

Command recognizes federal working women

by Linda Jach

To highlight the Federal Women's Program, the Berlin command will be honoring and educating men and women alike during Federal Women's Week, Aug. 24-28.

The theme of this year's Federal Women's Week is "Women's Success Abets Mission Objectives."

"Women are an integral part of the federal work force. In Berlin, successful military and civilian women help the command meet its objectives. Federal Women's Week provides an opportunity to highlight the contributions of these women," explained Diana Baldwin, Federal Women's Program manager.

Federal Women's Week was started in accordance with Civilian Personnel Regulation 700, which suggests that an event be held annually to enhance the visibility of the Federal Women's Program.

The week enclosing Aug. 26 was chosen because on that date in 1920, the 19th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution was ratified and women received the vote. Aug. 26 is also known as Women's Equality Day.

The first Federal Women's Week in USAREUR took place in 1975. Three years later the U. S. Air Force, Europe and the U. S. Navy, Europe joined in the recognition program. The next year, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service joined in the joint observation.

The Federal Women's Week Program is part of the Equal Employment Opportunity Program and aims at assuring that women get maximum use of all their human resources by encouraging women and men, particularly managers and supervisors, not to accept the traditional myths about women and their ability to perform particular jobs.

It also helps women to assess their own interests and potential so that they can investigate the possibilities open to them, make decisions about their own goals and compete for career advancement on an equal basis with men, if motivated and qualified, according to Baldwin.

The Federal Women's Week is only a high spot in the Federal Women's Program, which is a continuing year-round effort designed to enhance the employment and advancement of women, said Baldwin.

Many events are planned for the week, including a Community Luncheon open to the entire community, Aug. 28. For reservations, call 819-6816, by Aug. 21. Also, an AFN-hosted radio "phone-in" show, with the theme, "Working in USAREUR and AAFES," will be presented on Aug. 26. (See the next issue of the Berlin Observer for a full schedule of Federal Women's Week activities.)

Miss America, entourage visit Brigade

District Day highlights Volksfest festivities

by Jim Joerger

The Volksfest with its many rides, games and food has something for just about everyone to enjoy. There are many events which take place during the Volksfest that are designed as community relations activities.

One of these events held recently is known as District Day.

District Mayors or their representatives and twenty couples from each of the six districts in the American Sector joined their host for the evening, Brig. Gen. John E. Rogers, community commander, and the Partner Unit commanders and couples from each of the units for a night of merriment and entertainment.

The entertainment for this year's District Day was provided by the Miss America USO Show. The event took place in the festival tent.

"I had a good time at the District Day. The Miss America Show was well done and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves very much," commented 1st Lt. Kevin P. Sheehan, S-1, 4th Battalion.

According to a community relations spokeswoman, "This District Day was the largest ever. In the past there were always six different days, but this year the decision was made to have everyone together at the same time."

Another event which takes place on each Friday throughout the Volksfest is Kinderheim Day. This event is designed to give the German children from orphanages and other children's homes in the American Sector an opportunity to visit the Volksfest with an adult escort. The 3rd Battalion has provided the escorts for the past two weeks.

The soldiers team up with several of the youngsters and spend the afternoon riding the rides and acting as a sort of big brother to the children.

"I've been having a good time with the children, but I think that there should be a brigade training holiday with all the soldiers and children at the Volksfest at the same time," said Pvt. 2 Patrick A. Roach, Company C, 3rd Battalion.

"Many of the 30 soldiers that participated as escorts the first week volunteered to come back the second week. I think that speaks for itself relating to how the soldiers felt about escorting the children," said Anne Keller, community relations advisor.

A third event sponsored by the community relations office is the Allied Friendship Day. "This year's theme for the Volksfest, 'The Dakota Badlands,' had special meaning for the Allied Friendship Day. In the Sioux Indian language, the word Dakota means allies," explained Capt. Kathryn G. Carlson, community relations officer.

The British and French soldiers who participated this year were joined by the soldiers of the 2nd Battalion for an evening of riding the various rides and competing against each other at the game booths. The favorite game for serious competition appeared to be the rifle booths.

