

School of Soldier to help not hurt

by John Cosgrove

"It's easier to hurt a soldier than to help one, but I'm here to help," said CSM James E. Clark, 4th Battalion's CSM.

Clark recently introduced the School of the Soldier program to the 4th Battalion to help improve the motivation, discipline, and attitudes of the soldiers within the battalion. The School of the Soldier is not a new concept in the Army, but it has never been established within the Brigade.

The purpose behind the school is to improve the state of military courtesy, personal appearance, discipline, motivation and attitudes of soldiers, who are having problems.

Attendance in the school does not preclude company commanders from penalizing under the UCMJ for violations of the code. It was created to furnish additional training to soldiers who have demonstrated a need for such training and not to punish them.

"We hope to eliminate two for every three incidents before they occur," noted Clark, "but even if we can only save one soldier of three, the program will be a success. It is the desire of the commander and myself to reduce the amount of non-judicial punishment within the 4th Battalion and to use to Article 15's as a last resort," he added.

The program is divided into three phases. Soldiers will be assigned to the program depending upon the amount of training needed.

While in the school, soldiers will be required to pass in-ranks inspections, make TA-50 layouts, perform in drill and ceremonies and physical training, and attend classroom instruction.

Each company will be tasked to provide instructors on Saturdays and Sundays with classes running from 9 a.m. until approximately 4:30 p.m.

Each soldier attending the class will be accompanied by his squad leader or a first-line supervisor. This NCO will not be considered a student of the school but will be participating as an assistant instructor during the various training activities.

His attendance will also increase his knowledge of the standards required, and hopefully he will insure that these standards are maintained by his subordinates.

"Motivation, discipline, and attitudes are the qualities we'll be attempting to promote in every soldier," Clark summed up.

Judged best in Europe

Mace's 'Unity Day' named spot of year

by Mark White

AFN Berlin's Senior Airman Gage Mace III captured first place in a European wide contest for public service announcements. Mace's "Unity Day" entry was judged "Spot of the Year for 1981" competing against competition from AFN affiliates throughout Europe.

Mace, who hosts a popular afternoon radio show from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on AFN Berlin capitalized on his exceptional talent for voice characterizations to garner first prize in the contest. Utilizing a fine impression of actor Jimmy Stewart, Mace invited listeners to participate in the Berlin Military Community's outdoor observance of "Unity Day."

The D.A. Certificate of Achievement award concluded "this is an impressive example of the mastery of all phases of radio production which results in heightened effectiveness of all of his spots, thereby benefiting the AFN Berlin listening audience."

When asked about producing the top radio spot of the year on the AFN network, Mace said "It was a crash project with a two hour deadline and I must have taped it over 15 times before I had it right".

Mace feels the real "hook" of the spot was his impression of Jimmy Stewart mixed with the Hollies recording of "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother." He's been doing impressions since he was 10 years old when his grandmother would jokingly ask him to perform for his supper.

Mace uses his unique talents as an impressionist daily on his afternoon show on AFN Berlin.

Stewart, Bogart and Hitchcock were his first impressions. Then he moved on to more big timers like Peter (Columbo) Falk, western veteran Walter Brennan, John and Ted Kennedy and Rod Serling.

Mace has a varied civilian background working at a Hollywood catering group, "Moveable Feast," serving such famous celebrities on filming locations as Orson Welles, Jose Felliciano, Chevy Chase and the cast of TV's "One Day At A Time."

The Navy enjoyed Mace's talents for several years when he was assigned as DJ and newscaster with the Far East Network in Tokyo from 1973 to 1977.

Leaving the Navy, Mace returned to Hollywood chauffeuring rock stars Neil Young and Don Henley of "The Eagles" to various concerts in a big, black limousine. He also drove for Robin Williams of "Mork and Mindy" fame.

In 1980 he enlisted in the Air Force for AFN Berlin and before he knew it was spinning discs on the noon show. Mace did the morning show for what seemed "an eternity" and is currently working the late afternoon "drive time" DJ show on AFN Berlin AM "The Bear."

