

3rd Battalion cleans up at Hohenfels MTA

Recently, the Brigade Chemical NCO, SSgt. James Culp, visited the soldiers from Company A, 3rd Battalion who are in Hohenfels for a major training exercise.

The soldiers from Company A received "special" Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical training during the two-day period.

First the soldiers conducted a chemical reconnaissance mission. During the mission they and some of their equipment were contaminated by simulated liquid nerve and blister agents. At the same time the decontamination team set up personnel and equipment decontamination sites for the soldiers. Sgt. Henry Astinwall, Company NBC NCO, was in charge of the decon team.

"Every soldier learned something," said Culp. "The individual soldier, the decontamination teams and even the commanders learned something new about NBC procedure in the field." Culp singled out Astinwall for doing a "super job."

Occupants safe, damage estimate high

Space heater causes Dueppel fire

A fire broke out in a service member's apartment in the Dueppel housing area Monday morning, causing an estimated DM30,000 in damages.

The fire started when an unauthorized and unattended electrical space heater ignited a couch and curtains in the living room. As a result, the living room furniture was destroyed. There was also extensive heat and smoke damage to the walls and ceiling in other rooms and all the apartment furniture. In addition, almost all windows in the four bedroom apartment were broken. Fortunately, no one was injured.

Fire station 19 acted quickly to extinguish the blaze. They were notified at 8:39 a.m., responded at 8:41 a.m., arrived at 8:45 a.m. and had the blaze extinguished by 9:10 a.m.

According to Horst Krueger, assistant fire chief for the U. S. Command, Berlin, the fire was contained within the one apartment because all apartments used by the U. S. Forces here are of a non-combustible design. This means that the fire will not spread from one apartment to another because the apartments are constructed from poured concrete. "Because of this type construction, it is not necessary to have fire alarms in the buildings," said Krueger.

The command, however, does see a need to have smoke detectors in family housing to warn residents about fires. Ken Coats, facilities engineer for the Directorate of Engineering and Housing, said that smoke detectors were being installed in family housing units as they become vacant. If residents want the warning device installed while they occupy the units, they can call 819-6666 and place a work order.

According to Directorate of Engineering and Housing officials, if your apartment is too cold you should call 819-6666 and inform them. They will check your apartment temperatures. If your heating system is not working, an approved electrical radiator-type heater will be issued until the heat is repaired. You should not, however, use an unauthorized space heater.

If a fire should break out in your apartment, you should close all windows and doors, and if the fire is small, you should attempt to put it out while someone else calls the fire department at 819-95.

If the fire is too large for you to put out by yourself, get out of the apartment and wait for the fire department to arrive.

If you are trapped in one of the rooms which is not burning, you should close the door and windows, stay near the window, and call for help.

Krueger stressed, "No matter what size the fire, you should always call the fire department so that officials can insure the fire is out and inspect for damage."

living room furniture and caused extensive smoke and heat damage. The damage estimate was DM30,000.

How does recent military pay raise affect you?

SSgt. Eric Adams, Headquarters Company, Berlin Brigade: "I'll put the money in the bank probably. My wife just got out of the military so this pay raise may help balance out that loss of money."

Senior Airman Rich Melody, 7912 Security Group: "I just got promoted so with this pay raise my pay check will be at least $100 more. It's going to come in handy for the upcoming holiday season."

Sp4 Christina Houck, Company A, Field Station Berlin: "The 14 percent pay raise is fantastic. I'm spending more money cause I know I have it to spend. I'm taking more college courses and going out to dinner more often."

Pvt. 2 Noel Rios, Company F, 40th Armor: "I'm thrilled that we got this pay raise. First I'm going to spend some of the money on military clothing and other items. Then I'm going to spend some of the raise on college courses."

Sp4 Jim Godbold, Company B, Field Station Berlin: "The raise increases my base pay by about $85. I'm going to save some of it and spend some of it on clothing and Christmas gifts."

Capt. John Kolbert, Headquarters Company, Berlin Brigade: "I'm glad that we got a raise. I think that it probably should have been on a graduated scale for officers the same way that it was for enlisted soldiers. I'm going to put it in a savings account and let it collect there."

Pvt. 2 John Newenhouse, Company A, 3rd Battalion: "This pay raise is going to come in handy to help me pay off a lot of bills and have a little bit more money left at the end of each month."

Sue Smith, family member: "The pay raise is not really as great as everyone seems to think. Sure we make more money, but now AAFES has taken over clothing sales, and the price of everything there went up. Plus the price of the new uniforms is very high also."

Mail parcels early, package them right

by Sue Sweeney

It's time to mail your Christmas packages. Now that you have put so much time and energy into selection of the right gift, why not put the same effort into mailing it?