SHOW TIME — Miss America, Susan Powell of Oklahoma, and her entourage of semi-finalists: Miss Alabama, Paige Phillips; Miss Arkansas, Lencola Sullivan; Miss Louisiana, Missy Crews; Miss Maryland, Lisa Marie Daskal; Miss Mississippi, Donna Pope; and Miss South Dakota, Carol Ann Barnett perform at the Volksfest District Day. The group also stopped off at the Hi-Lite and All-American Recreation centers, Aug. 7, to visit with Berlin Brigade soldiers and sign autographs. The group is touring Europe and Iceland on a DoD/USO performing tour.

Buildings feeling money pinch

by Helga A. Maxwell

Hello there! I am one of the buildings you live in! There are over 1,000 of us in the U. S. Sector of the walled city. Some are big, some are small, some stand on ornate grounds, others in simple surroundings. Some are single-family dwellings, while others accommodate up to eighteen families. The halls of the troop buildings at Andrews Barracks and others are ringing with the footsteps of hundreds of soldiers whose home away from home we are, while they are stationed here.

We, the buildings you live in, would like to remind you that our upkeep costs quite a bit of money, and while there is no direct collection of rent or utility payments from the occupants, the costs are, nevertheless, indirect payments out of your pockets or out of the community's budget. This is often money we'd rather see expended on the improvement of the quality of life, rather than plastering walls in stairwells that appear to have been "treated" with sledgehammers, repairs to fences torn down by mindless pranksters, or playground equipment that has been vandalized.

If you were stationed in West Germany before you arrived here, or in the areas surrounding Ft. Hood, Texas, or Ft. Knox, Ky. you'd know for certain that the government housing in West Berlin is top-drawer. (I know, absence makes the heart grow fonder).

We, the buildings you live in, are also aware that you'd much rather find U.S.-made washers and dryers in the laundry rooms — who wouldn't! Alas, these machines, if treated right, are quite good. Just read and follow the instructions posted.

During the summer vacation months, lots of children are playing in and around the housing areas. May we remind you of the fact that child abuse comes in many forms, the least of which is not instructing your children how to treat property not theirs.

Another form of child abuse is allowing a four-year-old to wander about unsupervised in the housing area, taking solo rides in the elevators and not teaching this child right from wrong.

Do sit down with your children and explain things before a serious accident happens! Do it now! If not for Heaven's Sake, then for little John or Mary.

You, as the parents, are responsible for damages and/or acts of pure vandalism.

When you, the occupants, see broken windows in your building or whatever else may be in need of repair, tell your stairwell coordinator. If he or she isn't available to call for repairs, do it yourself by calling 819-6666.

Don't say to yourself, "It ain't my business!" Don't ignore broken windows, doors, mailboxes or light fixtures, lids missing from the trash cans or whatever else may get broken in and around the housing areas and the building you live in.

My friends, let me tell you. Since I am not able to do it myself, I do rely on you to keep up my appearance — this includes the grounds around me. Okay, so someone else dropped snippets of paper and other assorted trash. Bend down yourself and pick it up, it saves five minutes of jogging!

My upkeep also includes a neatly trimmed yard, which should be watered when necessary.

Again, a word of caution! Who, as a child, didn't enjoy playing in the water and spraying your little friends. This is fine, but please, no water in the parking lots!

Let's all be thankful for what we have here in Berlin and strive to make living here as pleasant a surrounding as we possibly can. We thank you kindly.

Shift-worker upset about unit's morning run

Editor:

My unit, the U. S. Army Communications Command, shares Charge of Quarters duties with Company B, Field Station, Berlin and on July 23, I had the dubious pleasure of pulling CQ.

I reported to the first sergeant on that Thursday afternoon and after receiving my instructions, I settled down and hoped for a quiet night, like every-one else who pulls CQ.

Well, all was quiet until 6:45 a.m. Friday morning when Company B, 2nd Battalion was on their morning run and decided to run through the parking lot of the Field Station barracks.

After the first time around the parking lot, 1st Sgt. Bell of Company B, Field Station, Berlin went out to say something to the leader of the formation, but was ignored and the volume of the formation increased dramatically. The formation then made two more loops around the parking lot and left the area.

Unlike Company B, 2nd Battalion, the Field Station performs its mission 24-hours-a-day, 7-days-a-week, 365-days-a-year. This requires shift work which means off-duty personnel are

Commander responds to irate troop

The commander of Company B, 2nd Battalion and I thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

We especially appreciate the opportunity to tell you what it takes to be a leader in the Infantry. It takes enthusiasm, a youthful vigor of mind and body, tactical and technical proficiency, and a deep-seated love of the American fighting man to lead the Army's finest infantrymen.