Mace "fell in love with Berlin" and plans to extend as long as he can. He enjoys drawing people's profiles at pubs downtown and at the German-American Volksfest. Visiting different sections of Berlin is another one of his weekend enjoyments.

He is really looking forward to interviewing one of his idols, Jimmy Stewart, who will be visiting Berlin to be honored during the Berlin Film Festival. Mace promises to do "his best Jimmy Stewart" while interviewing the famous actor.

Bus drivers called 'nice people'

Dear Editor:

I'm writing this letter to say thanks and keep up the good work to some very nice people.

The men, who drive the military buses are always making those small extra efforts that count.

Several men and women, who have problems walking, ride the B-bus. The drivers always take the time to wait for them patiently. And, the drivers usually wait for the passengers to find a seat before starting.

Recently on the A Route to Dueppel, the side storage door on the bottom of the bus popped open, and the contents spilled out. The driver got off the bus to help the passengers pick up the items.

On Andrews, at the hospital and McNair the drivers often wait for soldiers running to the buses.

I'm sure that this all goes beyond normal responsibility and expresses their dedication and politeness.

Grateful bus riders

ACS volunteers merit praise for services

Letter to Editor

Of all the supportive agencies the Army has, one of the most helpful and probably the least recognized is the Army Community Service (ACS) program. It has been really surprising how many times during my nine years of service, I've talked with someone who did not know what ACS was for. Since being in Berlin, I've been told by two active duty Army members that they would not borrow anything from ACS because it was for the "needy". Is it really possible for a military member to have so little knowledge of something so important?

I have utilized ACS several times before and after a PCS move (In fact, every PCS move) while our personal belongings were in storage. I have always turned back in, more than I have borrowed. You'd be surprised at what ACS can use that you were going to throw away simply because its not needed any longer. I would like to see more about the ACS programs and more information for the soldiers. Not only to inform everyone, but to give praise to the ACS workers, especially the volunteers. The wives of active duty personnel donate a lot of time and in return receive a "you do a good job," letter, a pin, or a plaque denoting the volunteers hours served. Why not give them the recognition they deserve?

(Editors note: I think the above letter expresses very well the feelings of many people. ACS, here is a pat on the back just for all of the ACS staff and volunteers.)

Soldiers convicted in January courts martial

During January there were ten court-martial cases, resulting in two acquittals and eight convictions. The convictions are as follows:

Pvt. 1 Craig W. Hood, Company A, 4th Battalion, was convicted by a Special Court-Martial on Jan. 4 of disrespect towards an NCO, altering a US Government check, and AWOL. Hood was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for two months, forfeiture of $367 pay per month for two months, and to be discharged with a Bad Conduct Discharge.

PFC Philip D. Reed, Company B, 2nd Battalion, was convicted by a Special Court-Martial on Jan. 25 for disobeying an order of an NCO, and assault on an NCO. ## Notes from the MP desk

Pedestrians have right-of-way

All motor vehicle operators should be aware that, under German law, pedestrians who are on zebra-stiped pedestrian crosswalks or who indicate their intention to enter such crosswalks have the right-of-way. Drivers travelling on Hüttenweg should be especially alert for children at the crosswalks in front of Thomas A. Roberts School, and be prepared to stop for all pedestrians.

Using sports center — lock up valuables

Personnel using sports centers and swimming pools should exercise particular care when securing valuables in the lockers provided. Use good quality locks, such as case hardened or tempered steel locks, to secure your property. It is recommended that ration cards, money, and high value items, such as watches, rings, purses, and wallets be left at home while using sports facilities.

Engineers aid Infantry in ARTEP

by Martin Tillman

During the first week in February, the men of the 1st Platoon, 42nd Engineer Company got a chance to prove their combat engineering skills to their fellow soldiers in 2nd Battalion.

Although, most eyes were focused on the 2nd Battalion's tactical operations during their MOUT ARTEP, the engineers played a key role in support of numerous combat operations. Their primary mission was to increase the combat effectiveness of the infantry units they support. During the MOUT ARTEP this was done by emplacing obstacles, breaching enemy defenses, and planning perimeter defenses.