The APO has some valuable mailing tips to help insure that your packages arrive safely and on time.

When you are wrapping your items, be sure to put plenty of packing and cushioning material in the box. It is also a good idea to double-box your items.

After you get your items packed securely in the box, you can take them to the Hi-Lite Recreation Center, the All-American Recreation Center or any of the APO's to get the brown paper, string and paper tape necessary to wrap the box.

Some extra tips for wrapping your package include writing the address on the outside of the box in grease pencil or pen. If the package gets wet, magic marker ink has a tendency to smear.

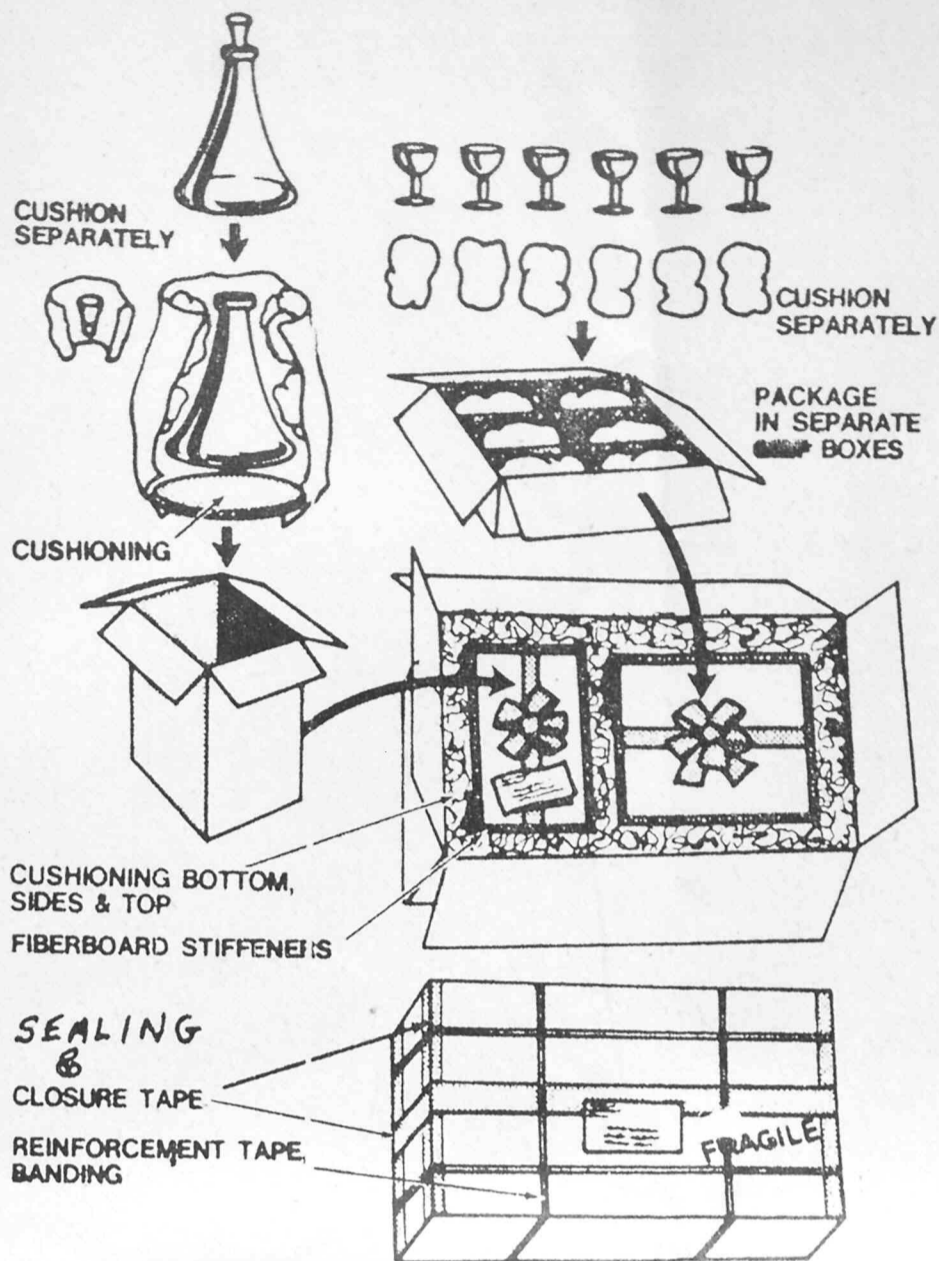

Also include the address inside the package in case the wrapping paper should tear, or the address should become illegible.

If you use string on the outside of your package, cover it with paper tape so that the string will not be used as a handle during transit.