Proud soldiers like to express their enthusiasm and unit esprit de corps to sleeping during the day. Either Company B, 2nd Battalion doesn't know this, or chooses to ignore it, but that does not excuse the formation leader for ignoring 1st Sgt. Bell.

I have no grudge against the Infantry and I realize the mission they must perform. I've often wondered what it takes to be a leader in the Infantry. If what I saw that Friday morning is an example, I'm glad I chose the Signal Corps.

Sp5 Larry K. Hammond

their fellow soldiers, and we all see examples of this each day as the Berlin Brigade's units make their morning runs throughout the American Sector.

McNair units run to Andrews and Andrews units run to McNair in a healthy exhibition of spirit. Company B, 2nd Battalion has been running through Andrews on a regular basis for a long time following the route you describe in your letter. The company commander admits to not having considered the shift nature of the work hours of Field Station, Berlin personnel.

In the future when he runs his company by these billets, he states that he will do so using the "silent cadence" that we normally reserve for hospital and nursing home areas. This should ensure a minimum of interference with the sleep of those personnel off-shift.

Again, thank you for your interest.

Traveling to East Berlin

by Linda Jach

The Provost Marshal's Office receives many inquiries concerning travel to East Berlin.

The requirements for travel into East Berlin are actually fairly simple but must be followed to the letter.

All U. S. Forces members traveling to East Berlin are required to wear Class A or Class B uniforms or the equivalent uniform of their service. Fatigues cannot be worn into East Berlin.

U. S. Forces members traveling to East Berlin, after processing at Checkpoint "Charlie," may either walk through the East German checkpoint, take a tour bus or enter in their privately owned vehicle. Regardless of the mode of travel, all personnel must process through Checkpoint "Charlie."

Additionally, forces members must have a valid USAREUR driver's license and the vehicle registration if traveling by POV.

Trunk and engine compartments of all vehicles will be inspected during processing at Checkpoint "Charlie." An MP will be waiting for you. Remember all car safety equipment will be inspected prior to starting the journey, so make it accessible!

Berlin-based service members, U. S. Government employees, and family members must also have an AEBA Form 034350, Request for Travel to East Berlin, properly filled out and signed prior to getting to the checkpoint. Personnel may get this form at their unit's Personnel Administration Center.

All Berlin personnel, other than uniformed service members, must have a U. S. Forces Berlin I.D. Card. The I.D. Card can be obtained from AG Customer Service at Clay Headquarters.

Non-Berlin stationed service members must have a valid I.D. card and leave or pass orders which specifically state that travel to East Berlin is authorized. If driving, a valid USAREUR driver's license and vehicle registration must be shown. Family members, U. S. government employees, and their family members not stationed in Berlin must have a valid U. S. passport.

The NCOIC at Checkpoint "Charlie" will give a briefing on "do's and don't's" while in East Berlin. Travelers must read the travel notice they're given before crossing.

Do . . .

- Do comply with all instructions issued by the Checkpoint NCOIC.
- Do be aware of and obey all posted speed limits and traffic controls.
- Do stop to assist Allied travelers in difficulty.
- Do safeguard your travel and identity documents and the travel packet you will receive at the checkpoint.
- Do turn your packet in to the checkpoint MP's when returning.
- Do report any incidents or unusual occurrences.

Don't . . .

- Don't pick up or discharge unauthorized passengers.
- Don't show identity or travel documents to anyone except uniformed Soviet personnel while in East Berlin.
- Don't take any photographs of uniformed personnel, military installations or government buildings. (Photos can be taken at the Eternal Flame Memorial.)
- Don't engage in any activity or conduct embarrassing to the U. S. government.

Travelers are reminded that if they are stopped while in East Berlin they should show no documents, pay no fines, and request a uniformed Soviet officer if questioned or detained.

Should you have a breakdown, look in the travel packet. This gives the procedures and number for calling Checkpoint "Charlie" or the U. S. Embassy in East Berlin. Also in the packet is a breakdown slip. This should be filled out and given to an Allied traveler returning to the checkpoint.

For specific questions not covered in this article, refer to USCOB regulation 550-180 or call MP Special Operations 3442/3467. Do not direct your telephonic questions to the checkpoint.

