

MPs take plunge for homeless

by Linda Jach

The children of a German "Home for the Homeless" will always remember the soldiers of the 287th Military Police Company, thanks to a gift the company will present the kids with, soon.

A reception is scheduled to give the Don Basco "Home for Homeless children," a donation of about DM 100.

The company had fun raising the money for the youngsters, too. At their Brigade Recognition Day activities, they set up a dunking machine on loan from the Field Station Berlin. The price was 25 cents for three balls. The soldiers were given the chance to take "pot-shots" at their favorite people in the company, one of them being the first sergeant.

"At first, he kept telling us he wouldn't sit on the bench for us.

Then, the day of the picnic, he just showed up with his swimming trunks and a change of clothes," explained Sp4 Esther L. Sheperd.

Capt. Gary J. Marena, the commander, was the first man to get dunked. "I applaud any opportunity my soldiers make to benefit the community," he said.

At the reception the company will invite the children for cookies and soft drinks, added Sheperd. "It's a tradition for us here."

This isn't the first time that the company has made an effort to donate to a worthwhile charity. During the Easter period, the soldiers sponsored an easter egg hunt and tour of the company for children of the Berlin-American Pre-school.

Also, last year, two MPs were presented with DM100 each for aiding a German driver who's car had started on fire. The money was donated to a German orphanage.

Western history theme: 'Badlands' hit Berlin, 21st annual Volksfest

by Sue Sweeney

The "Dakota Badlands" opens to the public here Thursday with the start of the 1981 German-American Volksfest.

The 21st annual Volksfest will present 18 fun-filled days featuring mock gunfights and famous personalities such as Wild Bill Hickock and Calamity Jane, a variety of German and American foods, live entertainment, rides, and much, much more.

This year's theme, the Dakota Badlands, was selected because of its unique historical and cultural contribution to the development of America.

The U.S. Command, Berlin has chosen a different theme each year since 1962, (the first Volksfest did not have a theme). These themes are designed to give Berliners glimpses of different facets of American history. Among the themes were: The Alamo, St. Augustine, Hawaii, Oklahoma, Los Angeles, Brigade to the Stars, and Las Vegas.

The first Volksfest was designed to raise funds for the local American youth activities and organizations. Now the proceeds go to both German and American community and youth activities and charities.

The Volksfest is a unique chance for American and Germans to get together in a fun atmosphere.

Some of the "specials" will include: an Allied Friendship Day, when British and French soldiers will be hosted by American soldiers; Kinderheim Days, when 800 orphaned children from Berlin will visit the Volksfest with soldiers acting as escorts; and Altenheim Day when senior citizens will be escorted around the Volksfest by some American women.

The Volksfest will be open to the public, Sunday through Thursday, from 2 p.m. to midnight and Fridays and Saturdays from 2 p.m. to 1 a.m. The game hall will open weekdays at 5 p.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Admission to the Volksfest costs DM 1 for adults and children 13 and under are admitted free.

Come to the Volksfest and enjoy the Dakota Badlands.

NO ... IT'S NOT THE MOON! — A scene in the "Dakota Badlands," the theme of this year's Volksfest, can

POV valuables; lock or lose 'em

Owners of POVs should be aware that leaving valuables in plain sight and unattended is an invitation to theft.

Record the serial number of items such as stereo tape decks, mark them with your social security number for identification purposes and be sure to lock up your valuables when leaving your vehicle.

Visit sunny Italy; fishing is great

Just because you're leaving Germany to spend vacation time in sunny Italy, you don't have to leave the ol' fishing pole behind. Good trout fishing is available, courtesy of the Vicenza Rod and Gun Club.

The club has its own lake, which is stocked weekly with Rainbow Trout — some longer than 16 inches.

For any American Forces Rod and Gun Club member, the cost for fishing is $5 for a one-day permit. If you plan to spend a lot of time in the Vicenza area, there is a $25 monthly permit. Non-club members can also fish the lake, but there is a higher charge. By the way, you don't need an Italian fishing license at the lake.

