

Community fair opens Women's Week

by Sue Sweeney

The Federal Women's Week fair opened Sunday afternoon with Maj. Gen. J.G. Boatner, U.S. commander, Berlin, presiding over opening ceremonies.

The fair, called "It's Your Fair" was a community service to interest people in the employment resources for women in Berlin. It was also designed to emphasize community involvement in the Federal Women's Program.

This simply means, that besides getting the community together for an enjoyable time, the fair was designed to show women what's available for them in Berlin. Job opportunities and volunteer work were both represented.

The Bear-A-Cuda swim team, the Berlin Adult Education Association, American universities, and the Red Cross were just some of the many organizations present at the fair.

According to Diana Baldwin, Federal Women's program manager, the fair was planned and organized by the FWP resource committee. Membership in the committee is voluntary and open to women from the Berlin community interested in working to plan and support the Federal Women's Program.

The resource committee planned all the other activities that happened this week. Workshops, seminars, and even a tour were on the agenda. Tomorrow and Sunday, a seminar, "The American Woman" will be held at the Berlin American High School from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

After Federal Women's Week ends, Baldwin reminds the community that the Federal Women's Program doesn't.

The program is a year-round government program. It strives to educate women about the opportunities available to them and encourages women to develop their potential and take responsibility in career and life planning.

In Berlin, all FWP activities are open to the entire community, to include men, women, and children.

Beginning in September, the Berlin FWP will be offering more workshops and seminars to women. Anyone interested in signing up for the Federal Women's resource committee should contact the FWP manager at 819-7154.

If you wish to be involved with the FWP planning, pick up a questionnaire at the Main Exchange, commissary or the Information Center.

4th Battalion trains in 'zone'

by Doris Flack

The soldiers of 4th Battalion have been practicing conventional warfare techniques in preparation for their upcoming ARTEP since leaving Bonnland, West Germany, two weeks ago.

The soldiers departed Bonnland on foot Aug. 11 and marched four days up and down the steep hills of West Germany in their full field gear before arriving at their destination.

"The downhill part of the march," said 1st Sgt. Fred Kirtchner, Company C first sergeant, "was entirely too short."

According to 1st Lt. James Winbush, Company B executive officer, "The march provided a good opportunity for the unit to practice land navigation."

Along the march route, the troops practiced movement techniques on squad, platoon, and company levels. "Our movement to contact went very well," stated SFC James Foster, Company A first sergeant.

The destination for the battalion headquarters was Jossa. Each "line" company was assigned a town or village surrounding Jossa where they set up defensive positions to protect the battalion headquarters.

The soldiers spent three days in or around Jossa training. "We practiced night training, squad and platoon ambushes and raids, and squad reconnaissance," said Kirtchner.

Sgt. David Crdisco, Combat Support Company training NCO said, "We set up in Rossbach, about two kilometers from Jossa. We set up defensive positions, pulled reconnaissance and hasty attacks."

All the companies brushed up on night training, raids, reconnaissance, and setting up defensive positions.

"Our commanding officer speaks German and was able to coordinate 22 shower points with the Buergermeister of our town," said Kirtchner. Each company made similar arrangements with their local authorities.

Upon completion of the training at Know housing rules before moving family

Numerous problems are being encountered concerning service members who bring their families to the command without prior approval or without checking with the Housing Division.

Such action not only creates a problem for the housing office, it more seriously affects the soldier, his/her family and the command. PFC Smith, Sp4 Jones, and Sgt. Doe are three recent examples.

PFC Smith is not authorized housing support by virtue of his grade, lack of time in service, and the fact that he is on a "all others tour." After having been in the command for a while he decides to bring his family and requests a change of tour at his PAC office. He also applies for ineligible quarters at Park Manor Estates.

Approximately five weeks later he calls the Housing Referral Office to say his family is here and needs an apartment. Housing Referral personnel explain necessary procedures required for off-post housing.

Several days later the commanding officer calls and checks when PFC Smith will be assigned quarters.

The CO is told that the soldier has not yet applied for off-post housing and that a waiting time of approximately three to four months exist.

Also, the CO is informed that ineligible quarters at PME will not be available for at least six months plus the fact that the soldier is not eligible for Temporary Lodging Allowance (TLA).

All in all, PFC Smith has no permanent place for his family for some time and is dependent upon his unit to find sleeping accommodations for his family.

Sp4 Jones was just promoted to E-4 and since he meets all other eligibility criteria, applies for government housing. He receives a briefing at the housing office and waits for his name to come up on the quarters waiting list. His spouse in CONUS is impatient and buys her own ticket to Berlin.

Upon arrival of his spouse, Sp4 Jones moves into the guest house. He reports to the Housing Division several days later expecting immediate assignment of temporary quarters. He also requests TLA reimbursement.

Sp4 Jones is told that he is not eligible for TLA because he was not authorized travel through the Housing Office. Also he is informed that because of his wife's decision to come at her own expense, he has lost his command sponsorship.

