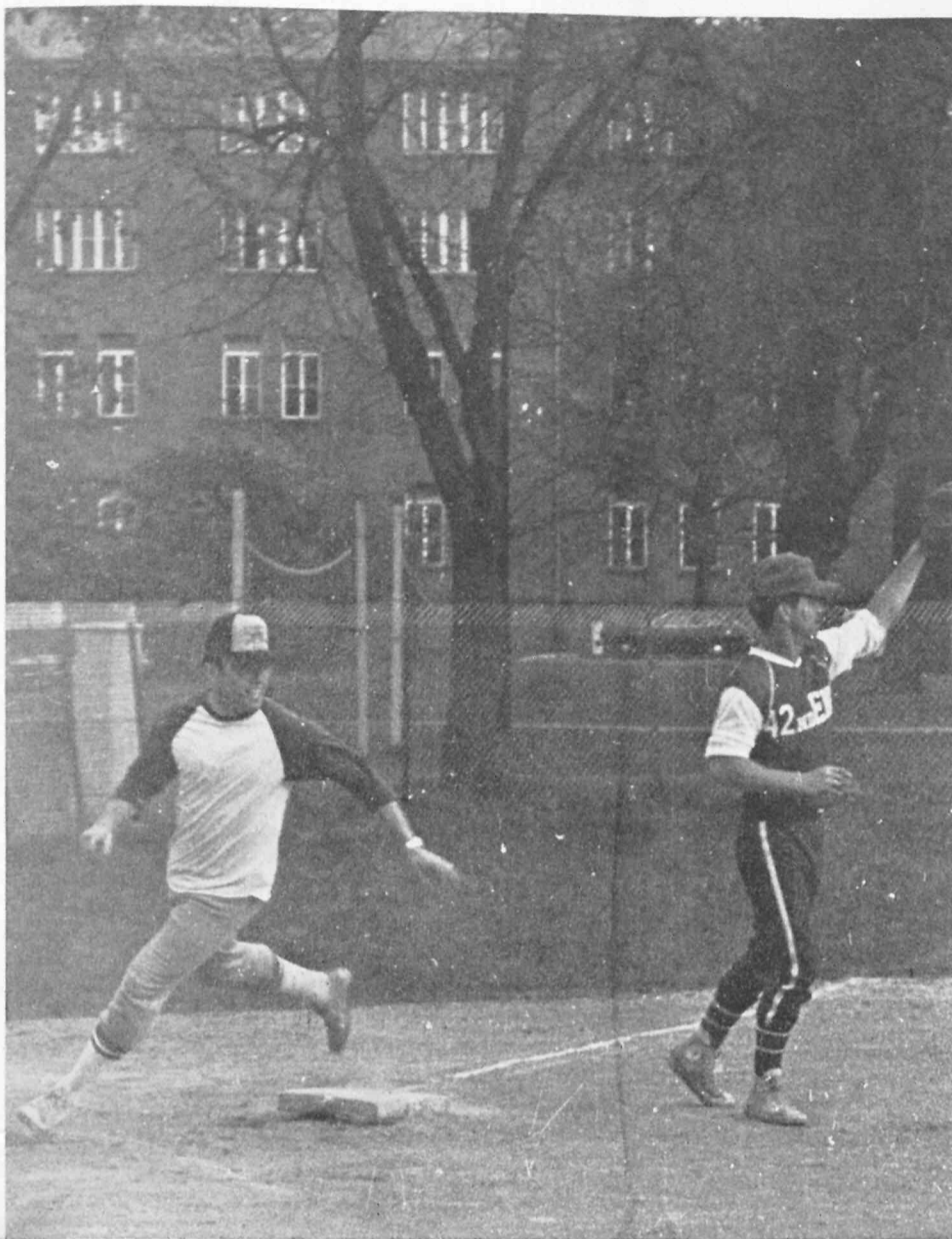

The event brings about a starting change in the boy's life.

Phil Donahue, talk-master, has a host of interesting guests this month including Jane Fonda, Dolly Parton and Lily Tomlin talking about corporate life and their new movie, "9 To 5"; Milton Friedman, Nobel Laureate For Economics, discussing his new book "Free To Choose"; the sensational singer, actress and comedienne, Bette Midler, sharing her happiness and miseries; and Oscar winner, Jack Lemmon, reflecting on his life as actor and husband.

And that's only some of the cream of the crop. The only big show we are losing this month is Barnaby Jones. The rest of your favorites will all be there plus News, Sports, Answer Line and Reflections to keep you up to date with what's going on around you.