There is nearby parking, and the grounds have picnic tables and barbeque grills so you can fry up your catch.

Further information can be obtained from the Vicenza Rod and Gun Club by calling the Vicenza operator and asking for extension 7884.

By the way, the Vicenza trout are suckers for corn, salmon eggs and small marshmallows. Good fishing. (EURNEWS)

Cheaters

Learn driving manners

Here are some "cheating drivers" to look out for...

The driver who makes a left turn across your path, after his green arrow has disappeared.

The driver who creeps forward, anticipating the light change from red/amber to green.

The driver who wants to go a few miles per hour faster than the speed limit, but can't get around you, so he just hangs in there on your tail. He's a would-be cheater.

The driver who passes the same vehicle you do, even though there's really only time for one vehicle to pass safely. He lets you run the interference and figures he can squeeze in between your vehicle and the one you just passed.

The driver who attempts to shoot into the intersection as soon as the light changes without ensuring vehicles, bicycles and pedestrians have cleared the intersection.

Recently several United States Army, Berlin drivers have been caught cheating in this manner.

Be alert for these cheaters! Review your own driving habits. Are you a cheater? If you are, you're headed for trouble.

Elections slated in three states, Guam

State primary elections are scheduled in New York, Virginia and Washington, plus a plebiscite election in Guam during the month of September.

New York's state primary election will take place on Sept. 10, with candidates seeking the nomination for the 19 positions of Justices of the state Supreme Court.

Virginia's state primary will take place on Sept. 8. Candidates will be nominated for the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and for seats in the state House of Delegates.

Washington's state primary on Sept. 15, will nominate candidates seeking to fill one unexpired term on the state Supreme Court.

Several other state and local offices and revenue issues may appear on the ballots in the above listed elections.

The Guam Election Commission will conduct a plebiscite election on Sept. 12 to ascertain the desires of the citizens of Guam as to their future political relationship with the United States, i.e., statehood, independence, status quo, commonwealth or other status.

Eligible U. S. civilian voters may register to vote and request absentee ballots by completing the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) at the Consulate General of the United States of America, Clayallee 170, 1000 Berlin 33.

The Consulate General will assist the voter with information on where to submit the completed FPCA. The form should be submitted as soon as possible to ensure timely registration and receipt of absentee ballots.

The Consulate General is open to the public from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

When you fly MAC

Army policy requires soldiers to wear a military uniform when traveling on MAC aircraft. This includes travel in PCS, TDY, or leave status. Any of the Army service uniforms is acceptable, e.g., Army green uniform, tan uniform, pants suit, or green shirt worn as an outer garment with trousers or skirt. The only exception to the policy within USAREUR is for personnel traveling via MAC aircraft to and from Ankara, Turkey (civilian airport), where civilian clothing must be worn. In this case the leave form or travel document must include a statement that civilian clothes are authorized.

PAC soldiers don masks, suits

by Linda Jach

The soldiers of Combat Support Battalion's Personnel Administration Center donned their protective masks and suits Tuesday to see how they could perform in a Nuclear, Biological and Chemical environment.

Their day started at 6:30 a.m. with the signal "gas."

From there, the PAC personnel starting working. Nothing was changed, all jobs had to be performed as usual — typing, answering phones, making out paperwork.

"It wasn't all that easy for them, either," said Capt. Richard Hollar, S-1. "Answering the phone was the toughest for the soldiers, because they couldn't hear well and their voices were muffled while speaking through the mask."

"You wouldn't believe how hard it is to turn a page with the gloves on," said SSgt. Lance Walker, PSNCO.

"It's hard to type with the gloves on, too," said Sp5 Jose De La Rosa, SIDPERS clerk, "especially if you have an electric typewriter. You go to press one key, but three go down."

The 13 PAC personnel, were required to stay in their Mission Oriented Protective Posture suits until 12:30 that afternoon.

The reason they had the exercise in the morning said Hollar, was because they must service soldiers in the afternoon. "I thought it would be a good idea for them to learn how to operate, so that they'll be better prepared for their next MOPP exercise in the afternoon," said Hollar.