Above all, remember your conduct reflects upon the United States, so act and dress in good taste.

Knowing what's required to go into East Berlin before going, can save you problems and make the trip enjoyable.

entering and departing East Berlin. A traveler's progress through the checkpoint is monitored at all times.

"EVERYTHING'S OKAY!" — All vehicles, including tour buses, will be processed upon return from East Berlin. Military Police personnel will direct drivers into the proper parking areas. Drivers must exit the vehicle and assist the MP's as requested. (Photo by Jim Joerger)

Know details before d

by Linda Jach

A trip to or from Berlin can be spoiled and lead to trouble for travelers who don't know the procedures. So, before you go on your trip, the Provost Marshal's Office provides the following information to help make your trip safe, pleasant and smooth. Detailed instructions can be found in USCOB Regulation 550-180.

The Berlin-Helmstedt Autobahn is the only route that can be used by Allied personnel.

When traveling along the Berlin-Helmstedt Autobahn, the most important thing to remember is to follow the MP's instructions at Checkpoint "Alpha" or "Bravo." For Berlin-based personnel processing through the checkpoints, specific documents are required: flag orders, a valid I.D. Card or U. S. Passport and a valid USAREUR driver's license and vehicle registration, (if driving a privately owned vehicle).

Also, if the vehicle registration is not in the driver's name, a power-of-attorney must be presented stating that the car may be driven on the Berlin-Helmstedt Autobahn.

Flag orders, the document for autobahn travel, can be obtained at your unit Personnel Administration Center. It's your responsibility to ensure that the information on the document is letter perfect; with the details exactly as they appear on your I.D. Card or passport and the correct vehicle registration number of the POV.

In addition to normally required documentation specified in paragraph three above, military personnel not assigned to Berlin must have a valid leave, pass or TDY form which specifically states that travel to West Berlin is authorized. If the traveler is planning to visit East Berlin, the orders or leave form must so state.

If you are a first-time traveler, the NCOIC at either Checkpoint "Alpha" or "Bravo" will make sure you understand all that's required while on the autobahn. If you still have doubts he can arrange for you to follow an experienced autobahn traveler.

Service members, U. S. Government employees and all family members must have a valid I.D. Card or Allied passport.

Drivers must also have a valid USAREUR driver's license and vehicle registration.

Trunk and engine compartments of all vehicles will be inspected immediately upon entry and exit at the Allied checkpoints. An MP will be awaiting your arrival. Remember, all automotive safety equipment required will be inspected prior to starting the journey, so make it accessible!

You must . . .

You must comply with all the checkpoint NCOIC's instructions.

You must report to the checkpoint with a full tank of gas.

You must process at two Allied and two Soviet autobahn checkpoints. The MP's on duty at the Allied checkpoint will explain how to process through the Soviet checkpoints.

You must comply with the travel time as specified by checkpoint personnel.

After a military policeman has performed his duties, travelers will be asked to complete and sign a form used to document your travel in East Berlin.

WELCOME HOME — Travelers driving from Berlin to Helmstedt on the autobahn must process through Allied Checkpoint "Bravo." At the checkpoint, travelers receive a safety inspection, a briefing, and a check to ensure that their documents are correct. Travelers returning to Berlin should make sure that they don't go through the toll booths, but to the Checkpoint "Bravo" parking lot on the right. Travelers must process at Checkpoint "Alpha" at Helmstedt after exiting the corridor autobahn.

You must observe safe driving practices.

You must stop to assist Allied travelers having difficulty.

You must keep all cameras secured at all times.

You must safeguard your travel and identity documents and the packet you will receive at the checkpoint.

You must turn in your packet and your ending odometer reading to checkpoint MP's.

You must report any incidents or unusual occurrences.

You must not ...

You must not pick up or discharge unauthorized passengers.

You must not stop at gas stations, restaurants or stores on the autobahn, or at rest stops where Soviet or GDR police or military are present.

You must not show identity or travel documents to anyone except uniformed Soviet personnel.

You must not take any photographs.

You must not turn around on the autobahn.

You must not engage in any activity or conduct embarrassing to the U. S. Government.

WITH BEST INTENTIONS IN MIND — A Military Police member will conduct a safety inspection of your vehicle before you begin a trip along the Berlin-Helmstedt Auto-bahn. The MP will also inspect your vehicle immediately after ending the trip on the autobahn. With his help, your trip can be safe, smooth and pleasant.

