

Chaplain begins year-long supervision seminars

Yesterday at the McNair Chapel marked the beginning of a series of seminars on effective supervision. The first of the series, "Relating to Persons as a Supervisor," was offered for NCO's only and served as a kick-off for a one-year program of seminars for NCO's, officers and civilian personnel of the Berlin Brigade.

Throughout the year, five seminars will be held for the purpose of assisting the supervisor in accomplishing his or her missions while developing more effective soldiers to supervise.

Chaplain Darryl Goldman, the seminar leader, said the idea began by observing NCO's respond to their soldiers in training as well as in more natural situations.

"When the private, or specialist, responds negatively to the supervisor, there are several possible response. Sometimes the supervisor immediately uses a threat or repeats the directive with a louder voice.

"If this works at all, it will eventually become less and less effective. And, when it does not work, the only resort is to become more drastic," he continued.

"I think the supervisor has a far better chance of success if he or she uses some other options before arriving at the threatening stage.

Secretary of Army to speak at luncheon

Secretary of the Army, John O. Marsh, Jr., is scheduled to speak at an Association of the United States Army luncheon slated for Sept. 9 at the Checkpoint NCO Club.

Marsh, a former Virginia attorney, served during World War II as an enlisted man. Shortly after the war, he attended the Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga. He continued in the Virginia Army National Guard until his retirement as a lieutenant colonel with 30 years service.

The luncheon is offered to any member of the AUSA, however, only 250 places will be available.

For more information or to obtain tickets, members should call their unit first sergeant or sergeant major. The luncheon begins at 11:30 a.m.

Reenlistment bonus paid in lump sum

Since April 3, 1979, the Army has authorized lump sum Selective Reenlistment Bonus (SRB) payments for those individuals who reenlisted on or after April 3, 1979 and who desire to receive their bonus in one lump sum.

Those soldiers who reenlisted prior to April 3, 1979 were paid the SRB in annual installments.

Effective immediately and for the remainder of Fiscal Year 81, (ending Sept. 30, 1981), those soldiers who are receiving their SRB in annual installments may be paid any remaining SRB amount due them in one lump sum payment.

This lump sum payment of any remaining SRB amount is not, repeat, not mandatory. An individual may continue under the annual installment payment method if he or she so desires.

Soldiers should be advised that payment of the remaining SRB amount may, in fact, place him or her in a higher tax bracket. In this regard, individuals should consult their local legal assistance officer for information on the "income averaging" provisions of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code.

Soldiers desiring lump sum payment of SRB should contact their Personnel Administration Center. The PAC will make an appointment at Finance for scheduling individuals for payment. (MILPERCEN)

Getting an education

"VERY INTERESTING" — Diana Baldwin (l), Federal Women's Program manager discusses the aspects of a film, before its showing, with 2nd Lt. Robert P. Ryan, Company B, 4th Battalion, and his wife. The film was part of Federal Women's Week activities. Members of the command got together at the Main Library to learn more about how "Federal Women Abet Mission Objectives," this year's theme. Other activities also took place at the Army Community Services and were topped off by a luncheon at the Harnack House.

Battalion moves to Wildflecken

by Sue Sweeney

Soldiers from 2nd Battalion left for Wildflecken, West Germany on Monday for specialized training and live-fire exercises.

Training in West Germany is completely different than in Berlin and the soldiers will spend some time away from garrison and all its luxuries.

"Being away from the post eliminates many of the distractions," said Maj. Kevin McGoe, operations officer. "There is no main exchange, commissary or even family members to distract the soldiers. They are isolated from everything except soldiering."

The soldiers will definitely not run out of things to keep them busy. According to McGoe, the battalion will qualify all crew weapons systems. This includes the 90mm recoilless rifle and the .50-caliber machinegun. They will live-fire their light anti-tank weapons as well as their Dragon and TOW systems.

"Much of the time that we are in West Germany will be spent on company level training," said McGoe. "Each commanding officer will choose the areas he feels his company needs more training in and that is what they will do."

The soldiers will also run a grenade qualification course and field fire their individual weapons both during the day and at night. They will also conduct mortar exercises and platoon live-fire exercises.

Going on a trip to West Germany takes months of planning to ensure that the trip goes smoothly, the soldiers get the necessary training and arrive safely back in Berlin.

MPs stressing drug awareness campaign

The military police provide many services in regards to the elimination of illegal drugs within the Berlin American community.

One of these is the concerted effort put forth by the investigators of the Military Police Investigations Branch, in cases dealing primarily with personal use and possession of contraband items. Surveillance is an effective tool in identification of personnel using drugs.

The Joint Drug Suppression Team, or JDST, is a Provost Marshal/Criminal Investigation Division (CID) operation, under CID operational control. Their mission is to investigate drug offenses, interdict and confiscate illegal drugs, and apprehend traffickers of illicit drugs who are dealing with military personnel. JDST's activities are conducted in cooperation with the host nation, Allied Forces, U. S. civilian, and military authorities.

The 42nd MP Customs Group also plays an important role in the suppression of drugs in our community.

The 42nd MP Custom's mission is to directly support the service member returning personal property to the customs territory of the U. S. By utilizing narcotic detector dogs to clear personal property, service members experience minimal delays in the receipt of their property.