"The exercise was okay, I learned that it's very hard to perform our duties in a chemical environment, but we could do it if we had to," said Sp5 Darren Estes, SIDPERS clerk.

Tankers show airmen finer points of their job

by Linda Jach

Members of Company F, 40th Armor, Combat Support Battalion, got together with our Tempelhof "neighbors" July 15, to teach them some of the finer points of driving a tank.

Twelve Tempelhof officers, with the help of the men of 2nd platoon, spent the day learning to drive the tanks and other crew-related tasks. Each learned what it takes to be a firer, driver, loader and tank commander.

"We use the airfield at Tempelhof during some exercises, so we thought it might be nice to let them see what we're doing out there," explained 2nd Lt. Mike Prevou, 2nd platoon leader. "Wednesday, we had to use the field for a Tank Crew Proficiency Course, so we invited them to come along."

The officers were selected totally at random, most were invited by a fellow co-worker to attend, according to 2nd Lt. Daniel E. Chamberlain, one of the Tempelhof officers who participated.

"We only received a basic explanation of what to do, but it's much easier to drive a tank than I thought," said Chamberlain, assistant Public Affairs Officer at Tempelhof.

"I really liked the 'class,' it was very interesting for me. I've always wanted to go inside and see what makes it run, and the soldiers gave me that chance," continued Chamberlain.

"I think that my soldiers enjoyed it as well as the airmen," said Prevou. "I don't know if we'll be doing it again soon, but I'm sure if we do, it will be as big a success as this was."

AIRMEN IN A TANK? — Capt. Raoul Richards, (l), 7350th Air Base Group, tries a tank commander's "shoe" on for size. Richards and other Tempelhof officers got their chance to learn about tanks, thanks to Company F, 40th Armor, Combat Support Battalion.

Refund check not here?

'Check' with IRS office

As a result of a United States Postal inquiry, a problem concerning the National Internal Revenue Service mailing directory has surfaced.

The computers at the IRS facility located at Martinsburg, W. Va. had the wrong APO numbers and when refund checks were delivered to post offices in Germany, they were returned to the IRS as undeliverable. The problem was corrected June 8, however, the IRS could not single out individual cases. It is recommended that if individual checks seem inordinately overdue, postal patrons should write: Internal Revenue Service; 1040 Waverly Avenue; ATTN: MSP Unit Stop 457; Holtsville, N.Y. 00501.

Streets 'flow' one-way

by Sue Sweeney

During the German-American Volksfest, which starts Thursday and runs through Aug. 16, the traffic flow around the Truman Plaza area and 'allowed' parking areas will be changed.

Marshallstrasse will become a one-way street from Argentinische Allee towards Huettenweg and no parking will be allowed on Marshallstrasse.

Stewardstrasse and Pritchardstrasse will be one-way towards Am Waldfriedhof with parking allowed only on the right side of both streets.

Flanaganstrasse will also become one-way, with traffic flowing towards Huettenweg while Taylorstrasse will be a one-way street away from Huettenweg. Parking will be allowed on the right side of both these streets.

Parking will be allowed on both sides of Argentinische Allee, Saargemunderstrasse and Clayallee, however, parking will not be allowed in the median strips. Parking for the Volksfest activities will be allowed in the Main Exchange parking lot after the exchange has closed.

Am Waldfriedhof will have stopping and parking on the west side of the street, (the side opposite the Volksfest). No parking will be allowed on Am Hegewinkle or Stewardstrasse, west of Am Waldfriedhof. Another reminder is that housing area parking lots are reserved for residents.

There will be no special military buses running during the Volksfest, however, regular military schedules will still be followed. These schedules are posted at the main bus terminal, Andrews and McNair compounds and at bus stops in the housing areas.

The traffic flow and parking are always a problem during the Volksfest period so if you want to save yourself a few headaches, it is recommended that you use the military or German transportation systems when possible.