WAITING PATIENTLY — As soon as a traveler ends his trip on the Berlin-Helmstedt Autobahn, a military policeman will be waiting in the parking lot to process your vehicle. By following the checkpoint MP's instructions, your trip will be quicker and smoother.

Stop housing crime; lock entrance doors

Throughout the community, the entrance doors to quarters can be found unsecured, both at day and night.

One can only wonder why. Is it because the main stairwell entrance doors are inoperative, or that keys are not available? The answer in most cases is "none of the above."

Through housing surveys and personal contact with many residents, it has come to light that personnel prop open these entrance doors for many different reasons. "I just opened it for the grocery delivery," or "I can never find my key, and it's such a hassle," are just a couple of examples.

When you open the door for any deliveries, make sure you lock it when you are done, and please keep a spare key handy. Your safety and your family's safety should never be considered a hassle.

In some cases, fires have been set in basements after entry was gained through unsecured doors. In other cases, assaults, larceny and robberies have taken place due to unsecured buildings.

Please take part in keeping our community safe and secure. "Lock up for quarters security!" — the key to crime prevention is you.

AFN asking for questions, opinions

American Forces Network — Berlin gets an occasional letter asking for special movies, shows, programs, etc.

Every letter receives our undivided attention and action is taken to respond to the author's request.

For example, a viewer called (6145) asking for AFN Berlin TV to show the movie "7 Brides for 7 Brothers" which has been shown recently in Frankfurt on AFN-TV Germany.

We contacted the headquarters station and the movie will be seen in Berlin, Sept. 6.

Another service member requested "The Avengers" be shown at an earlier time than one in the morning. This fitted into our schedule since "Policewoman" was found to be very adult for late afternoon showing. "The Avengers" was switched with "Policewoman" within a matter of weeks.

An avid AFN watcher wrote to ask for "The Way We Were," a big box office smash with Barbara Streisand and Robert Redford. On this one we were fortunate since AFRTS, Los Angeles, had it coming overseas and it was aired in Berlin Aug. 8, at 9:30 p.m.

AFN Berlin TV and Radio solicits your comments in writing or by phone. Write Programming, AFN Berlin, APO 09742 or dial AFN Action Line, 819-6145.

We cannot guarantee your request will be put into effect but it will receive serious consideration and where possible acted upon.

Voluntary 'physicals' out

Medical examinations for the purpose of retirement are no longer voluntary, according to Interim Change No. 102 to AR 40-501.

Army policy now requires all active duty soldiers, National Guardsmen and Army Reservists retiring after more than 20 year's service to undergo a medical examination. Examinations must be scheduled not earlier than four months nor later than one month before the date of retirement. (ARNEWS)

Help clothing drive

by Sue Sweeney

Do you have some old clothes that you no longer need or want?

If you do, why not donate them to the annual German Red Cross clothing drive which begins on Monday and continues until Aug. 28?

The clothing drive is designed to collect reusable clothing for refugees of any major catastrophe.

"The idea is to have the clothing on hand before any disaster happens," said Henry Schaal, the German coordinator. "After the clothing is collected it's sorted according to what season it's made for and then it's shipped to the warehouses in the Federal Republic of Germany."

"It's a very good cause," said SFC Raymond Tharp, the American coordinator. "The clothing is distributed worldwide, not just in Europe."

"I had a chance to see some refugees in Lisbon, Portugal receive some of these clothes," said Schaal. "The looks of happiness on their faces when they received them made me feel proud of the people who donated the clothes. It makes our purpose very clear in my mind."

"It's a very good example of Germans and Americans working together for the good of other people," said Tharp. "Not only do both Germans and Americans contribute clothing, but they also help get them collected and sent to their destination in the FRG."

Anyone who is interested in donating clothing should leave them in bags on the sidewalk nearest the major street in their housing area. Red Cross clothing bags can be found in the Main Exchange, the commissary and foodlands. The clothes should be put out before 9 a.m. on the morning that the trucks will be in that area. To find out when the trucks will be in your area, check the schedule below.

'Work worth the pay'

Fest clean thanks to kids

by Jeanne A. Dansereau

Nearly everyone who visits this year's Volksfest has a great time enjoying the rides, entertainment and the wide variety of food and drink.