The MOUT ARTEP support by the engineers began with its first squad in direct support of Company A as they conducted an airmobile assault of an enemy stronghold in Doughboy City. Wearing the "MILES" training equipment, the squad moved in with their Infantry counterparts.

"It was really great! I thought bullets were actually flying as we cleared a lane through the minefield we hit," said Sgt. Glenn Thomas.

Each of the combat engineer squads of the 1st Platoon had opportunities to work with Infantry companies during the course of the ARTEP. Once inside the city, the soldiers found themselves performing many combat tasks. "We assisted in the clearing of several buildings, emplaced and removed obstacles, and provided advice to leaders on defense of unit areas," noted SSgt. Gary A. Smith, 3rd squad leader.

The support provided by the engineers during the MOUT ARTEP has proved beneficial to all. Both 2nd Battalion and 42nd Engineer soldiers now better understand the missions each must perform in urban combat. The experience was summed up by SSgt. Saipan Teo, "It's great working with the Infantry; we can see just how it'll work in combat."

Wins supply of quarter

Sergeant doesn't let 'headaches' stand in way

SUPPLY SERGEANT'S HEADACHE—Sgt. James Fuller, Company C, 2nd Battalion shifts the absentee baggage stored in his supply room. This was just one of the areas that was inspected during the Brigade Supply of the Quarter competition. (Photo by Sue Sweeney)

by Sue Sweeney

Behind every good supply room, there's a good supply sergeant. Company C, 2nd Battalion's supply room was recently awarded the Supply of the Quarter Award.

"It took many long hours and a lot of dedication to keep this supply room squared away," said Sgt. James Fuller, company supply sergeant. "My clerk, PFC Tyrone Saunders helped me, and contributes much time and effort to this supply room."

Fuller attributes the win to the fact that everything was in order. "SSgt. Kinsley Haliburton, the inspector, checked my hand receipts, my clothing records, the cleanliness of my shop and my laundry receipts," said Fuller.

"After he had checked all those, I thought I had it made," said Fuller. "Then he wanted to see my absentee baggage."

Absentee baggage is the personal gear and TA-50 of every soldier who is on leave, TDY or even Absent without Leave. Fuller calls absentee baggage "a supply sergeant's headache."

"My absentee baggage and records were in tip-top shape," smiled Fuller. "I don't want to brag, but I do know my job and what's expected of me."

When asked about future plans, Fuller says he plans to maintain his supply room at the same standard and win the award again. He was scheduled to leave Berlin this September but has submitted paperwork to extend his time here.

Fuller works in the supply room about 10 hours a day. During his free time, he enjoys backgammon, electric football, volleyball or just relaxing with his wife, Phyllis, and their two sons.

RTO: Soldiers, civilians, services are always right on track

by R. Gibson

Moving soldiers to and from any of the Major Training Areas (MTA)s is no simple task, and that is only one of the missions for the soldiers and civilians at the Rail Transportation Office (RTO). Capt. Jesse

ALL SECURE — Sp4 Bruce Nicoll makes a pre-boarding security check of the Frankfurt-bound duty train. It is the responsibility of each of the duty train crews to assure each passenger a safe and comfortable trip into West Germany. (Photo by R. Gibson)

O. Armstrong, rail transportation officer, heads up the section that extends beyond the RTO at Lichterfelde West, to include offices at Clay Headquarters Compound, Tegel airport, Frankfurt, Bremerhaven and Helmstedt.

Armstrong controls a staff of about 60 service members and local national employees who fulfill a variety of missions ranging from shipping and receiving household goods, to commissary freight deliveries and, of course, the Berlin duty trains.

The duty trains, which depart daily for Frankfurt and Bremerhaven via Helmstedt, are each staffed by a train commander, a train conductor, a radio operator, an interpreter and two military policemen. It is the responsibility of each train crew to insure that the passengers have a safe and reasonably comfortable ride to West Germany.