An ounce of prevention...

by Sue Sweeney

This year's Volksfest is just around the corner and the Provost Marshal's Office has a few safety and crime prevention tips to make Volksfest time enjoyable.

Personnel in the housing areas should lock up valuables such as barbecue grills, toys and bicycles in their storage rooms, not leave them outside.

Parked cars should be secured, with windows closed and the doors locked. Any valuables that are in the car should be kept out of sight or locked in the trunk.

Some other safety tips are just good sense. Don't walk alone at night and avoid dark enclosed spaces.

Don't drink excessively and then drive. Catch a ride with a friend, or use the military or German transportation systems to get where you are going safely.

Don't carry or flash large sums of money. The money that you do carry should not all be in one place. Carry some in your wallet and some in your front shirt pocket or elsewhere. Women should carry handbags over their shoulders, and hang on to them. Snaps and zippers should be inside towards the body, not towards the potential thief.

Most importantly, if you see a crime in progress or have an emergency call the Military Police's Crime Stop at 819-98 and report any suspicious activities to the Provost Marshal's Office by calling 819-3512.

Cuisine 'sets' great with Volksfest crowd

by Sherry Melvin

"Creamy? Chunky? Okay, creamy ... 1,200 jars." What could someone possibly want with 1,200 jars of peanut butter?

This year the German-American Volksfest will combine an American Old West flavor with German customs and people, and Capt. Stan Robinson, Volksfest officer-in-charge, has spent a lot of hours ordering what is always a big hit at the extravaganza ... food.

The orders for "foodstuff" goes in as early as February and included in this year's menu is nine tons of beef patties; 6,000 pounds of french fries; 903 gallon-, 14,000 pint-sized and 55,000 individual packets of ice cream. Don't forget the 4,000 pounds of bananas to make "splits" with or the 200, #10 cans of Jalapeno peppers that figure in the overall tonnage.

In addition to this plentiful abundance of food, there will also be a new addition, California wine, and of course, the glasses for the wine will also be sold.

In 1976, a contest was held for the Germans to contribute their ideas for an American theme. The majority of ideas were western and in this year's Volksfest, the largest in all of Europe, the theme is once again western, a idea that is sure to please Berliners and Americans alike.

Most of the American units in West Berlin are in some way or another participating in this year's event and one unit involved is Field Station, Berlin.

Field Station Berlin will have personnel working in one of the biggest attractions ... the game hall.

According to Robinson, a good part of the Volksfest profits goes to charitable organizations, the Dependent Youth Activities and to support unit activities.

Whether it's for the food, music, rides or just to mix with the different cultures, this year's Volksfest has something for you so come on out ... it's guaranteed you'll have a good time.

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON — Bands and many other forms of entertainment can be seen at the 1981 German-American Volksfest which opens on Thursday. The Volksfest will be open from 2 p.m. to midnight Sunday through Thursday and 2 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Great line-up hits outdoor stage

by Sue Sweeney

What do the Miss America Show, the AFN show with a disco contest and a German Sports Club's trampoline demonstration have in common?

The answer is that they're all scheduled entertainment for the 1981 German American Volksfest.

"The Volksfest is the biggest single entertainment event of the entire year," said Paul Zambrano, Music and Theater Director.

Zambrano, who is in charge of selecting the entertainment that will perform at the Volksfest, says that entertainment is on a volunteer basis and is strictly amateur with the exception of the USO shows.

"We begin searching for entertainment half a year before the Volksfest starts," Zambrano said. "We get groups from West Germany, as well as groups from Berlin."

Zambrano admits that variety is the single most important factor in searching for groups. This year's Volksfest will feature bluegrass bands, belly dancers, a USO Jimmy Church Review with it's rocking rhythm and blues, the U.S. Army, Berlin Drill Team, the Miss America show and much, much more.

"Before an act can be included in the schedule they must audition first," said Zambrano. "Every act auditions and then I decide if they are what we are looking for. I usually consult my direct superiors and Capt. Stan Robinson, Volksfest project officer, if I have any questions."