At the direction of the Provost Marshal, customs personnel assist MPI in conducting searches at U. S. Army installation gates, duty trains, and checkpoints, in an attempt to deter trafficking. Customs also supports the commander by using drug detector dogs in barracks and work areas.

The Provost Marshal's Crime Prevention Section is also an integral part of the overall law enforcement effort to deter the use of illicit drugs. They give lecture-type instruction on drugs and controlled substances at the Brigade School of Standards and, when requested, to individual units, groups or clubs.

This section also produces written material, conducts inspections of units and activities, and maintains a close liaison with the community to help educate and prevent the use of illicit drugs.

Amnesty boxes are available in many units or at the gate of each compound for the purpose of allowing individuals to dispose of drugs and paraphernalia without fear of reprisal.

Woman wants cosmetics on Exchange DPP

Editor:

Recently I opened a Deferred Payment Program account at the Main Exchange in Truman Plaza. I was told that I couldn't charge any cosmetic goods on this account. When I asked why, the woman told me she didn't know.

I use these items more than anything else that I buy at the Main Exchange. Several of my friends mentioned that cosmetics can be their biggest purchase of the entire month. Isn't DPP formulated to help me finance items that I want?

Well, again I ask, why not cosmetics? Maybe you can help me find the answer.

Name withheld request

Manager explains PX 'credit'

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to reacquaint our customers in Berlin with the AAFES regulation governing merchandise which may be charged to a Deferred Payment Program account. This regulation has been in effect since the program's inception several years ago and specifically excludes, among other items, "... health and beauty items (Dept. 30) ...," e.g. cosmetics.

The reason for this exclusion is that the DPP is intended to facilitate the purchase of two categories of merchandise generally: (1) High-ticket items such as bicycles, microwave ovens, automobile parts and repairs, camera equipment, stereo equipment, and other merchandise of this nature for which most people do not have the necessary ready cash when the item is available; and, (2) seasonal needs which require larger than normal expenditures for families, e.g. Christmas, Back-to-School, Fall-Winter and Spring-Summer clothes, vacations, etc.

Robert L. Cervantes
Manager, Berlin Exchange

All letters to the editor must be signed by the author and a telephone/address must be included before they will be considered for publication.

The writer may, however, request that his or her name be withheld. This request will be honored.

Boys upset bus rider

Editor:

I am a family member and I work every day just like others do. When I get off work, I catch the 4:30 p.m. "A" bus home to Dueppel.

Every week-night for the past two weeks, the bus has been overcrowded with young boys going to football practice. People have had to stand in the aisle, some with children, others with packages and groceries.

On some nights, the bus driver has had to refuse access to people trying to get on the bus. Can you imagine how some people feel, getting off work to catch the bus home and having to stand after a long, hard day at work, or not being able to get on the bus?

These boys stand right up to the curb to get on the bus so they won't have to stand, and they push others away as they try to get on.

Can't someone provide a bus or some other kind of transportation for these boys besides the "A" bus? These boys are unsupervised and the language some of them use is abusive. There are some who do not have respect for others, especially their elders.

Name withheld by request

Officials to look at bus service

The situation as reported by the writer has been, and will continue to be, under observation. Late afternoon bus service from the Bus Terminal to Dueppel is heavily used by Berlin military and family members. Very efficient mass transportation is achieved on most days and current passenger load factors do not justify additional service for general traffic or sport groups.

Proper conduct of young bus patrons is most appropriately a matter of parental and adult patron concern. In this respect, Berlin American High School and Dependent Youth Activities football officials have been contacted and asked to help.

Witnesses to incidents affecting the safe operation of any Army bus are requested to contact the Transportation Motor Pool at 819-3438.

Seminars

"When we learn to relate our requirements without getting into a win-lose contest, we begin to function with more energy for the overall mission," said Goldman.

The chaplain does not suggest that NCO's should not utilize their authority, or that the soldiers he or she supervises should begin to "win." On the contrary, there comes a time to make very clear your requirements without softening the seriousness of your position with friendliness.

He does suggest that many problems in supervision come from simply being unaware of other possible responses to an uncooperative soldier. "It's a little like talking to our own children. As parents, we eventually learn to respond to them as real people with the same basic needs and feelings we have. This does not mean that they gain control — only that our parenting makes more sense to both of us.

The young soldiers are not children, but they need supervision. They also need to learn to be responsible for their own actions. Constant use of authority often gets the job done, but it does not develop self-starters."

The first day-long session began with a taped presentation of several supervisors talking frankly about the hassles of supervision and of young soldiers talking frankly about being supervised.

This begins a round of discussion on ways of starting an effective supervisory relationship in which the mission is accomplished and the soldier is developed.

These discussions lead to several workshops including "Listening Skills," "Crisis Intervention," and "Confronting."

Much of each seminar is spent in learning ways to avoid "I win — you lose" contests and in learning to develop a team attitude with stronger, more confident leadership. As a model for this idea, even the seminar workshops depend upon the participants acting as members of teams.

Goldman said the most exciting part of the seminar are the workshops which help in solving conflicts between soldiers. For instance, two soldiers are already threatening when the NCO arrives. He wants order but feels frustrated when the shouting continues. He resorts to shouting and threatening both of them and the conflict ends only temporarily.