Check your TV schedules for exact times and dates and if you have a comment regarding programming on AFN Berlin radio or television write us a note in care of Programming, AFN Berlin, APO 09742.

If you would like to call dial 819-6145 and we would be happy to hear your comments regarding our programs.

have been looking forward to the run and all have been putting a bit more emphasis on the condition they are in," according to Al Garcia, chief of physical activities branch of the Moral Support Activities Division.

"The command has applied great effort in bringing about this event, and offers this advice to runners who are planning to participate. Run at your own pace, don't over estimate your own ability. Don't try to run just after eating; this can be a painful and embarrassing experience. Make sure you know the route of the race, and run only with the proper equipment," Garcia said.

Equipment, program important for runner

by Doug McKittrick

Spring has finally come to Berlin. And with the longer, (sometimes) sunny days, have emerged those people wanting to "soak up the sun" by running. Or maybe they just want to get into better shape. Well, whether your goal is the coveted Berlin tan or better physical conditioning, there are some points that need to be considered.

First, Equipment. The most important part of the "complete runner" is a good pair of running shoes. Please notice the words "running shoes." Tennis shoes, roller skates, bedroom slippers or snorkeling fins might be fine for a little while, but they are not running shoes.

Running shoes are built and designed strictly for running. They provide the necessary amount of cushion required for running. A good pair of shoes need not be expensive. With the variety of shoes on sale, one need only look for the right size of a shoe that has a good, thick, sole running the entire length of the shoe. Make sure both shoes fit.

The last piece of equipment is the clothing. Any kind of loose fitting clothes are sufficient. Be careful though, most beginning runners dress too warmly. What a resting person needs at 70 degrees, the runner needs at 45 degrees.

Second, a program. The next most important part of the complete runner is a training program. One word can describe the proper training program: slowly. Run at a pace you can hold a conversation at. The beginning program starts with a 20-minute run three or four times a week. If 20 minutes is too long a time to maintain at a constant run, so what, walk if you need to.

A sample running program might look something like this:

Week 1-3, 20-minute runs, four times a week; week 4-6, 25-minute runs, four times a week; week 9-12, 30-minute runs, four times a week; week 13-30, 45-minute runs, four or five times a week.

Running is not only fun and inexpensive, it's a great way to see the city and stay in shape.

French allies to host 25 km run

by R. Gibson

It was very early, yet the fans had been there long before the gates opened. When the gates were opened they poured into the Olympic Stadium in hopes of getting the best seats. They were there to watch the start and finish of the 25km Berlin marathon that was to take place later the same morning.

As the sun crept up from the horizon, it looked like it was going to be a beautiful day for a race. As the starting time approached the runners were busy stretching their hamstrings, and mentally preparing themselves for the ordeal that lay ahead of them.

As the minutes passed before the race and the final countdown began, the runners readied themselves at the starting line. The gun was raised and the shot was fired as a mass of determined and strong-willed men and women started the first leg of the 25 km course that would lead them through the city streets of Berlin.

The 25km de Berlin will take place again on May 3. The run, this year, is sponsored by the French Military Command here. Runners from all of the Allied Forces, as well as members of the civilian community are invited to participate. There will be entertainment provided by various military units, such as military bands and a parachute jump from the British and French parachute teams. The run is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m., with the entertainment provided throughout the day.

cer team. Berlin's first U. S. Army Europe game will be played in Vicenza, Italy, June 6. For more information and sign up call Tom Kearney at 6768.

Soccer meeting

A soccer meeting is scheduled for April 30 at 5 p.m. at the DYA. Members interested in playing soccer or just finding out about the game should call Tom Kearney at 6768.

Rugby team starting

If anyone is interested in playing Rugby, whether or not they have any experience, please contact Brian McConnell during duty hours at 6112. He may be reached after duty hours at 813-7178. We need volunteers that would be interested in playing or learning to play so that we can get a team together.

Women's golf tournament

The Berlin Women's Golf Association will be holding its annual spring tournament on May 11-12. Members who wish to sign up must do so by May 8. Registration fee will be $10 which will include luncheon and prizes to be awarded at the close of the tournament on May 12. For further information please call 832-6648.

Gantz — sports man on the scene

by R. Gibson

Most of the members of this command have, at one time or another, visited the Berlin Brigade Sports Center. You may not have noticed him, but he's been there, handing out equipment, or up-dating schedules. Whatever needs to be done Werner Gantz can take care of it.