The APO's have some new operating hours for the Christmas season. McNair's APO is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to noon, and from 1 to 4 p.m. The Andrews' APO is open from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1 to 3 p.m.

The APO also has an appointment system. If you have 10 or more parcels, the post office will schedule you a time to mail them.

Finally the recommended mailing deadline dates are: Nov. 19 for Space Available Mail; Nov. 25 for Parcel Airlift, and Dec. 10 for First Class packages. For more information or to make an appointment to mail your parcels, call 6625 or 6020.

With dishonored checks come problems

by R. Gibson

The Berlin military command, Check Control Office of the Human Resources Branch, G-1 Division, reported 192 people on the dishonored check list at the end of October. That means that these people have had their check cashing privileges suspended, and have had their I. D. cards overstamped.

According to SFC Charles R. Murdock, NCOIC of Berlin's check control office, the dishonored check cashing problem is currently on the upswing due to the upcoming holiday season. Many people are doing a lot of buying, and forgetting to enter the checks they cash into their bank books.

The problem seems to be centered on enlisted members in the grades of E-5 and below. Those grades make up about 80 percent of the dishonored check list.

So how does a soldier keep from getting on the bad check list? Keeping a checkbook up to date and correct is never an easy job. If a service member is having difficulty with his checkbook there are several organizations within the command that offer excellent advice to service members and their spouses in the area of checkbook maintenance.

Army Community Service offers a very effective and informative class. Another course is also offered by the people at the check control office. The class offered by the check control office is mandatory for those individuals that are already on the "bad check list."

And what happens to a soldier who consistently writes bad checks? On the first offense, a service member is given a chance to make restitution and pay the amount of the check. A file of the incident is maintained for one year.

For a second offense, that is the second check written a 10-day period, but before one year has passed, the service member will be advised to report to the I. D. card section of Building 1, Clay Headquarters to have his I. D. overstamped. That restricts the service member's check cashing privileges.

If a third offense occurs, the service member may lose his check cashing privileges for up to three years and is liable for punishment under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

If you receive a check from a "friend," make sure that he or she has enough money in the bank to cover the check. If the check bounces you must make restitution on the amount of the check. Murdock warns, "Watch your friends, you already know what your enemies will do for you."

One problem which frequently is the cause of writing a bad check, is lack of communication between husbands and the wives. If you keep separate check books in the same account, make sure you inform your spouse when you write the check. Then he or she can deduct the amount from the bank balance.

If you think you may have mistakenly written a "bad check" give the people at the check control office a call. They are here to help and in the words of B. J. Holland, check coordinator for the command, "We have never turned anyone away." The number to the check control office is 6219 or 6683. If you are interested in attending any of the courses offered give the check control office a call.

DOING HER PART — It's time once again for all of us to put on our work gloves and pull out the rakes and trash bags. Fall clean-up will be from Wednesday through Nov. 18 this year. This is the time for everyone in the command to get their housing areas cleaned up before the snow comes and buries all of the leaves. It's a big job, but if we all pitch in and do our part it won't take very long and we'll all have a nicer, safer place to live. No one is too young or old to help either, as evidenced by Brandy Camps.

some minor difficulties," said Culp. "Having to bring the water to the field on a water trailer and then set up the sanator was a good learning experience for the team."

Lt. Col. Linwood Burney, the battalion commander, and Capt. Daniel French were both able to watch the training and according to Culp, they were impressed with the company's professionalism.

After the soldiers decontaminated themselves they also had to decontaminate equipment to include: a quarter ton truck, weapons, web gear, steel pots and more.

The decontamination team learned how to set up hot showers using a sanator. A sanator is a decontamination apparatus that provides hot water for the showers. Each battalion in Berlin is lucky enough to have one.

"Morale was high and once the soldiers found out that they could perform well even in a field atmosphere, it helped to instill confidence," added Culp. "Overall the exercise was excellent and executed professionally. All the training objectives were met and everyone learned something. That's the important part."

STEELERS — The 42nd Engineer Company, Combat Support Battalion, had a lot on their hands constructing a Bailey Bridge. Members of the company along with the 130th Engineer

Engineers go to Hanau for bridging exercise

by John J. Spinelli

The 42nd Engineer Company, Combat Support Battalion, departed Berlin by train and convoy Oct. 23 to participate in the annual Bridging Exercise (BRIDGEX '81), sponsored by the 130th Engineer Brigade.

The training, located at Campo Pond training area near Hanau, West Germany, provided a unique opportunity for engineer units to train or familiarize on every type of bridging equipment in the Army inventory.

Training was conducted at squad, platoon, and company levels, and tasks ranged from building aluminum footbridges to a Class 60 bridge-crossing of the Main River.