Usually he has the ability to resolve at least some of the conflicts, but doesn't have the confidence.

In these seminars we take a look at some ways of resolving conflict, and when needed, effective ways of utilizing authority."

Goldman admitted, "I get lots of laughs and plenty of 'That'll never work with my people,' and sometimes they have a good point. But, most of the time, we leave with something to think about and even a few ideas to try out to improve our supervision."

Why is a chaplain so involved in seminars on supervision? "If we can help people communicate clearly, with more mutual respect, that will ease tension, and enhance working relationships, then the work of the Gospel will have begun."

Reservations in the seminars may be made by calling 819-3168 or 3181. (DG)

Army restricts travelers from playing airline 'games'

Consumer gamesmanship — The offering of prizes to lucky customers — will always be with us. But, when it comes to official government travel via the nations airlines, the traveler must be aware of restrictions on participating in the point-accumulation games now being run by a number of airlines.

The games in question entitle frequent travelers to various amenities, gifts, and/or free tickets upon reaching certain point plateaus. But, if the winner be a government person under official travel status, he/she must relinquish any prizes of value. This policy is based on rulings by the U. S. Comptroller General, say Department of the Army Transportation officials. Any prize conveyed through this official travel must be turned in to the nearest Transportation Office, which will handle it in accordance with existing regulations. Officials point out that the regulations barring government employees' acceptance of free gifts/gratuities/compensation also prohibit them from accepting non-transferable free tickets from a commercial source.

If a government person does choose to participate in the games, he/she will be reminded that the local Transportation Office is under no obligation to favor that participation through use of a particular airline. Indeed, say officials, any effort by travelers to coerce the Transportation Office in this regard cannot be condoned. (ARNEWS)

AAFES expands its hunt for defective smoke detectors

Munich — AAFES is expanding its hunt for defective smoke detectors which may not properly sound an alarm.

According to an exchange spokesman, the maker of the Chloride Pyrotector says that two more models of potentially defective smoke detectors may have been distributed to AAFES between March 1979 and March 1981 besides model 30-79, announced earlier this month.

Models 30-77 and 30-78 have been added to units which may contain a faulty electronics chip that would prevent an alarm from sounding if smoke were present. Both those models and the 30-79 would have sold at AAFES-Europe for $15.95.

The spokesman said patrons who bought any of the three models should perform this test: Install a fresh battery and depress the test button. If the signal light comes on and the alarm sounds, the unit works properly and no further action is required.

Smoke detectors that do not pass the test should be returned to AAFES for a full refund.

MP's back on water

ON PATROL — The Provost Marshal's Office recently received a new boat for use on its border patrol along the Wannsee. The new craft is nine meters long, seats five people, and has a 250 horsepower engine that can propel the boat to speeds of approximately 70 kilometers per hour. The Military Police also use the boat for water safety and to provide escorts for dignitaries when they're on the Wannsee.

INSCOM helps others through annual picnic

by Sherry Melvin

Field Station, Berlin will hold its 5th annual INSCOM Day Picnic on Andrews compound, starting at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Although the festivities at the INSCOM picnic are not unlike other unit get togethers, the beneficial values differ — it serves as a fund raiser for INSCOMBA.

INSCOMBA or Intelligence Command Benefit Association, started during the Vietnam era when the Intelligence Command was known as the Army Security Agency.

A unit of the ASA, the 303rd Radio Research Battalion, started a fund to commemorate the memory of its comrades lost in Southeast Asia.

The idea spread to agency NCO's who decided to raise money for a command-wide memorial. They felt that it should be a living memorial so INSCOMBA was established to assist families of deceased INSCOM soldiers.

The association assists the next of kin by forwarding an outright grant of $500 to offset immediate financial worries.

Also, each child of that soldier can receive up to $4,000 in tuition assistance for additional education after he or she completes high school.

To contribute to this fund, an INSCOM Day was established here in Berlin and all proceeds go to INSCOMBA.

Pie-eating and baking contests, tug-o-wars and fishing for kids are just a few of the many activities scheduled at this year's INSCOM picnic. Various types of food and drinks will be available.

Dancing to the good sounds of the band "Flesh Dogs" and AFN's disc jockey Rik De Lisle starts at 8 p.m.

THE BIG HAULER — Bremerhaven is the busiest of the 10 Department of Defense shipping points in Europe. (Photo Courtesy EurArmy Magazine)

Shipping your wheels

by J. C. Hixenbaugh

Shipping a vehicle to a new duty station or picking it up at Bremerhaven Terminal is a little like skydiving — you can save yourself a lot of trouble by doing it right the first time.

Although the consequence of arriving at Bremerhaven, West Germany, without the proper documentation isn't so serious as a shot chute, it can be a painful learning experience.

Bremerhaven is by far the busiest of the 10 Department of Defense shipping points in Europe. It handles about 40,000 motor vehicles a year. The information in this article is directed to persons who ship through Bremerhaven. If you are served by one of the other ports, contact your Installation Transportation Office for details.

Arrival in Germany

For the first time in years, you're on foot everywhere you go. You begin to really appreciate your car. Finally, you get a notification card in the mail, that your car, van, truck or motorcycle is waiting at the port for pick-up.