SFC Walter Roach, senior train conductor, and 1st Lt. Diane Crum, senior train commander and the other conductors and commanders are responsible for processing the paperwork of the train's passengers at the Potsdam and Marienborn checkpoints.

On the Berlin side of the tracks, SFC Michael Rose and his staff keep the household goods of Berlin's soldiers coming and going. Rose also provides assistance to service members who receive damaged household goods or hold baggage from the States.

Rose advises, "When service members first arrive in Berlin, or as soon as they receive orders to depart Berlin, they should call the household goods office at 819-6994 or 819-6921 and explain the situation.

For arrivals, the service members must come into the office at Lichterfelde West to confirm that they are expecting a household goods shipment. They then leave a phone number where they can be reached when the shipment arrives." Rose added, "The most important thing then is to be patient."

After service members receive household goods they "must" call the household goods section within 10 days to report any lost or damaged articles.

For service members departing Berlin, as soon as they receive orders they must bring eight copies of the order into the office. The service member will then be briefed on the process of shipping household goods, fill out an inventory form and set a date for pick-up of the shipment. The service member will then be given a booklet called "It's your move." Rose suggests the service member take the time to read the booklet and refer any questions back to the household goods office.

Armstrong advises that, if a service or family member is planning a trip on the duty train, they should make their reservations early. And when completing the paperwork needed, use the name that appears on their military ID card, "exactly as it is written there." (Remember that if you decide not to travel the duty train cancel your reservations as soon as possible. "Don't be a no show!") The people at the RTO further suggest that a service member make return reservation upon arrival at either Bremerhaven or Frankfurt.

Myths contribute to problem

Ideas about dental care may cause harm

by A. J. Korzen

There are several misconceptions about dental health that are causing dentists concern today, and also may be causing unnecessary harm to dental patients, both children and adults.

Putting a child to bed with a bottle, an occurrence that seems harmless enough, invokes a situation that all too frequently happens to young dental patients, known as "Baby Bottle Caries." This is widespread cavities of the teeth, resulting from the baby's bedtime bottle containing milk, juice, or some sugar containing liquid. As the child sleeps, the liquid remains in his mouth, and the harmful carbohydrates attack the soft enamel of the baby teeth.

"If a bottle must be used," Dr. Richard Sienkiewicz, who works at the Andrews Dental Clinic, says "It should be filled only with water. It's one of those cases where the parent just has to intercede very strongly, and not give the child exactly what they want," he said, "Give them what will ultimately be better for them."

A common belief that a toothache can be cured by placing an aspirin on the tooth is one of the misconceptions. Sienkiewicz refers to as "dental myths." He said, "When a patient comes in, and has done this, they don't even have to tell me because I can see the mass of burned gum tissue."

The active ingredient in aspirin, salicylic acid, causes this burning of the tissue, and may also permanently damage the tooth's nerve. Sienkiewicz adds, "Placing an aspirin on your tooth to cure a toothache makes about as much sense as placing it on your head to relieve a headache!"

Another dental myth is that it's normal for your teeth to fall out as you grow older. But, this is definitely not so. A person's natural set of teeth is designed to last a lifetime. The key to this is a combination of good, thorough home care, and the professional care of a dentist.

"One thing people never really think about is that dentistry is a relatively new profession," says Sienkiewicz. "Everyday we're making vast technological advances — better equipment and better methods," he continues. "We're really on the verge of virtually pain-free treatment."

And we'll all be glad to see the day when we can say our dread of that prospectively painful visit to the dentist is definitely a misconception.

Companies shoot for brigade win

by Al Garcia

The 1982, Company level Berlin Brigade basketball championship turned out to be exactly what everyone expected — a hair raising affair. A total of nine out of 19 games were decided by four points or less. This was a good indication of just how close the competition was.