"Getting variety can be tough," said Zambrano. "When the group auditions I must keep in mind the acts I already have scheduled, their quality and how many people would be interested in their act."

Big month for entertainment

by Dean Brown

Entertainment has two purposes: to divert you from the daily grind, and to change you. MSAD, organizer of much of the community's entertainment, invites you to enter August in this double-edged spirit.

MSAD activities next month will offer you entertainment from tours to craft courses, all of it designed to grant you diversion as well as challenge.

Tours

ITT Tours — whose headquarters are located in the sports center on Huettenweg — wants you to stop by and sign for tours to Garmisch, Holland, Berchtesgaden, and Paris. The virtues of these places are already well known.

Garmisch and Berchtesgaden offers you outdoor entertainment from camping to hiking, from sight-seeing to simple relaxation. Holland has blue china, flowers and sea-side resorts. Paris has everything.

Call ITT at 6523 or 7189 for more details. The cities listed here are targets of ITT trips starting in early August and ending in early October. They fulfill both halves of the Entertainment Philosophy: by travelling to places beyond your usual abode, you forget daily cares and you absorb new ways of doing things.

Almost without knowing it, you will undergo subtle changes that will make your life more balanced, as you gain new perspectives that you can apply to your life back home.

Even here in Berlin, ITT can get you away from it all. See Islamic carpets, paintings, silks and jewelry at the Dahlem Museum; cruise to Peacock Island; live a few hours in the Middle Ages in Dueppel; and hunt for bargains in a furniture store and a Markthalle. Beyond that, enliven August with a trip to the Reichstag, a candle factory, or the countryside of western Berlin.

Craft courses

Amazing things have been known to happen to people who take up a craft as a hobby or occasional activity. As they get further and further into it, they find themselves picking up new abilities, perhaps relaxing a little, or finding something more to live for (beside the fun involved).

Even if you have no particular hobby, the MSAD craft shops can start training you: you need no experience to take advantage of their services.

Try one of these craft courses: Very Basic Car Care at the Andrews Auto Shop (Thursday at 6 p.m.); Free Lance Press Photography (Aug. 5) and Color Film Developing (Aug. 8) at the McNair Photo Center; Leatherworking (Aug. 3), Eggshell Art

(Aug. 4), Stained Glass (Aug. 5), Batik Fabric Dyeing (Aug. 18), or T-Shirt Silkscreening (Sept. 15) at the McNair Multicraft Shop.

For details on any of these courses, call 7154.

Theater

If you feel that you have some insights into the world, you may want to communicate them by becoming an actor or actress. The people at the Andrews Theater Center will give you the chance if you care to audition for a role in the comedy called A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. Be there Aug. 28, 29 or 30, calling 3550 for details before you go.

Elvis day

On Aug. 22, the All-American recreation center at McNair brings forth all its creativity to present its second annual Elvis Presley Remembrance Day.

It will feature the King's best music, together with dance contests, rock-and-roll demonstrations, an Elvis talent show, Elvis movies, food, and more entertainment.

If you care to try out for the Elvis Talent Show, head for the All-American on Aug. 14 at 7 p.m. Whether you sing, dance or imitate Elvis, you will be heartily welcomed.

Call the All-American at 3125 for details.

Wives' Club sponsors Sock Hop for charity

by Sue Sweeney

Black leather jackets, tight jeans, bobby socks and pony tails were visible late Saturday night at the Checkpoint NCO Club.

At the Club, the Checkpoint NCO Wives' Club sponsored a sock hop with proceeds going to the Schwalbennest Orphanage, near the Dueppel Housing area.

The Wives' Club collected almost $400 for the orphanage. "It felt great for us to collect this money for such a cause," said Annetta Phillips, president of the club. "We are a small club, but suddenly we had all this money to give away. That was terrific."

The money will be used for the children's birthday presents and cakes, as well as Christmas presents, added Phillips.

Disc jockeys, Rik De Lisle and Greg Foss and the newly formed band "Flesh Dogs" provided the music. There were several dance contests, and also the best dressed man and women received prizes. Cindy Tallent wife of SSgt. Ronald Tallent won the trip to London, England.