During the course of a 'Volksfest' day, a large amount of cleaning has to be done both during the operating hours and when its closed.

The crew responsible for a large portion of this clean-up is the Dependent Youth Activities' Klean-Up Kadets.

These youngsters, who earn about $1.50 an hour, are responsible for cleaning the entire American section of the Volksfest. This includes the stage area, the inside of the game hall and around the food stands.

To decide who would work at this year's Volksfest, names were drawn by the DYA. The youngest of the Kadets, the 10- to 13-year-olds, work Shift A from 9 a.m. to noon while the 13- to 15-year-olds work either Shift B from 4 to 7 p.m. or Shift C from 7 to 10 p.m.

"It's a terrible mess after the people leave," said David Churchman. "They just drop trash everywhere and we have to clean it all up."

The workers sweep the concrete, rake the sand, scrub tables and pick up all the trash they see. They even crawl under counters and turn in any money that they find. By the time they are through, the Volksfest grounds are ready for the next day's opening.

"Sure there's a mess to clean up," said Tanya Knight, "but it's worth the pay."

The crew collects soft cigarette packs that they find. Their supervisor, Kim Kirk, has promised a free T-shirt to the worker that has the most packs at the end of the Volksfest.

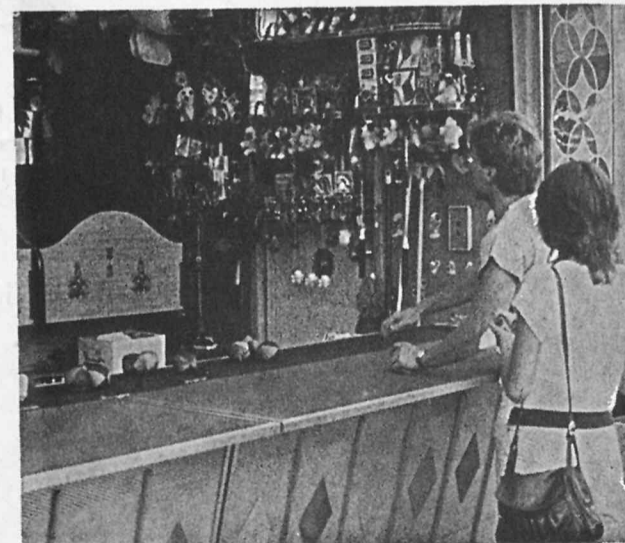

Kirk says that the people are great about supporting the workers. The German people have supplied them with free rides and the Americans at the concession stands occasionally donate food to the hard working kids.

"Kim is like a drill sergeant," said one worker. "The way she makes us work is rough. Off duty though, she's a real nice person."

"All the kids work hard and I think that they earn every penny they make," said Kirk. "The job gets done and the results are excellent. The Volksfest grounds are spotless when they get finished."

I think it's great that the Volksfest asked the DYA to support them," added Kirk. "It gives the younger age groups a chance to have summer employment."

Fun for all

HOT SHOT — Games and activities for both young and old can be found at this year's German-American Volksfest. It's on until Aug. 16, so bring the family and have a good time. The Volksfest opens at 2 p.m. and closes at midnight Sunday through Thursday, and 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

2nd Battalion troops keeping fit, staying slim

by Rob Roberts

Thanks to the 2nd Battalion's special physical training program, its soldiers are losing weight, building endurance and confidence and having fun.

The PT was started not as a punishment for overweight members in the battalion, but as a unit strength-builder.

The program first started in September 1980, but due to the loss of the key instructor, the program slowed down and almost came to a standstill.

1st Sgt. George D. Gates, first sergeant of Combat Support Company is now the instructor and is making it work.

"Special PT is expected to tone a person's muscles, keep a person in shape and assist an overweight soldier to take off pounds," said Gates. "Also, a lot of people think that it's only for overweight soldiers. The program is also designed for those who can't keep up during regular battalion PT."

Exercise in the program is fast, with plenty of stretching. Gates is also teaching the soldiers in the program how to breath in cadence. "I feel that a big reason some of the soldiers can't keep up on the runs is because they don't know how to breath properly," explained Gates.