Maybe you've been in Europe a month already, and you haven't heard from the Vehicle Processing Center in Bremerhaven, maybe it's because you neglected to send them a change of address when you got a reassignment after turning in your vehicle. Call Bremerhaven military (2441) 8167 and find out if your auto has arrived and is available for pick-up.

Before pick-up — You, or whomever you choose to pick up your vehicle, must have a valid USAREUR privately owned vehicle driver's license. You can get the license at your community driver's testing center. If you're the owner but you select someone else (such as your spouse) to pick up the vehicle, that person must have two copies of a power of attorney.

The person who picks up the vehicle must have a double white insurance card from an insurance company that shows adequate liability and property damage coverage. The card must be dated within 90 days of vehicle pick-up.

Two AE Forms 1598 (Application for Motor Vehicle Registration and Allied Transactions) must be filled out and signed by your commander, if necessary. If you are E-6 or below, your commander signs item 28.

Also, take to Bremerhaven $5 in cash, check or money order for USAREUR registration fees; one complete set of vehicle keys; and the owner's copy of DD Form 788, which you received when you turned in your vehicle in the States. If the vehicle is newly purchased through AAFES New Car Sales, take along a Customs Clearance Form 2075.

Getting there — German trains serve Bremerhaven from most Department of Defense locations in Germany. Or perhaps you can take the free military duty train between Bremerhaven and Frankfurt. Space available travel is limited, so call Frankfurt military (2311) 5159 or 8147 daily before 3 p.m. as soon as possible. Since the duty train service is part of a commercial train, you can buy a commercial ticket if you don't get on the duty train section. Persons traveling from Berlin can take a duty train direct to Bremerhaven. The overnight train to Bremerhaven arrives at 6:26 a.m. daily. A military bus takes passengers to Carl Schurz Casern.

In some communities, Army Community Service operates a "matchmaker" service for people going to Bremerhaven to drop off or pick up vehicles. Check with ACS if you need a ride or are looking for riders.

Or you can leave the driving to AAFES. It will deliver your car for shipment or pick up your car for local delivery at shipping-receiving sites in Frankfurt, Mannheim, Kaiserslautern, Stuttgart, Fuerth, Munich and Rhein-Main Air Base (air passenger terminal).

Operating hours for pick up — Operating hours are 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday for pick-up. The processing center is open on American and German holidays, except Christmas and New Year's Day. The Vehicle Processing Center is in Building 101 at Carl Schurz Casern. It takes one to two hours to process from start to finish, assuming your vehicle passes inspection.

When you arrive — Go to the Motor Vehicle Registry to begin registration procedures at the Vehicle Processing Center. Then move to the Import Section to get your keys and sign for enough gas to get you to a gas station. Then you find your car in the parking area and carefully examine it for damage and pilferage. Anything you find wrong should be reported to processing center personnel, who will list the claims on the back of DD Form 788. Claims are filed with the owner's local claims office.

After you examine the vehicle and report any damage or pilferage, you start it and drive to the inspection station. Routine repairs can be made at the nearby AAFES Garage. Major repairs or parts are available at area dealers or garages. When the vehicle passes inspection, your license plates and registration are issued at the Motor Vehicle Registry Window.

Now you're on the road! Drive very carefully — conditions and speeds may be different from what you have imagined.

Shipping to the States

Shipping your vehicle to the States is just one part of getting ready to go home, and you want it to be worry-free. It can be.

What you can ship — If you've grown attached to a little foreign job, and you want to take it home with you, check out the facts first. You could save yourself a lot of money.

You should know a family can ship only one vehicle. The only exception is if both husband and wife are service members. You may ship your privately owned vehicle at no cost to you (space required) unless it is a non-allowed foreign-made

Question asked

Why do I have to pay to ship my foreign-made privately owned vehicle if I'm authorized to ship one on my orders?

Motor vehicles assembled in a foreign country or of parts manufactured in the United States and sold by local dealers in a foreign country are considered foreign-made vehicles and are prohibited (unless otherwise USAREUR-approved) for shipment at government expense. (Contact your local transportation office before buying a foreign-made POV.)

I have a motor home; may I ship camping equipment and cooking utensils?

No. DoD Reg. 4500.34-R states that camping equipment and household goods will not be shipped in camping vehicles or motor homes.

My buddy in the unit turned his car in to the same CONUS port as I did, a week after me. How come he got his car two weeks sooner?

Military Sealift Command shipping does not always run directly between the CONUS ports and Bremerhaven. The ship your vehicle went on may have made three or four port calls before coming to Bremerhaven, while the ship your buddy's car went on came directly from CONUS to Bremerhaven.

What regulations can I check to ensure your answers are on the level?

Predominantly, AR 55-71, Chapter II; DoD Regulation 4500.34-R, Chapter 16; and Joint Travel Regulation, Volume I, Chapter 11, for military, and Volume II, Chapter 11 for civilians. Also applicable are the following regulations: USAREUR Reg. 55-355 and DoD Reg. 5030.49R.

Stateside status

Military officials have released telephone numbers which service members may call to check on autos shipped Stateside.