It was one upset after another with Signal Support Company and Headquarters and Headquarters Company Berlin Brigade providing the biggest dents. Company A, Field Station Berlin, which took third place in the Christmas tournament and was expected to make a run for the title, was upset and eliminated by Signal Support, losing by a score of 52-45.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion, last years champions also fell victim to Signal Support, losing by 51-45. This victory, coupled with the Headquarters Company, Berlin Brigade's win over Company A, 3rd Battalion set up the final in the losers bracket.

Both teams, playing their second game of the day, provided the only over-time game of the tournament. With four seconds left on the clock, Richard Hadnott of Headquarters Company sank a 20-foot jump shot to send the game into over-time. The momentum, clearly in Headquarters Company's favor, turned down Signal Support Company by a score of 80-77.

While the losers' bracket was providing the spectators with exciting games, it was the action in the winners' bracket that provided the most excitement.

The final in the winners' bracket was between Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion and Company C, 2nd Battalion. The game seemed to be a run-away for Company C, which had built a 20-point lead with less than 10 minutes left.

With early substitutions on Company C's part, Headquarters Company rallied behind James Knight, William Jones, and Billy Cook to close the gap to two points. With one second left James Knight missed a tip-in from a missed free-throw which ended Headquarters' bid to send the game into over-time. The final score was Company C over Headquarters Company, 54-52.

Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion then eliminated Headquarters Company, Berlin Brigade in a close game which had the Brigade Headquarters Company playing for the third time in one day.

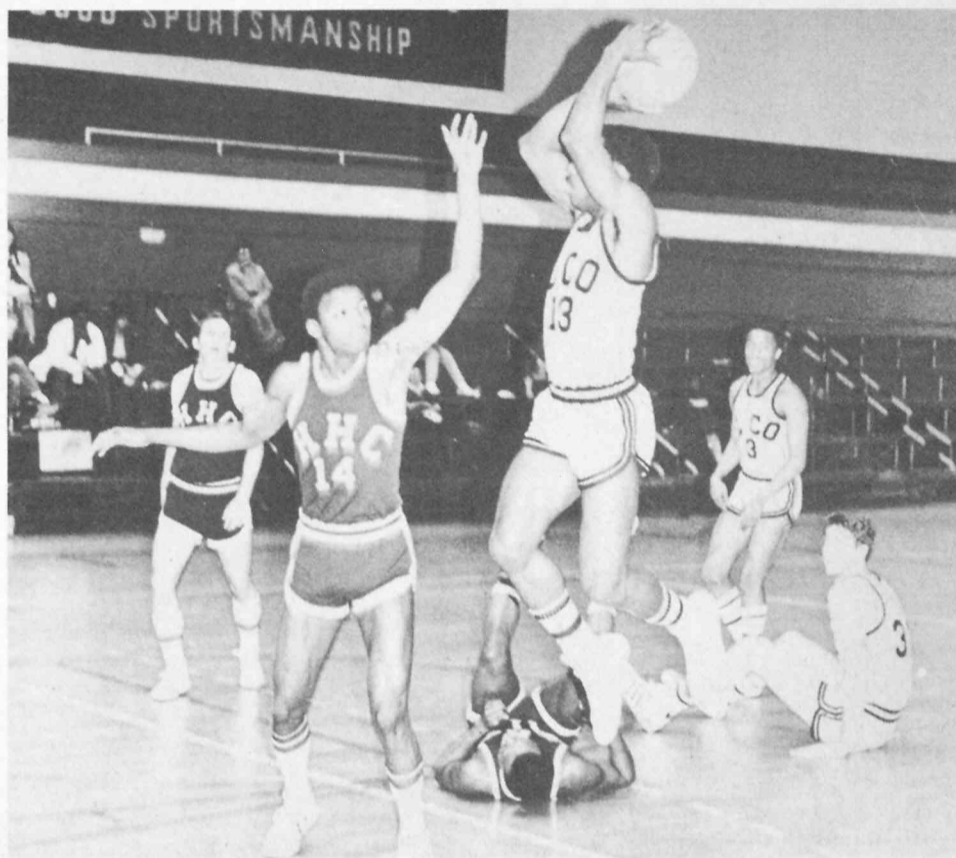

The victory then set up an all 2nd Battalion final. Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion won both games on Monday by scores of 53-48 and 61-60 to earn the championship.