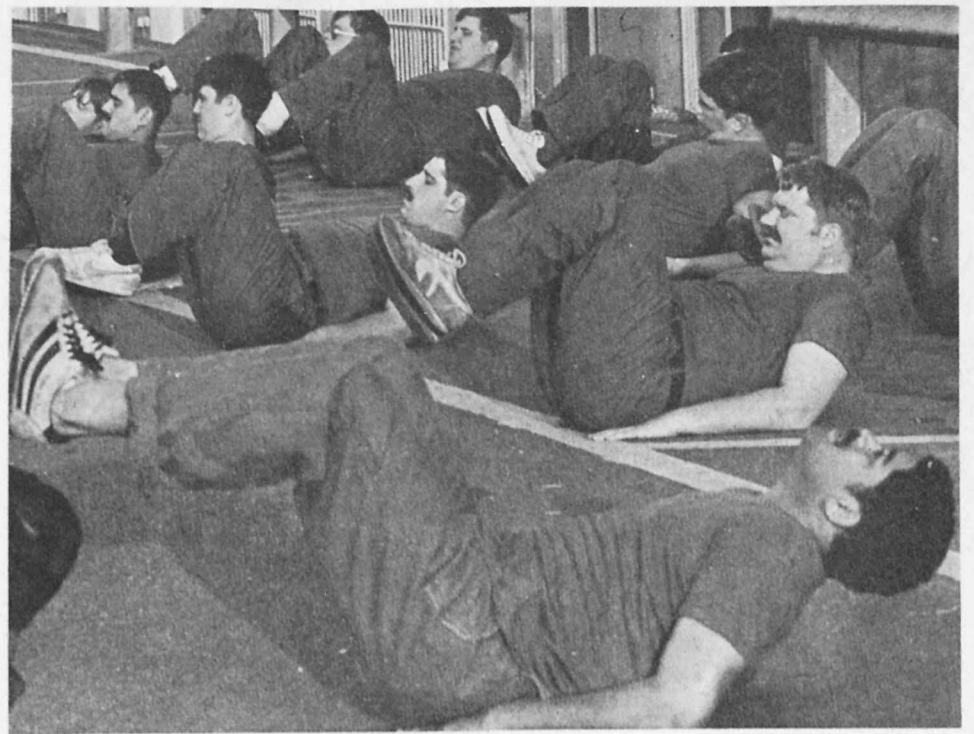

To assist the program, the dining facility is planning a low calorie menu.

"If a soldier is physically fit he will be more able to fulfill the mission," explained Lt. Col. Robert H. Wood, 2nd Battalion commander, about the program.

"The program really helps me keep my weight down," said Pvt. David Hughes, Company B. "It also helps me stay in shape."

"With this program, I feel that everyone in the battalion will be in shape — no exceptions," commented Sgt. Adrian Dominquez, Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

With the Army 'thinking thin,' we can't afford to play off such a good program," said 1st Sgt. Gregory T. McGuire, acting command sergeant major of the battalion.

ALL TOGETHER NOW — Members of 2nd Battalion join in on some muscle hardening exercises, during the battalion's special physical training program. The PT is designed for overweight soldiers.

MP's return from British 25-miler

American and British military police returned from Sussex County, England on Tuesday.

The 14-member British-American team was in England for a competitive road march. The team took six hours to complete the 25-mile trail. The first team to complete the march took five hours and twenty minutes.

"We were required to stop at various checkpoints along the trail," said 2nd Lt. William Giese, captain of the team. "We all finished the march together. That didn't come as a surprise since we were fairly well prepared and we were determined to finish together. Many teams had people fall out."

Giese commented that this was a gala event for the town Chichester, where the march took place. After it was over, the mayor made a speech and the teams, participated in a parade.

"Overall I would say that it was a good march," said Giese. "I was proud of my men."

Unit trains with British 'mates'

The 4th Battalion hosted a platoon from Company C of the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers during the battalion's training in Wildflecken, West Germany, recently.

The 10th platoon got a chance to participate in the 4th Battalion's live-fire and Army Readiness Training and Evaluation Program exercises and acted as aggressors during one segment of the training.

For the 4th Battalion's British counterparts, it was an exercise in familiarization with American weapons, field gear, and tactics. They were really impressed with our weapons, web gear and rucksacks," said Sgt. Robert Harrell, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion.

"The American and British doctrine and tactics are quite different," said Cpl. Charlie Dowd of the Fusiliers. "Only traditional tactics are used by the British Army, whereas the Americans are adventurous — trying more concepts and ideas.