Training concentrated on platoon tasks, and included construction of Light Tactical Rafts, M4T6 rafts, and fixed span and timber bridges.

Various demonstrations were also integrated into the hands-on training. The engineers watched armored vehicles, launch bridges, Mobile Assault Bridges, and Medium Girder Bridge crews in action.

The big "humpers," as the main exercises are called, are the two company tasks: layout and construction of a Bailey Bridge and Class 60 raft. Those exercises truly tested the knowledge and teamwork of the senior NCO's in the unit.

BRIDGEX '81 was a demanding week of training for the soldiers of the 42nd Engineer Company. Each soldier returned today better prepared to meet the bridging missions common to the Army's combat engineers.

Drive safely in winter weather

by R. Gibson

Winter is approaching. With the winter season comes a special method of driving that must be practiced by all the members of the command.

According to Sgt. Joseph F. Bullock, NCOIC, Traffic Accidents Prevention Section, Berlin Provost Marshal's Office, at least 50 percent of last winter's traffic accidents were weather related. That comes to about 40 to 50 accidents per month.

Bullock said that people who have experienced bad weather driving in the states seem to be the worst offenders. "Drivers from the mid-west and the east tend to be less cautious than people from the western states who have little or no winter driving experience."

Extra precautions must be used by all drivers all winter long. Some of the areas around the city that will require even more caution on the part of the driver are congested areas (such as the Truman Plaza shopping center), where there could be a large amount of traffic and pedestrians. Another is school zones, where children may dart out into oncoming traffic. Children know very little about braking distance, or road conditions and how they relate to moving traffic.

Bridges present another problem to winter drivers. Ice forms on the road surface of a bridge much more quickly than on other roadways. One bridge in Berlin that has a history of mishaps, is the Dahlemer Weg bridge near the DEH compound.

It is the responsibility of all drivers to insure that they have the best visibility possible. Make it a point to clear your windows of ice and snow before you move your vehicle. Even the smallest amount of visual impairment can be a dangerous handicap.

The Berlin Provost Marshal's Office would like to offer a few more safety reminders to the members of the command who will be driving this winter. Let's put these safety measures into practice and have a safe and happy winter.

Adjust your speed

The civilian authorities will be posting adjusted speed limit signs at bridges. But it is the responsibility of all drivers to reduce their speed according to weather and road conditions.

Check your tires and brakes

If your tires have only the one millimeter of tread required by law, it's time to start shopping around for some new ones. The better the tread on your tires, the better the chance you have of bringing your vehicle to a stop when you need to.

Brakes are another vital factor when driving in snow or ice. The ability to stop in a short distance can mean the difference between life and death.

Maintain a safe following distance

Consider the normal stopping distance in good weather. Then allow even more space between you and the vehicle in front to insure you have adequate stopping distance in bad weather.

Watch for yellow lights at intersections and crosswalks

German law does not accept weather conditions as an excuse for running a red light. If a single yellow light appears at a crosswalk or intersection apply the brake slowly and carefully and come to a complete stop to await a green light.

Yield the right of way

If you are traveling on a narrow road and you are approached by oncoming traffic, take time to pull as far to the side of the road as is safe. Let the oncoming traffic pass, then proceed with caution. It doesn't pay to force your way.

THIS COULD BE YOU — Many accidents occurred last year due to unsafe driving practices. Don't let

Pets can be pesky; keep 'em controlled

by Linda Jach

I was jogging down the street one day, when a little dog started nipping at my heels. It wasn't too irritating, until the nips became more aggressive.

I couldn't wait for the moment its owner called the little ball of fur, with the teeth mixed in, off. The owner was nowhere around.

In another jogging incident, I just happened to not look where I was going and, before I knew it, I stepped in the wrong place on the sidewalk. "Yuk!"

By regulations, USAREUR Supplement to Army Regulation 40-905 and USCOB Regulation 40-9, pets here must be on a leash or under voice control at all times when outside. Pets, are also prohibited from playgrounds, offices, kasernes, and public service areas, such as the PX, Commissary, and Army and Air Force Exchange Service facilities.