The numbers are for Military Air Traffic Coordinating Units in the States. They can tell you whether your car has arrived in port and provide information on hotels and local transportation and give directions to the port. The numbers are:

Charleston AFB, S. C.: civilian (803) 554-3141 or 3449; Autovon 583-3141 or 3449

JFK International Airport, N. Y.: civilian (212) 995-4188 or 4189; Autovon 232-2104

Los Angeles International Airport, Calif.: civilian (213) 643-1996 or 1997; Autovon 833-1996 or 1997

McChord AFB, Wash.: civilian (206) 984-5664; Autovon 976-5664

Philadelphia International Airport, Pa., c/o McGuire AFB, N. J.: civilian (609) 724-3006; Autovon 440-3006

San Francisco International Airport, Calif.: civilian (415) 873-5798 or 5799; Autovon 859-7111 (San Bruno, Calif.)

vehicle purchased from a foreign dealer and not previously imported into the States. In that case, you may ship the vehicle space-available. This means you'll pay the port handling costs in Bremerhaven and the continental United States, plus one-fourth of the ocean transportation costs. If you ship space required and your vehicle is more than 20 measurement tons, you'll pay the excess costs.

Estimating space available costs — The cost is based on measurement tons (a measurement ton is 40 cubic feet, regardless of weight). Here's the simplest method of computing measurement tons: — Put all dimensions into inches (length, weight and height).

— Multiply length times width times height for number of cubic inches.

— Divide cubic inches by 1,728 to get cubic feet.

— Divide cubic feet by 40 to get measurement tons. Multiply the number of measurement tons in your vehicle by $52.41 to get the approximate cost of shipping in space available. Keep in mind that shipping charges are subject to change.

To give you an example of costs, a VW Rabbit costs about $400-$425 to ship space available, while a Volvo station wagon costs about $600-$620. A Mercedes 280 costs about $575-600.

These estimates are for East Coast delivery. Gulf Coast and West Coast space available rates are somewhat higher. For the West Coast, space available shipment is to either Oakland, Calif., or Seattle, Wash., only. Transit times could be up to six months.

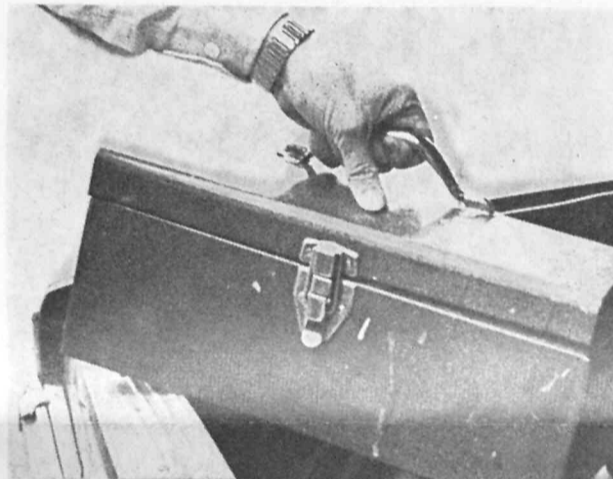

Safety and air pollution standards — Autos made in 1968 and later must meet safety and air pollution requirements in the United States. You can find out if your 1971 or later model auto meets requirements by looking for a manufacturer's plate attached to the door post or in the engine compartment certifying it meets standards. On 1968-70 vehicles, look for a Department of Transportation safety label. If it doesn't have one, it will still meet requirements if it was originally purchased in the States. For 1978 and later motorcycles, look for a manufacturer's plate.

An auto originally equipped with a catalytic converter must have an active catalyst installed or a catalyst accompanying the vehicle to CONUS. If the catalyst has been reinstalled in Europe, present the garage receipt at the Bremerhaven Vehicle Processing Center. The AAFES Garage in Bremerhaven provides some service for these converters, depending on the type of converter in your auto. Call the garage at Bremerhaven, military (2441) 8231 for more information.

Before turn-in — Before you drive to Bremerhaven to turn in your vehicle, be sure you have with you four copies of your PCS or ETS orders, both blue and white copies of your USAREUR registration or proof of ownership in your name and a complete set of car keys to turn in (keep one complete set for yourself). If anyone else turns in your vehicle, make sure the person has a power of attorney from you.

If the vehicle is to be shipped space available or is oversized, you must pay the cost in advance in cash, check, or money order. If your vehicle is oversized and your move is a PCS, you can ask to pay by payroll deduction. You fill out the necessary papers at the terminal, and the deductions begin at your new station. If you are shipping a foreign-made vehicle space required, you have to prove eligibility for that vehicle with a DD Form 788 showing shipment from CONUS to Europe, a prior U.S. registration or title, or a special USAREUR approval.

If you are shipping a vehicle from October through April, make sure you have antifreeze protection to minus 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

Operating hours for turn-in — The processing center is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday, except Christmas and New Year's Day.