"I like some of the field gear the Americans use," continued Dowd. "The U.S. web gear is lighter and the person who designed it was obviously an infantryman. Our equipment is heavier and bulkier and when wet, it gets quite stiff. Our web gear is not waterproofed like the Americans'."

On chow, the Fusiliers found that 4th Battalion's food was pretty good. "Only breakfast is different in the British Army. We eat a more traditional breakfast of bacon, eggs, sausage, beans, and rye bread with coffee and tea. Also, our C-rations are different," said Cpl. Mitcha Mitchell, another Fusilier.

"All in all, we learned from each other," said Dowd. "The 4th Battalion men are some good blokes."

Combat Support leaves for field duty in Graf

by Linda Jach

After six long, hard, complicated months of planning, Combat Support Battalion departed for Grafenwoehr, West Germany.

The advanced party left last week with the main body departing in convoys and on the duty train, late last week.

The three units that will experience the most while on the field trip, will be Company F, 40th Armor; Battery C, 94th Field Artillery; and 42nd Engineer Company, according to the S-1, Capt. Richard B. Hollar.

While in Graf, 40th Armor will "qualify" with their tanks, just as any soldier qualifies with an M16A1 rifle. "It's the most important training the unit can receive and will include day and night maneuvers," said 2nd Lt. Laurie J. Bruhn, assistant S-1.

Battery C, 94th Field Artillery will participate in many live-fire exercises which includes practice for their Army Readiness, Training and Evaluation Program.

A highlight of the engineer company's training will be familiarization with Combat Engineer Vehicles, in the form of a CEV Field Training Exercise, said Bruhn. "The company will also participate in mine and demolition training."

For the rear detachment, their job won't be easy either. Not only will they be supporting the battalion, they must also administratively support Signal Support Company and the 287th Military Police Company. "They'll also go through training of their own, such as, operating in a Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical environment, and maintaining equipment," explained Bruhn.

By the time the battalion's units return from Grafenwoehr, the personnel will not only be well-trained and combat ready, they'll have a first-hand knowledge of what it's like to fire the 'live' one.

Applications available soon for legal education program

The office of the Judge Advocate General announced recently that applications for the Funded Legal Education Program (FLEP) are due November 1.

This new application date is one of the changes made by a revision of AR 351-22 to be published this fall. The items to be included in the application remain the same.

The FLEP program allows 25 selected officers per year to attend law school at government expense while on active duty. Officers in the grades O-1 through O-3, who have not less than two years nor more than six years of active duty at the time legal training begins are eligible to apply.

The change in application date will allow those officers selected for the program to meet application deadlines for law schools, say officials.

Interested officers who have not yet taken the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) should immediately register for the October test.

Additional information concerning the program can be obtained by calling the Judge Advocate General's professional recruiting office at (800) 336-3315. (ARNEWS)

Call right agency for answers to claims on PCS moves

Persons calling the Military Personnel Office (MILPO) in regards to the expiration date for filing claims for Permanent Change of Station moves, may be getting a wrong answer, according to a recent USAR-EUR Personnel Command message.

Soldiers have been calling our office, but, many may have been getting the wrong answers because they're not asking the right people," said Sgt. Maj. Melvin R. Loveday, NCOIC, AG.

For instance, claims for reimbursement of travel expenses as a result of PCS are considered valid for ten years. The information should have been obtained from the Finance and Accounting Office, not MILPO.

Except for ETS and retirement, there's no limitation established for transportation requests. This information must be obtained from the Transportation Office, not MILPO.

Claims for damage to personal property as a result of PCS are valid for two years. This information should be obtained from the Claims

Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, not MILPO.

According to the message, "if MILPO were correct, all service members with household goods currently in storage in CONUS would be paying for that storage two of the three years he or she is in Europe." This does not happen, (if the service member inquired about the situation at MILPO that is).

Another example might be when a service member departs Europe, leaving their privately owned vehicle behind for repairs and shipment later by a friend or appointed representative. If the repairs take more than a year to complete the service member is still authorized to ship the POV to CONUS. However if the soldier had called MILPO for this information, he might have received an incorrect answer.

Military Personnel Office workers are not transportation, finance or claims experts. If they call the right office, soldiers will save themselves a lot of trouble, and save MILPO a lot of embarrassment.