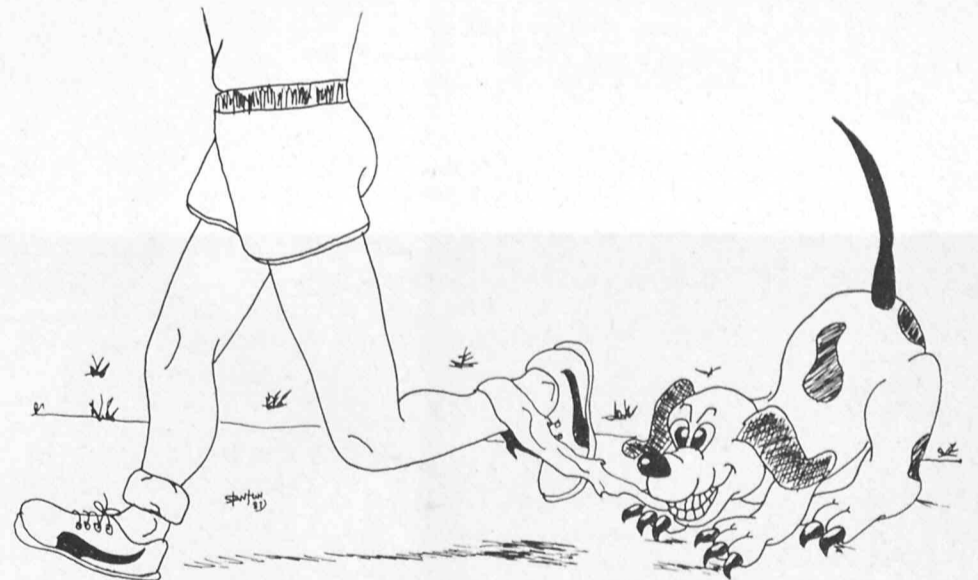

One more thing that pet owners should be reminded of, is that by regulations, they are required to clean up after their pet's "messes."

According to Capt. Marvin K. King, operations officer, Provost Marshal's Office, pet owners are responsible for their pets. "If we see a violation, we will contact the pet owner's area coordinator. If something still hasn't been done, the Military Police will take action," said King.

In the case of a dog bite, the animal will be taken to the Tierheim or a private veterinarian, where it will be given vaccines and go through a five-day quarantine — at your cost, of course.

A pet can be a wonderful playmate for the children and a source of much love. However, if the pet can't be or isn't controlled, the enjoyment might end.

If after reading the regulations, pet owners still have questions on their rights and responsibilities, they may call 819-3470.

New uniform goes on sale in Berlin about mid-November

The new Camouflage Battledress Uniform will go on sale at Berlin's Clothing Sales Store Nov. 15. Soldiers will only be allowed to buy one set at first, until several replacement shipments have arrived.

The battledress trousers will sell for $17.10, the jacket will sell for $16.10 and the cap for $4.55. The battledress uniform has been approved for wear by both male and female soldiers, and at last report, the uni-

Any soldier wishing to pro-rate the purchase of the new uniform, must have a DA Form 3078, with the words "Installation Payment Plan" typed on the bottom by the unit supply NCO.

Halloween: Customs, traditions of the holiday bring back memories, fun for everyone

by Linda Jach

With the coming of Halloween, also come ghosts and goblins, black cats and witches, bobbing for apples, and trick-or-treaters.

For children, it's a time of going door-to-door for bits of candy and for telling ghostly stories.

For adults, it's a time for costume parties and cutting open pumpkins to make eerie Jack-o'-lanterns with the kids.

The traditions and customs surrounding Halloween are many and have been around since man started thinking of forces other than natural.

It isn't exactly known when the carving of pumpkins or other vegetables started; however, experts say the tradition of making lanterns out of pumpkins or potatoes, goes back to the days of the Druids.

The Druids were members of a priesthood in ancient Gaul, Britain, and Ireland, who were said to have studied the natural sciences. Later, during the rise of Christianity, they were thought to be magicians or wizards.

The name Jack-o'-lantern started with a story from the Irish about Jack, a fellow countryman. Jack wasn't a bad fellow. But, he was very lazy and tried to avoid helping his fellowman.

One day, knowing that with his lifestyle, he'd never get to Heaven, he met up with the devil and devised a plan he thought would save his soul and some of the work involved in doing so.

He tricked the devil into going up a tree to get Jack an apple. When the devil was at the top of the tree, Jack made the sign of the Cross on the tree, trapping the devil. Jack then made a deal that when he should die, he would not be allowed to enter the fiery pit below. Of course the devil, having no choice, agreed.

When Jack finally died, because of his ways, he wasn't allowed into Heaven. So, his next stop was the devil's abode. Because of the devil's promise to Jack, he was also turned away there. So, Jack, without a place to go, wandered hopelessly around in the dark.

While he was sitting in the darkness, eating a pumpkin, the devil threw him a hot coal to help light the way out. The coal landed inside the vegetable.

Jack still carries the "lantern," unable to find a place to rest. So, "Jack of the lantern," or "Jack-o'-lantern," was named.

Dressing in gruesome costumes, also goes back to the days of the Druids.

It was believed that on the last day of October, ghosts, spirits and other eerie creatures, roamed the earth looking for mischief or the body of a live person to inhabit.

By wearing masks, or dressing in costumes, a live person could fool the spirits into thinking he was one of their own. Thus, they would not bother him and the person was safe for another year.