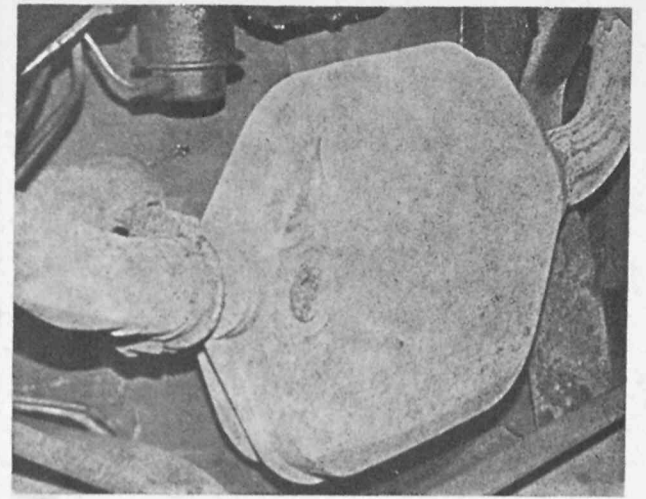

Turning your auto in — Be sure it is clean! The interior, exterior and undercarriage must be clean of debris, soil or vegetation that could harbor undesirable organisms. You may be asked to vacuum the interior. If the exterior and undercarriage are dirty, your vehicle will be accepted for export processing, but shipping may be delayed until the processing center can clean it.

Your vehicle's fuel may be drained before shipment, so deliver it with a minimum amount of fuel.

At the turn-in point, the vehicle will be inspected for damages or scratches. These will be noted on DD Form 788. Accessories will be inventoried and packed. These can include only normal auto tools, baby seat, and small items normally kept in the vehicle, such as cushions. One spare tire and two tires with or without wheels may be shipped.

Military police customs personnel will inspect the vehicle, which must be in a safe operating condition.

In completing processing for export, you normally select the CONUS port that services your next duty station. You can have the vehicle shipped to other military ports if it's cheaper for the Army or if you're willing to pay in advance by cash, check, or money order.

On the East Coast, the military ports are Bayonne, Charleston, Baltimore, and Norfolk. (Space available vehicles cannot be shipped to Baltimore, however.) New Orleans and West Coast ports are available if your next duty station is in these areas. Soldiers leaving the service can send vehicles to the port nearest their home of record or the location where they originally came on active duty.

Shipping time — Vehicles arrive at East Coast ports in 35-45 days. The New Orleans shipment time is 45-50 days, and the West Coast time is 55-65 days. Vehicles should be picked up within 45 days of the postmarked date of your notification card. Be sure to take with you the DD Form 788.

Hitting the road stateside — Many states will recognize — temporarily — your USAREUR license plates, driver's license and registration so you can drive to your new duty station, but some don't. Check with your state. You can have a state license plate sent to the CONUS port and marked "Hold for Named Owner," if your state will issue it without a car inspection.

More information — The Vehicle Processing Center can give you more information about shipping your vehicle home if you call Bremerhaven, military (2441) 8187, or write to: Commander, MTMC Bremerhaven Terminal, ATTN: Vehicle Processing Center, APO 09069. Also, you can get information from your installation transportation office. Each installation transportation office has a copy of the POV Processing Procedures Guide. The guide will answer most of your questions and probably save you the trouble of a call to Bremerhaven.

Families welcome home troops

by Linda Jach

Thanks to the family members and rear detachment of 4th Battalion, the unit's soldiers were given a hearty welcome after returning from their recent training in Wildflecken, West Germany.

"The family members got together during the weekends to make, 'welcome home', banners and posters. Plus, just before the men arrived, we made cookies and other pastries, which the people of the rear detachment helped to distribute through the dayrooms. The rear detachment also helped us hang the banners and posters," explained Caroline Buckles, coordinator of the activities.

"The wives in the battalion really worked hard to make their husbands return a happy one. However, our activities were geared mainly towards welcoming home the single soldiers who live in the barracks. All of us wanted the soldiers to know we appreciate them and care," she continued.

Besides the cookie and poster making, much more was going on for the family members of the troops in the 4th Battalion. One weekend, for instance, they all got together with their children for a trip to Peacock Island.

The officers' wives got together one evening for a "pot luck" dinner.

Also, the first sergeant and platoon sergeants' wives got together for a dessert and coffee night.

This isn't the first year the family members have gotten together either, according to Buckles.

"This year, just like last year, we got a list of names of the families living on the economy. Then called to say, 'hi!' and ask them if they needed anything or if they had some questions that we might be able to answer," Buckles said.

"Perhaps the best result of all the activities we shared was the friendships that arose — the feeling of belonging," said the coordinator. "Not only did the family members get to know one another, they also shared similar experiences and problems. All of them were having a good time and helping one another.

"Each year, more families participate. Hopefully, we can make this a tradition. From comments I've heard from the soldiers, they really enjoyed being welcomed back home," she said.

"I thought it was really nice what the ladies did. When we got back there were posters all through the company welcoming us back and there were cookies in the dayroom. Everyone really appreciated it," commented Sp5 Larry Logan of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion.

Yanks overcome BSC'ers in rugby action

by B. McConnell

Decided late in the last half, the Berlin Yanks Rugby Team won their first match against the Berliner Sport Club's team, 14-12.

Last Sunday at McNair Barracks the Berlin Yanks Rugby team's first game was a 'cliff-hanger!'