Gantz began working at the sports center 19 years ago and this is his story:

"When I was 12, back home in Lippehne, (then Germany, now Poland) I cried and fought with the Russian soldiers as they loaded my mother into a truck and took her away. I knew that I would never see her again." Gantz then went to an orphanage in East Berlin. He stayed there for three years—years that he recalls were very hard.

Gantz remembered further, "When I was 15, my oldest brother Friedrich came to the place where all the children were kept (the orphanage). He told me he was taking me back to West Germany with him. That night, Oct. 16, 1948, at 8 p.m. we left. Friedrich had given a man a lot of money to show us the best way back. It was raining and very cold, we had to walk all night. When we thought someone might see us we had to hide. The police would have arrested us if they had found us walking the streets that late at night.

We came to a bridge that we thought we could cross, but the bridge had been blown up so we had to swim across the river. The next morning we had finally made it back to the West; it was a very happy time for me.

Gantz' other brother, Walter, who, by age, fell between Werner and Friedrich, told him, "You must learn a trade. I will teach you to become a very good Interior Decorator." The youngest Gantz learned very quickly. So quickly, in fact, that he was awarded his certificate as a journeyman decorator long before any of his peers.

Gantz missed the city of Berlin—the busy streets and happy people. When he was 21 his mind was made up. He would return to Berlin despite all of the terrible memories of his childhood.

The Berlin he returned to was much different than the war-torn city that he had left. "Berlin's alive again," he thought to himself as he looked around the city.

He went to work for the first year as a decorator, but soon found he wanted to be closer to people. So he quit his job as a decorator, and found work in a small drinking establishment. He stayed at the pub for ten years, and then became the manager.

About the same time he met Gerda. A young and beautiful girl that he would take as his wife. Their life together was very short. After about three years of marriage, Gerda developed cancer and died. Gantz doesn't speak about this event much. All he said was "We were very much in love."

Gantz began to drink quite heavily. He was later stricken with a severe liver condition that forced him to quit his job at the pub after 12 years of employment there.

He walked into the office of the German Employment Service in search of another job and was told about the position at the sports center.

After a three month wait he was finally given a chance to go for an interview but when it was discovered that Gantz could not speak English, he was afraid he would not be hired. Due to his enthusiasm about the position and his potential he was hired, despite the possible communication gap.

That was 18 years ago. Gantz is still happily employed at the sports center. He likes his work so much that although he is eligible for retirement in ten years, he said, "I'll probably be working in this sports center until they carry me out of it in a box."

4th Battalion offers students chance to earn sports medal

The 4th Battalion will sponsor a German Sports Medal Program for Thomas A. Roberts Elementary School students May 11-15 at Yankee Stadium on Andrews Compound.

Approximately 120 students between the ages of 8 and 12 will be participating in the first "en masse" testing of this kind, according to Sgt. Michael G. Miles, athletic and recreation NCO for 4th Battalion.

"To receive the sports medal, the students must perform tasks from five different categories, such as throwing a weighted ball, swimming, running and jumping. The tasks they do will depend on their ages," said Miles.

Miles, who coordinated the activity, said he did it because he wanted to do something for the children in the community. "Hopefully, I can start doing it on a regular basis."

Three officials from the German Sports Institute will be on hand to help the graders and explain the requirements to the students.

SEE YA NEXT YEAR — Easter Bunny, Sp4 Susan Gould, says' bye to John Threatt, while Cortney Franz waits to show the rabbit her new-found eggs and Catherina Silas shows her friend what she has found. Around 180 Berlin American pre-schoolers attended an Easter party given by the 287th Military Police Company, April 15 and 16.

'Live' Easter bunny highlights MP party

With a hippity-hop and a hoppity-hip, about 180 Berlin American Pre-school students bounced and giggled as they followed a giant Easter Bunny into the 287th MP Company Easter Party held April 15 and 16 at Andrews Barracks.

The party was designed as a fun way to introduce the preschoolers to the Military Police operations here, and to show the children what their parents do while they're working, according to Capt. Gary Mareenna, company commander.

Units throughout the brigade are periodically tasked with presenting interesting, informative programs to show preschoolers the different facets of the Army's mission. When the MP's number came up, the task was turned over the company's First Sergeant, Edward Allen and Sp4 Esther Shepard. According to Mareenna, they deserve the credit for the success of their project.