Another safeguard against the evil spirits was to please them by putting out scrumptious food and sweet treats for them to eat. Now, the sweet treats go to little "spirits" going house-to-house on Halloween — the trick-or-treaters.

Bobbing for apples has a similar origin as other Halloween traditions. Eating apples was believed to ward off evil spirits. Therefore, people ate plenty of apples on the night of Oct. 31.

Whatever the traditions or customs of celebrating Halloween, all American children and some adults hold the evening as a night filled with scary things.

The Berlin community can make their scary night fun by following a few safety tips from the Provost Marshal's Office.

— Make sure that little trick-or-treaters are wearing bright-colored costumes that can be seen easily in the dark, or, have them carry a flashlight. (Trick or treat hours for the community are 6 to 8 p.m. tomorrow.)

— Parents should inspect candy that their children have brought home.

— Parents might even want to accompany their children on the rounds through the area.

— Also, remind, the kids to follow all safety rules when crossing the street.

— And drivers, please be extra careful and alert.

Let Halloween be fun-filled, but, watch out for the boogie man. He's also out that night.

May help children in school

Parents can join in new reading program

by Linda Jach

Parents can help their children become better readers, thanks to a new program starting in the Berlin community, Monday, according to Capt. Ralph Lauer, chief, G-1 Community Life Branch.

"Parents as Reading Partners," is a program that has been quite successful in the United States," said Lauer. "By spending 15 minutes every day with the child, parents not only foster an interest in the child to read, but it also allows parents to spend a little more time with their children."

The program is very simple, said Lauer. Parents obtain a calendar and a leaflet from either the Army Community Services Office, Thomas A. Roberts Elementary School, or Berlin American High School.

What the monthly calendar means is that the parents are agreeing to an informal contract which states that they will take 15 minutes out of each day to read with or to their child. Parents log the time spent on the calendar.

After the parents complete the calendar, they return it to the office where they got it. A program committee, made up of members of the schools, the Community Life Branch and the Child Advocacy Office, then awards the family a certificate saying that the family has successfully completed the program.

Lauer explained that it's a good program, especially for military members. "Many personnel here in Berlin, work long hours and don't get to spend as much time as they'd like to with their families. By participating in the reading program, parents are able to spend time alone with their children."

For parents who would like to start the program, the Community Life Branch offers some tips.

- Spend at least 15 minutes every day reading with your child.
- Turn off the television set. Its noise can be very distracting.
- With younger children, look at picture books and tell stories.
- As your child begins to read, select books of interest.
- After you read a book, talk about it.
- Take your child to the library as often as possible.
- Let your child see you enjoying a book, magazine or newspaper. Be a reading role model.

- Older students will enjoy reading the newspaper with you and discussing current events.

Reading is one of the most used of all our skills and is a practical necessity of life. Lauer added that a person with good reading skills may also have a better chance at a worthwhile career.

High school student chosen as semifinalist in merit program

A student at Berlin American High School has become somewhat of a celebrity.

Suzanne Wood, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Wood, has been chosen as a semifinalist in the 1982 Merit Scholarship competition. This is an honor BAHS has not been able to claim for a number of years.

Wood, a senior, was selected as a semifinalist from a field of more than one million high school students as a result of their scores on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

She is one of 15,000 semifinalists who will now compete for one of 5,000 college scholarships awarded each year by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

The scholarship winners will be announced in the spring. The results will be based on the students' scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, high school records and extracurricular activities.

Charles Weiland, BAHS senior counselor, said that Wood "is an excellent candidate" for a scholarship. Wood, who has attended BAHS since January 1980, has a 3.67 grade point average (out of a possible 4.0). She is a member of the BAHS National Honor Society and is active in school newspaper and yearbook activities, drama and scouting.

In addition to the excitement the semifinalist selection caused, Wood is also celebrating this week her acceptance to attend the University of Georgia next fall.

TCA slips past Bears in basketball opener

by Bob Dewey

T. J. Jones hit for 26 points Tuesday night to lead the TCA basketball team to a 59-52 victory over the Berlin Brigade Bears.

The game was a tune-up for the Bears, as they face a rugged team from Stuttgart's Patch Barracks tomorrow and Sunday.

In Tuesday's game, turnovers by both teams were a key factor, and at the half, the Bears held a slim lead, 30-28.

TCA outgunned the Bears, 31-22, in the second half as both teams worked on their 'offensive' coordination.

Top scorers for the Bears were Ronald White with 12 points and Donald Robinson with 11. Edward Moss and Bruce Green added 10 and eight points, respectively. Moss and Robinson pulled in six rebounds a piece in the error-plagued contest.