With about 30 on-lookers the game started to look as if the Berliner team was going to teach the Yanks the finer points of the game. During the first 40-minute half, the BSC'ers scored two tries (touchdowns), kicked one point after, and scored on a penalty kick.

The only bright spot in the first half for the Yanks was the brilliant try by Rosendo Abrego of Company B, 3rd Battalion, after a pass from Bobby Brown, also of Company B.

The second half was all Yanks, as the BSC team never scored again!

With only five minutes remaining in the contest and trailing by a score of 12-4, the Yanks struck again with the blazing speed of Bobby Walker.

Walker, yet another Company B, 3rd Battalion soldier, managed to turn the defending team. That quickly turned into four more points for the Yanks as he sped down the sideline for the score. "Well, I got my try," Walker was heard to say after the game. With help from the team captain, Chris Rottner, of the Deputy Brigade Commander's Office, Walker made the first of what he hopes will be many tries.

With about one minute, 30 seconds remaining in the match and the ball being hotly contested in the middle of the field, Harry Mohr, the team vice captain, scooped it up and dived across the try line for the four points.

The game's outcome, tie or victory for the Yanks, rested on the shoulders of Al Barese of 3rd Battalion. The two-point, point after attempt, indicated that Barese had a difficult angle to the uprights. But, the kick sailed through for the go-ahead points.

All that remained was for the Yanks to keep the BSC team out of the end zone. They did just that.

The season still has nine games remaining and more players are actively sought, according to team coordinator, Brian McConnell. "There are no players as yet from 2nd, 4th, or Combat Support Battalions," said McConnell. Third Battalion and Field Station, Berlin soldiers make up the majority of the team.

Practices are at McNair Barracks every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 6 p.m. No experience is required — just desire.

Anyone desiring more information should call McConnell at 6188 or Rottner at 3143.

S-T-R-E-T-C-H — The Berlin Yanks Rugby Team win line out. Just one of the ways to start play, done when the ball is put out of bounds. The line out is physically one of the toughest aspects of the sport. The Yanks went on to win their match, on Sunday, 14-12. (Photos by B. McConnell)

IS THERE A BALL IN THERE? — After a Yank player is tackled, the "scrummies" move in with support from the backs to regain the ball and the attack. The Yanks next game will be this Sunday, at 11 a.m., on the Sportsplatz on Forckenbeckstrasse against the Berliner Sport Verband 92 team.

U.S. team dominates ISTAF

by Jim Joerger

The United States Olympic Team dominated the 1981 International Stadium Track and Field (ISTAF) competition finishing first in seven events, second in six events, and third in seven more events.

The U.S. team, led by world-record holders, Renaldo Nehemiah and Edwin Moses, finished first in the 110-meter and 400-meter hurdles, respectively, with other members of the U.S. team taking second and third in both competitions.

The only other team to make a clean sweep of an event was the Federal Republic of Germany taking the top three spots in the Hammer Throw.

Great Britain's Steve Ovett won the ISTAF Mile, finishing four tenths of a second in front of his nearest competitor, Steven Scott of the U.S.

Allan Wells of Great Britain was expected to win both the 100-meter and 200-meter dash but was upset in the 100 meter by Herman Panzo of France. Wells went on to win the 200-meter and finished first in the IAAF-Citizen Golden Sprints with his combined times from the two events.

Other first place finishers for the U.S. were Walter McCoy in the 400-meter; James Robinson, 800-meter; Henry Marsh, 3,000-meter Steeple Chase; Al Feuerbach, Shot Put; Nathaniel Page, High Jump; and Larry Myricks in the Long Jump.

Field Station dines out

by Sherry Melvin

Field Station, Berlin held a "Dining Out" at the Checkpoint Club recently to give the NCOs and their spouses a chance to get together for an evening of enjoyment and to recognize their newly arrived and departing members.

The evening's activities included dinner and an awards ceremony, with British Regimental Sergeant Major John Lambie as guest speaker. During the awards ceremony, farewell plaques were given to CSM Irving Batchelder, the departing Field Station command sergeant major. Barbed-wire certificates were presented to other departing NCOs and their spouses. Among the new members welcomed was CSM Raymond McKnight, Field Station's new top non-commissioned officer.

Following the awards presentations, MSgt. Odell Williams, president of the dining out committee, gave the closing remarks and the guests then enjoyed dancing to the sounds of a local band.

AFN to air Answer Line

Why doesn't the Main Exchange carry this particular brand? I think that the Army hospital should handle the situation this way, so why do they insist on doing it that way?

These are hypothetical questions that generally set the scene for AFN Berlin TV's highly popular "Answer Line."

The "Answer Line" host sets up a dialogue between the viewer and the officials of the various agencies in Berlin, both Army and Air Force.

AFN personnel takes viewers' calls in the studio and passes them to the host, Army specialist Dave Hampton, who poses the questions to his guests.

Hundreds of questions have been answered on or off the air since the program started several years ago. Names of callers and their phone numbers are taken and when the information is not immediately available, the caller is "answered" by phone the next day.

The first program, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. will host the principal of the Berlin American High School, Huston Jack; the principal of the Thomas A. Roberts Elementary School, Boyce Winchester; and Ken Haderman, the principal of the John F. Kennedy School.