The best dressed women was Janice Turner, and best dressed male was SSgt. Terry Wagers, from MED-DAC.

"I'm sure that everyone had a good time," said Phillips. "The club stayed open longer than normal because everyone was enjoying themselves so much. We will have another hop soon and I hope that it goes as well as this one did."

Signalmen win softball crown

by R. Gibson

Signal Support Company, Combat Support Battalion, nipped Headquarters and Service Company, Field Station Berlin, 9-8, July 17 to capture the 1981 U. S. Army Berlin Softball Championship.

The team from Signal Support Company, who maintained an almost perfect record going into the tournament, reached the finals with victories over the teams from 287th Military Police Company and MEDDAC.

The team from Field Station Berlin entered the tournament with a 13-1 record, losing to MEDDAC in a regular season game. The tournament, however, turned out to be more than H & S bargained for as they came from the losers' bracket after dropping one to the 287th MP's, 10-5, earlier in the tournament.

The only chance Field Station had at the crown was to beat the team from Signal two games straight, but the contest never went beyond the first game as the signalmen came from behind in the fifth inning after trailing by three runs in the fourth.

The team from Field Station fought back but they couldn't establish the momentum lost due to an injury sustained by first baseman, John Howard, according to Lawrence Remick, coach for the Field Station team. Howard suffered a dislocated toe after sliding into second base.

That and "a few missed hits" were the reason for the loss Remick added. So the 1981 U. S. Army Berlin softball season comes to a close with the team from Signal Support the reigning champions.

AND INTO THE HOME STRETCH — Tom Kennedy (22) rounds second base on his way to another Signal Support Company home run as the signalmen of Combat Support Battalion beat the team from Headquarters and Service Company, Field Station Berlin in the final game of the U.S. Army Berlin Softball Championship. The Signal Support Company fought a hard season to take the title and earned it when they beat the Field Station team, 9-8.

Engineers near completion of 'great' obstacle

by Linda Jach

Soldiers here will be more physically fit and better trained to fight in urban terrain, thanks to the 42nd Engineer Company, Combat Support Battalion, according to Maj. Adolf Carlson, operations officer, G-3.

BUILT TO LAST — Sp4 Lee Richmond uses a wood preservative to help keep the new obstacles at Parks Range from deteriorating over the years.

The engineers will be completing a "team," Military Operations in Urban Terrain obstacle and confidence course, at Parks Range, at the end of this month.

The course consists of twelve obstacles, designed to improve a fire team's skills at scaling walls, climbing through windows and crawling through drainage pipes, said 2nd Lt. Rick N. Huggins, officer-in-charge of the construction project.

"The object will be to go through the 300-meter course as fast as possible while successfully completing each obstacle," explained Huggins.

Some of the ideas for the obstacles were standard Department of the Army designs, however, some of the ideas, the brigade "borrowed" from the British and French MOUT courses here, said Carlson.

"For example, the first obstacle is a nine-foot wall. To promote teamwork, the members of the team won't be able to go over it individually. They are forced to get together and help each other over the wall. This idea we got from the French," said Huggins.

"I have my whole platoon, 30 men, working out here," said Huggins. "They've been at it for approximately 35 working days. For the last two weeks, as we near our completion date, the men have been working until 8 p.m. some evenings."

"We've put a lot of hours into this project," said Sp4 Lee Richmond. "It's really interesting, because it's honest-to-goodness work as far as engineer projects are concerned."

The engineers aren't just busy laying sandbags and hammering nails, either. "I'm getting a lot of experience working the backhoe," explained Sp4 Christopher Raab.

Carlson said that he doesn't know yet who will be the first team to go through the course, however, "a team that makes it through, will be in good shape."

"I don't expect the first few teams to make it through," said Huggins. "However, as more participate and teamwork is improved, we should have some well-trained, disciplined men."

is expected to be completed at the end of this month and will have 12 obstacles for the soldiers of the Berlin Brigade to test their skills upon.