For TCA, Joe Watts also hit double figures with 15 points while Ronald Watt added 10. Jones grabbed eight rebounds and Watt hit the boards for seven.

In this weekend's action, the Bears will take the court against Patch at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, and at 2:30 p.m., Sunday.

The Berlin women's team, which had a good season last year and is expected to be better this year, will play at 6 p.m. tomorrow, and at 1 p.m. Sunday.

4th Battalion, Zehlendorf play friendly soccer game

by John Cosgrove

In a continuing effort to promote favorable relations between the citizens of Zehlendorf and its "partner battalion," the 4th Battalion, a friendship soccer game was played Saturday.

The game was originally projected to match the skills of a team of Zehlendorf City council members, BVG employees, and firemen and policemen against those of participating 4th Battalion officers.

It was decided on the day of the game to combine all participants and create two German-American teams. "The purpose behind this," explained 1st Lt. Kevin Sheehan, 4th Battalion adjutant, "was to eliminate a competitive atmosphere. The primary purpose behind the game was to have fun."

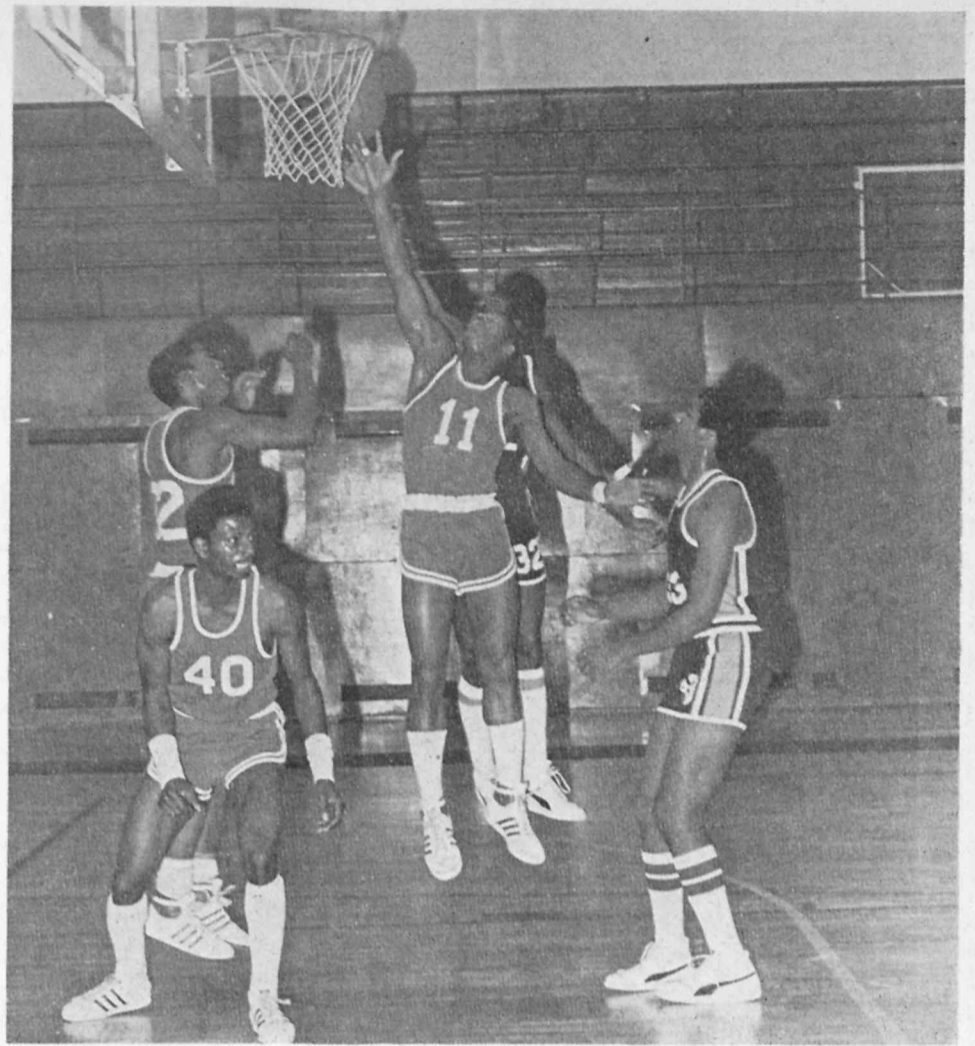

The game was coordinated by 4th Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Harvey I. Buckles and the Mayor of Zehlendorf, Juergen Klemann. Upon the battalion's arrival at the Clubhouse Hertha, a brief welcome speech was delivered by Klemann. The game was then played on a field of astroturf, adjacent to the clubhouse.