The season's second program will deal with the Berlin Area Clubs and Morale Support Activities Division. Guests will be Area Club Officer, Maj. Joe Fitzpatrick, and Chief, MSAD, Al Schofield.

Later in the year, guests will appear from AAFES, the Berlin Commissary and many other agencies serving the Berlin-American Community.

"Answer Line" will be aired every second Thursday and the telephone numbers will be announced during the program.

Brigade needs 'pistol' shooters

The Berlin Brigade is looking for personnel to compete on the Headquarters Staff Pistol Team in the 1981 Allied Weapons Meet Oct. 29 at Bernauerstrasse Range.

The selected six-man team will compete against the British, French and Allied Staff Berlin pistol teams during the meet. All fires will use the standard .45-caliber pistol.

Individuals interested in participating in the competition should submit their name and whether or not they have a weapon to Capt. Michael G. Hulan, G-3 Training, by noon Tuesday.

Those who wish to participate must be able to attend the "shoot off" on Sept. 18, the Weapons Meet Dress Rehearsal on Oct. 27, and attend all scheduled practices.

For more information, call Hulan at 6061 or 6185.

Thrift Shop reopens Tuesday

by Sue Sweeney

Toys, jewelry, clothes, silverware, many household appliances, and even an occasional kitchen sink can sometimes be found at the Thrift Shop.

The Thrift Shop, located on Saargemunder Strasse, next to AFN, will reopen Tuesday, after being closed for the month of August.

Consignments (items sold to the shop), are normally accepted on Mondays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., however, because of the Labor Day holiday, the first day for consignments will be Sept. 8.

The Thrift Shop is open to the public and sales are in DM's. Consignments are only accepted from military ID card holders, and those having British, French, or American passports.

"The Thrift Shop is an excellent place to find bargains," said Marianne Stewart, Thrift Shop chairwoman. "I buy all kinds of things here. I also put some items in for resale on consignment."

"The Thrift Shop seems to have everything," said Anita Shupe Thrift Shop manager. "If I can't find something that I want, I just look the next week or a few weeks later and I usually find it."

"The Thrift Shop benefits the community in two ways," said Stewart. "First we offer a service to the community. We have goods available cheaply. Secondly, all of our profit is poured back into the Berlin community either through scholarships or through welfare grants."

The Thrift Shop has a large variety of items to sell. Most of these will help make your stay in Berlin more pleasant. Furniture, transformers, 220- and 110-volt appliances, an occasional schrank, quilts, books, crystal, and military uniforms are just some of the items sold.

"The Thrift Shop is run by volunteer workers," said Shupe. "It's amazing how much work it takes to make this shop run smoothly. The volunteers we have are excellent workers, but we are always looking for more."

The shop will be open on Monday Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. If you're bargain hunting or just looking for a few cheap items to hold you over until your own household goods arrive, drop by the Thrift Shop and see how they can help.

Germans, Americans enjoy afternoon picnic

by Sue Sweeney

Despite the threat of rain, German and American couples and their children got together for a picnic Saturday at Rose Range.

The picnic, sponsored by the German/American Recreation Sub-committee, was a joint effort between the U.S. Army, Air Force, and the six districts in the American sector.

Ten German couples with their children from each district and partnership units attend the picnic. As the couples arrived, the 298th Army Band played lively music to greet them. After a few opening remarks by Herr Eike Warweg, chairman of the sub-committee, it was time to eat.

Besides the traditional hamburgers and hot dogs, each couple also brought a covered dish to share with others. It gave them a chance to try different foods and exchange recipes. During lunch, a German organ grinder and his monkey entertained the children with many Berlin melodies.

The KONTAKT Scottish Dancers gave several performances and then even taught a few of the guests to dance.

The most popular part of the picnic seemed to be the tug-of-war.

"There was never a contest between the German and Americans," said a community relations spokeswoman. "They were always pulling together, on each end of the rope."

The band stuck up the tune of "Auf Wiedersehen," as the guests trooped back to the buses that were to take them home.

The picnic was a tremendous success and already the sub-committee is discussing the possibility of holding a winter party for Germans and Americans.

PULL, PULL — German and American couples and their children teamed up against each other for a tug-of-war at the German-American picnic

Hospital offers advice on notorious bee stings

by Linda Jach

Many phone calls concerning bee stings have been received by the U.S. Army Hospital, Berlin recently, according to Cpt. Sylvia Pruitt, emergency room nurse.

For this reason, the hospital would like to explain to members of the command what bee stings are and how to treat them if stung.

"Our main worry is if a person, allergic to the poison that a bee injects is stung. Weakness and dizziness with more than a local swelling around the area are just a few of the symptoms associated with an allergic reaction to bee stings," Pruitt explained. "Other symptoms are a difficulty in breathing, possible weezing, and hives."

"If you do have any reactions such as these, of course, you should come into the hospital," said Dr. George B. Sergius of the hospital.

For treating a bee sting, if you're not allergic, there are many home remedies that are very effective, according to Pruitt. "Apply a baking soda paste, or if there's a smoker in the house, try a tobacco paste. Also, mud, calamine lotion, or ice work just as well."

Many substances attract bees, according to Sergius.

Perfume and deodorant are just a few. And, "Insect repellent works well to keep the bees away."