Due to the large number of students the fun was divided into two days with 90 students attending the festivities each day. They were met at the bus by the Easter Bunny who hopped and skipped them to the field next to the Andrews Tennis Bubble. Following a brief introduction of the MP mission, they were given a prisoner's eye view of the Detention Cell, got rides in the parade and gun jeeps and visited with their favorite MP—Officer Friendly (Sp4 Philip Cage).

Following the tour the children scampered through the field, with the help of their buddy the Easter Bunny, searching for colored eggs. About 180 eggs, which had been dyed by the children at the preschool were hidden each day. Once they'd each found two eggs and proudly displayed them to the Easter Bunny and their teachers, they were on to cake and kool-aid.

One look at all of the smiling faces told the MP's their efforts had been successful. Even the preschool's director, Faye Satterfield was full of praises.

"We try to include field trips in the children's program," said Satterfield, "this was one of the nicest they've been on. It was a real educational experience and they learned that policemen are friendly people."

Of course getting to meet a real, live Easter Bunny was the biggest hit of the party. Dressed for the part were Sp4 Susan Gould on Tuesday and Sp4 Terry Staggs, Wednesday—but shhhh.

if they were that hard up, I'd have to pay for it myself."

One or two shoplifters are caught in Berlin's PX each week, according to store officials. Their PX privileges are automatically revoked for at least six months, and the MPs are called in. But, their troubles just start here.

Shoplifting is serious business for military personnel and their family members. There is no way around having the soldier's unit involved.

Vinson calls in a uniformed MP patrol to make a report when shoplifters are caught. From the moment they arrive, the offender is in the hands of the Army.

The MP report constitutes an entry on the MP blotter, and a copy of the report will be forwarded to the unit commander. Military personnel can be charged with larceny of Non-Appropriated Funds property under the Uniformed Code of Military Justice. Reports on family members and civilians are turned over to the Community Life Branch for action.

Punishments are left up to the unit commanders and Community Life officials. Military offenders may receive a fine, reduction in grade, a less than honorable discharge and even confinement. Family members could be sent home.

A shoplifting offense can hurt a soldier's career and his opportunity for a good civilian job. Depending on his job, a soldier could lose his security clearance and his Army MOS. If the offense ended up in a criminal conviction, civilian job openings close, too. Certain jobs and professions, are closed to people with police records. Civil Service, teaching, doctor, lawyer, architect, real estate agent, optometrist, election officials, police officer, fireman, etc., are just a few. The list is almost endless.

To avoid the chain reaction caused by one shoplifting incident PX officials suggest a little personal restraint. Shoplifting is against the law and there is a good chance violators will be caught, not only that but every act of shoplifting cost everyone, even shoplifters, more in future purchases.

THESE WILL DO — Sunglasses are a popular item with shoplifters. To get them, some thieves use the "buddy system" being demonstrated by PX Manager Henry Vinson (l) and warehouseman Doug Vasalech. The thieves end up with the "free" glasses, but it's the average customer who ends up covering the cost.

Latinos Unidos honored at European conference

The 4th Annual Federation of Latin American Clubs conference was held April 1-3 in Heidelberg, West Germany.

The theme of this year's conference was "Progress Through Active Involvement."

FLAC was founded in November 1974 by a group of Hispanic-Americans at Frankfurt and currently has 3,500 members. It has four main objectives. They are to represent the Hispanic cultural awareness and improve the quality of life of Hispanics.

This year's guest speakers included Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, Commander in Chief, USAREUR; Gen. James R. Allen, Deputy Commander in Chief, European Command; and Ruben Bonilla, Jr., national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Several resolutions were adopted, including a call for an improved English as a Second Language Program. Other resolutions were to: request a fulltime Hispanic employment officer in USAREUR's Equal Opportunity Branch; invite Armed Forces Network Television and Radio representatives to the next conference to discuss lack of Hispanic programming; ask that more Hispanics be recruited for officer's ranks and more Hispanic promotions through the ranks.

The Berlin Chapter of Latinos Unidos were recognized for making the largest monetary donation to FLAC within Europe. According to MSgt. Elias Uriegas, president of the Berlin Chapter, the attendees returned to Berlin with enhanced ideas and definite goals and objectives in mind to assure continued progress in improving the quality of life for Hispanics in Berlin.

HEAVY STUFF — This sculpture by Douglas Abdell will be on exhibit at the Amerika Haus May 26 through July 11. The sculpture, shipped from New York by boat and moved to its present location by the 42nd Engineer Company, weighs two tons and is four meters tall. After the sculpture leaves Berlin it will travel throughout Europe. (Photo by Jim Joerger)