The teams were suited in blue uniforms and white uniforms. The white team emerged victorious at the end of the game by a score of 3-1. The game lasted about 75 minutes and all players and spectators had an enjoyable afternoon.

Capt. John M. Stevenson, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, and the only American player to score a goal, was designated as the recipient of a commemorative china plate presented to the battalion by the Mayor.

In return, Buckles presented a battalion plaque to the goal keeper of the winning team to accept for all of the Zehlendorf citizens in attendance.

Berlin DYA wins soccer title

Berlin's DYA "C" level soccer team traveled to Heidelberg on Saturday and walked away victorious in a round robin soccer tournament.

Enroute to the tourney championship, they defeated Wertheim, 6-0, Wuerzburg, 6-1, and Heidelberg-Renschen, 3-1.

On Sunday, two additional non-tournament games were played. Berlin defeated the Heidelberg All-Star team, 5-0, but lost to Patch-Stuttgart in a rainstorm, 4-1.

Offensive standouts throughout the weekend included Ray Colitt, Curtis Barnes, and Craig Mahek. Midfielders Nick Klakow, Brad Smith, and Doug Magruder demonstrated good ball control and provided numerous scoring opportunities for the forward line.

Defensively, Kevin Kelley, Toby Trautner, Matt Bachofen and John Chumley assisted goalie Marc Ickstadt in frustrating the opponents offensive efforts.

Coach Barry Mahek stated he was pleased with the team's performance and that Berlin is definitely a threat to win the USAREUR "C" level soccer championship in Munich next weekend.

AN EDUCATING ART — Members of the Berlin American Community met on Monday and Tuesday to share in the experiences of Marjory Zoet Bankson, the guest speaker. Bankson, a potter since 1966, had the audience playing with clay to teach them that men and women were created in God's image and to be creators themselves. (Photo by James Barnhart)

Forming clay tops Fall Rally

by Ruth Baja Williams

The Protestant Women of the Chapel Fall Rally held on Monday and Tuesday of this week at ACC left those attending with hands white with clay and hearts and minds filled with an unusual spiritual experience.

Marjory Zoet Bankson, PWOC's special guest was not a speaker in the usual sense of the word. Rather than addressing the audience Bankson, who is a potter, led the group of about 60 in an experience of playing with clay.

Each member of the audience was handed a quarter pound of clay which he or she formed at will, while Bankson drew parallels of God's work of forming human lives and personalities.

Bankson, who currently lives in Stuttgart, began potting in 1966 when her husband, Lt. Col. Peter H. Bankson, was in Vietnam. She said that men and women are created in God's image to be themselves creators. The process of creation has not finished but goes on.

Brig. Gen. John E. Rogers, community commander, opened the Monday evening program with prayer.

Both days encompassed a time when each person had a chance to form a piece of clay and become acquainted with the nature of clay.

Described as a "teacher and explorer in spiritual growth," Bankson said, "Creation is a dialog between the Creator and me. A creator is someone who is in dialog with the material. Each of us is called to be creative in his or her own way."

ACC gets new education director

by Ruth Baja Williams

Facing the challenges of eight vital areas in the American Community's Chapel program is Berlin's new Director of Religious Education, Mona Mord-Jakobus.

As Berlin's new Director of Religious Education, she will be responsible for the Protestant Sunday School, the Catholic CCD, the Protestant and Catholic women's and youth groups, administration, confirmation, and the religious book store.

"I've been in Berlin for such a short time that I'm still overwhelmed," Mord-Jakobus said. "This will be a Christian Education Director's job with a lot of differences. I'm looking forward to the challenge and the opportunity to test my skills."

"What I'd like to do is make available a variety of programs which will meet the needs of the community," said Mord-Jakobus.

The Berlin Observer is still looking for a color photograph for the front cover of the 1981 Christmas issue.

Thus far, I have received exactly "none" in the way of response to our contest, and the deadline for entry is Nov. 6.

Now, I know that out there, somewhere, some camera buff will save me the trouble of plastering the newspaper with assorted pictures of my six-year-old son.

Not that he doesn't warrant it you understand, it just wouldn't look right for the editor to "keep it in the family" so to speak.

There are several requirements for entering your picture. It must be a photograph or color negative, not a slide. We just don't have the facilities to produce color photos from slides. If you submit a photograph, it must be no smaller than 8x10 inches, and a Berlin Christmas scene is preferred, but not required.

To submit your photo, bring it to the Berlin Observer office, Room 1111, Building 2, Clay Headquarters, or call 6122 for more information.

The photo selected will become the property of the Observer. All entries not published will be returned to the submitters.

If you find that you just don't have the time, or photo, to enter this year's contest, remember that next year, we'll also need photos. So, during this Christmas season, take lots of pictures and keep us in mind for next year.