Now, he must reapply for command sponsorship, which changes his eligibility date for permanent quarters and increases his waiting time, plus he has to pay the guest house bill himself until temporary quarters can be assigned (approximately three weeks).

Last, there is Sgt. Doe who receives assignment orders for Berlin. The orders read "deferred travel of dependents is authorized." For personal reasons, however, the soldier decides to ignore the order and brings his family along concurrently. Upon arrival in the command and having settled his family in the guest house, he reports to the Housing Division to apply for quarters.

To his surprise, he is informed that he has lost his command sponsorship and is no longer eligible for government housing support or TLA. He is told that he must reapply for command sponsorship which will increase the waiting time for him, and that he will have to pay the expenses incurred while residing in the guest house.

All three cases have actually taken place, some many times, and each one created problems and inconvenienced families and units. What these soldiers also didn't realize is that they were acting in an unfair manner towards others who obey their orders. In fact the soldier is in violation of written orders and could be considered for punishment.

For further information and/or assistance, please contact the Housing Division by calling 819-6756 or 819-6707.

Prescribed medicines dangerous too

Editor's Note: The following article is the second part on opiate addiction by Dr. James Jacobs, clinical director, Berlin Counseling Center.

During 1979 through 1981 there were 199 heroin deaths in Berlin, none of them U.S. service members, and this represents a downward trend.

Although the deaths are called "overdose deaths," it's very unlikely this is due to the actual strength of heroin. Heroin can be smoked, snorted (taken through the nose), or injected.

Autopsies done on heroin addicts have indicated that death is usually caused by impurities in the heroin or its mixing with other drugs, which is called Syndrome X. As illegal drugs are sold on the "street" the sellers try to make as much money as possible by cutting the drug. Quinine and talc are common cutting agents which can cause death.

The drug strength has been getting weaker and addicts try to strengthen it by mixing it with other drugs, such as barbiturates, alcohol, and cocaine. It's thought that actor John Belushi died as a result of a drug mix of heroin and cocaine.

There are numerous serious health problems aside from addiction. These are caused by shooting (injecting) unknown substances into the body. People do not have the same fear of needles as they once did, as now injections are commonplace and associated with medicine.

In medical use, precautions are taken with each injection and it's known what's being injected; not so with heroin. This leads to serious internal infections, hepatitis, heart and lung diseases.

Many legitimate prescribed medications have opiates in them. Some people misuse drugs by letting prescriptions sit on the shelf and taking them again without checking with physicians.

Sometimes people take the prescribed medication of a spouse or friend. This is illegal use of drugs and the person hurts him or herself. The person "self-prescribing" the medicine doesn't have the medical training to do so in safety, this includes knowledge of side-effects, drug interactions, and in fact, it may not be the right medicine.

The pain killing medicine may temporarily get rid of the pain but not the problem, so that the problem may exist or get worse. If the person is a service member, he or she may be picked up by the Army drug testing program for illegal use of drugs and there won't be a record of medication prescribed when the records are checked.

Opiates have been with us for many centuries and they will not just fade away as a problem. As long as there are unscrupulous people to addict their fellow men and women for profit we must remain vigilant and continue to educate ourselves and our children on the facts of drug abuse.

Bishop visits

Bishop Ithiel Clemmons, Bishop of the Armed Forces Institutional Chaplaincy for the Church of God in Christ, will be the guest speaker today at the Berlin Church of God in Christ.

The service will be at Andrews Chapel at 4 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend. For more information, call 819-6430 or Mrs. B.A. Cummings at 813-6881.

Exchange shopping

Even though you have exchange privileges in the country where you're stationed, you may not be authorized to shop at AAFES-Europe facilities in other countries while on leave. Each country has its own restrictions based on individual status of forces agreements.

Basically, Europe-based military and family members on leave can shop at exchanges in Germany, Greece, Italy, and United Kingdom, but you'll be subject to local rationing restrictions. For details, contact the local military customs office where you're stationed before going on leave.

Out-of-country military vacationers cannot, under any circumstances, shop at AAFES-Europe outlets in Belgium, Netherlands, Norway, Saudi Arabia, Spain, and Turkey. AAFES-Europe spokesman Maj. Ben Thornal said SOFA restrictions are posted at all exchanges and ID card checkers can't make exceptions. "Host country rules must be enforced to protect all exchange customers," he said. (AAFES Europe)

Check flights now

For flights across the Atlantic, Christmas is probably the busiest season of the whole year, and that means airline seats will be few and far between for those who don't reserve space early enough.

There's only so much seating capacity on scheduled planes across the Atlantic between Dec. 10 and 23, and those who don't get in on the ground floor with an early reservation will be left out in the proverbial December cold.

Airlines and travel agents advise you to get your leave squared away and then put a deposit on your flight home for Christmas as soon as possible.

This gives all concerned a chance to get you the best and quickest connection stateside. It's clear that a non-stop flight direct to Atlanta, Chicago, or Los Angeles is better than changing planes, clearing customs, and handling your luggage somewhere along the line, usually New York's Kennedy International.

It is also a fact that those convenient, direct flights from Europe to major U.S. cities other than New York are the ones which fill up first.