They were led in these two games by Jones with 12 and 22 points, Knight with eight and 10 points and over 10 rebounds per game, and the outside shooting of Cook, who had 16 and 14 points in the final two games.

Company C, 2nd Battalion, which had the larger team, out rebounded their opponents but hit a cold shooting streak in the final game. Company C was led by Tyrone Saunders with 19 and 21 points and Willie Upshaw with ten and 11 points and over ten rebounds per game.

Berlin Bears tangle with Hanau Panthers

by Howard Makynen Jr.

This past weekend the Berlin American High School Basketball team travelled to the home of the Hanau Panthers.

The Varsity women won their first conference game of the year. Beating Hanau 46-36 behind Trisha Lindsey's career high 31 points and 21 rebounds. On Saturday, the women won again 35-31. Once again behind Lindsey's 15 points and 15 rebounds. Also scoring for the Bears was Tracey Turner with 13 and 14 points. The women improved their conference record to two wins and six losses.

In mens' action the Bears were not so fortunate. After coming back from a 14 point half-time deficit to close the score to 52-51 with five seconds left. Kevin Buckles shot a 25 footer with two seconds left but it bounced off the rim Ron Watt grabbed the rebound and put it back in at the buzzer but the referee ruled that time ran out. Star Wright was Berlin's high scorer with 16 points.

On Saturday it was a different story. Led by Wright's game high 16 points, Berlin came back from a large deficit. The key to the game was, with 20 seconds left and Berlin behind 51 to 52, Russell Walton went to the foul line to shoot a one and one. He converted both free throws and Berlin took the lead. Watt made the final basket to seal the victory, as Berlin went on to win 55-52. The mens' Varsity improved their record to 4-4 in conference play.

In Junior Varsity action the girls chalked up two more wins to their record as they downed Hanau 13-10 on Friday, and 24-5 on Saturday. Cheryl Flack was high scorer both days with six and 17 points respectively.

The Junior Varsity boys had to settle for a split. On Friday, the Junior Varsity was sparked by Tyrene World's eight points as he came off the bench late in the first half. The Junior Varsity went on to win 33-29.

On Saturday, however, luck was not on Berlin's side as the Bears missed over a dozen lay-ups, and 28-22. The Junior Varsity's conference record fell to 6-2, but they still remain in first place.

BAHS wrestles

The Berlin American High School wrestling team traveled to Karlsruhe last weekend for a triangular meet, against Karlsruhe and Bitburg.

Berlin lost to Bitburg 69-0 but bounced back to beat Karlsruhe 60-10. Jim Lambert, Motohari Cato and co-captain Erik Flint each had pins in their respective classes.

The next home meet will be tomorrow at the BAHS gym against Wuerzburg and Heidelberg.

Men's tournament

On Saturday and Sunday the Men's Bowling Association will sponsor a bowling tournament. The action begins each day at 1 p.m.

Berlin boxing

The Berlin Brigade Boxing team travels to Hanau for a match tomorrow. Berlin will host the USAREUR boxing Championships in April.

Turkey shoot

The Association of the United States Army will hold a Turkey Shoot on Feb. 28 at Rose Range. The shoot will be from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Cost to participate in the shoot will be $2 per round fired.

Weapons will be provided and refreshments will be free. There is no need for advance registration, participants only need to show-up at the range on.

Berlin scouts, leaders earn awards

by Hank Whitney

Several Berlin Boy Scout and Cub Scout leaders and units received special recognition at the annual awards dinner on Jan. 30. Travelling to Berlin to participate were Brig. Gen. George K. Withers Jr., North Star District commissioner; Walter A. Steffen, District Executive; and Bob Zadina, Transatlantic Council Executive. In addition, several scout officials from England, France, Italy, Spain, and Belgium travelled here to take part in the festivities.

With Dennis Carlson, assistant district commissioner for Berlin presiding, Withers presented the following awards:

Newcomer of the Year	Joel Moody, Troop 152
Cubmaster of the Year	Rod Williams, Pack 418
Den Leader of the Year	Thelma Beavins, Pack 153
Den Leader Coach of the Year	Darlene Merritt, Pack 23

Troop 23

Besides these awards, Shirley Carlson and Bob Ellis were presented their Wood Badge beads for completion of a special scouting experience last summer. Dennis Carlson was singled out for his outstanding support to scout units in the rest of Europe. Hundreds of boys and leaders are able to come to Berlin each year and earn the prized "Outpost of Freedom" award because he is willing to host them. AFN Berlin and the Transportation Movements Branch were cited for their help in publicizing scout activities and providing a means for scouts to travel to and from the divided city.

Many Berlin Scouters will travel to Frankfurt March 13 for the North Star District recognition dinner. The Berlin winners will compete against over sixty other units for district honors.

If your child is interested in getting into scouting, as a Cub Scout (ages 8—11 or age 7 and finished second grade), Boy Scout (11 or older) or if you would like to be an adult leader (18 or over), call Dennis Carlson at 811-8137.

Officials continue search for new Army boot

Army Research and Development officials say the search for a new Army combat boot is still on. The Army wants a new combat boot for its soldiers which has greater durability, increased water resistant properties, and infrared reflective qualities using state-of-the-art technology.

A prototype, rough-leather brown boot was considered as a possible choice to provide the desired combat boot improvements. However officials state the brown boot is no longer being considered.

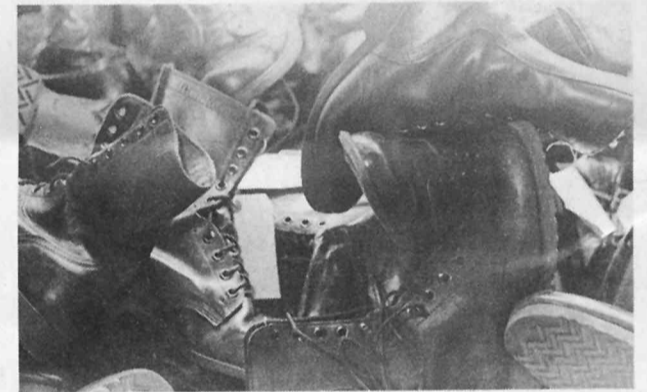

"Structural deficiencies causing poor durability and foot support have been revealed," comments an official. "We are continuing the search for a new combat boot."

Specifically, a combined development and operational test of the rough-leather boot pointed to excessive wear on the sole of the prototype making the service life of the boot too short for Army needs. Ankle and arch supports were also less than soldiers require. The deficiencies, accounts the official, were found during testing specifically designed for that purpose.

"The reason for the test was to discover if there were deficiencies and, in that sense, the test worked," explained the official.

The official also pointed out the Army is exploring a number of alternatives in search of a replacement for the present black leather combat boot. One of these alternatives is to develop a new boot based on what was discovered during the first testing. Another option is to consider commercially-available boots. (ARNEWS)

Preparatory school offers shot at military academy

The United States Military Preparatory School (USMAPS) at Fort Monmouth, NJ, conducts a special 10-month course of instruction preparing soldiers to compete for admission to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. USMAPS provides a direct path to a college education and a commission in the Regular Army.

Qualified soldiers having leadership potential, high ideals and other character attributes demanded in officer candidates should be counseled and encouraged regarding their opportunities to compete for admission to USMAPS.

Regular Army applicants should check out all of the guidelines and the prerequisites as established in AR 351-12. USMAPS must receive applications by May 1 to be considered for the class beginning in August. All completed applications and attachments should be routed through this headquarters. ATTN: AEBA-AG-PA, to ensure administrative correctness.

West Point Candidate Advisory Officer (WPCAO) at this headquarters is Maj. John B. Buczacki; however, point of contact for administrative procedures is AG Personnel Actions, 819-6586.