If a flight back home is on your mind for this Christmas season, you should soon check with licensed airline travel agent for details on fares, flights, and best connections to make to your home town.

All a travel agent needs to make reservations is a deposit — $50 is fairly standard.

The balance can be paid anytime before departure when you pick up tickets. By reserving your Christmas leave flights in plenty of time, you'll be good to go in December. Chances are that your flight will be the most direct route to your family, friends, and hometown.

Burro needs name

The Army Energy Mascot Contest is on. The contest, open to all Department of the Army personnel, requires the contestants to name the energy saving burro, compose a slogan and select a pose. The first prize is $750. For more information call DEH Energy Control Office at 819-6749.

Layaway can help

Now is the time to use AAFES-Europe layaway program for Christmas. Here's why: you can choose from two plans, 90 days or 180 days. You pay 10 percent down and a $1 service charge and payments will be spread 30-days apart.

If you want to make a partial payment between mandatory payment due dates, or complete payment and withdraw the merchandise ahead of schedule, go ahead, the program's flexible.

After opening your account in person, you can mail in all but the final installment. The layaway clerk has the details.

You can budget your money, avoid the last-minute pre-Christmas squeeze on your wallet and those January bills plus, you'll miss the Christmas crowds. Layaway also solves the problem of where to hide those gifts.

You'll have peace of mind that goes with having your Christmas list complete and your merchandise safely held off the sales floor. Remember the Christmas shopper's golden rule — shop early for the best selections.

Mailing dates set

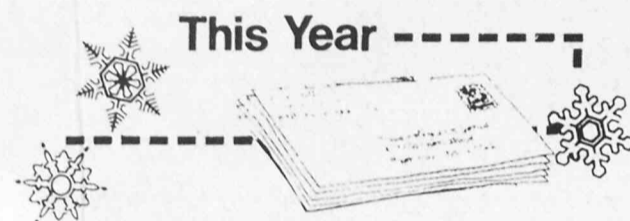

1st PERSCOM postal officials have announced the Christmas mailing dates for this year's holiday period.

The following dates pertain to Europe to CONUS mail: letter mail, Dec. 15; priority parcels, Dec. 13; Parcel Airlift (PAL), Dec. 9; and space available mail (SAM), Nov. 29.

The dates for mailing to Europe from CONUS are: letter mail, Dec. 10; parcel airlift, Nov. 29; space available mail, Nov. 19; surface mail, Nov. 8.

According to postal officials, the recommended mailing dates are the last ones you can mail by and expect delivery by Christmas. SAM and PAL are the fastest and most economical ways to mail, the officials added.

Mail Early

Uniform alterations

Recent publicity indicates a need to clarify the military uniform alteration policy of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

Minor alterations to commercial items, including hems and trouser bottoms, minor waist and sleeve alterations on coats, overcoats, and mess dress uniforms are available at no additional charge to all patrons.

Enlisted personnel may have shoulder loops removed, buttons aligned, and customer-furnished service stripes and rank insignia sewed on mess dress uniforms free. The attachment of customer-furnished rank insignia on coats, blouses, and overcoats is also free to enlisted personnel.

For "issue" items from the Defense Personnel Supply Center (DPSC), free alterations for enlisted personnel include shoulders, collars, sleeves, and side and back seams on coats; crotch, seat, waist, and bottom finishing on trousers and slacks. MCSS clerks will provide further details on all alterations, if desired.

These alterations are free to active duty, reserve, or national guard enlisted personnel only. The military Clothing Sales Store (MCSS) clerk will issue a free alteration certificate good for 30 days for the alterations. Warrant officers, commissioned officers and retired military must pay for all "issue" item alterations. (AAFES Europe)

Jossa, the soldiers were given a "day off." Married soldiers had the opportunity to meet their wives and families at the Frankfurt RTO Saturday and spend the day with them.

Single soldiers were able to take advantage of a boat cruise that started in Ruedesheim and ended in Frankfurt.

CSM James Clark, battalion command sergeant major, felt the opportunity for soldiers to spend a day with their families or go on the boat trip provided a nice break for the troops.

The soldiers not participating in either event moved onto Wildflecken and prepared the ranges for the next training phase. Sunday, the battalion moved to Tent City at Wildflecken.

The next training phase took place Monday and Tuesday. The infantry squads began both days with a 12-kilometer forced march to the ranges where they fired their weapons.

The mortar sections were also on the ranges firing both days. A four-day pass will be given to the squad with best overall firing score.

Wednesday morning, the battalion moved out of Tent City to bivouac sites at Wildflecken for a battalion field training exercise. This is the last opportunity for the soldiers to practice what they will be tested on next week during the ARTEP.

Support personnel play vital role

by Doris Flack

While the infantry squads were marching and firing, the sections that support 4th Battalion's mission were busy doing their jobs, also.

The support platoon, maintenance, personnel, food service and medical sections have been busy the last two weeks doing their normal jobs in a field environment.

In addition, a detachment of military police from the 287th MP Company joined 4th Battalion in the field for some tactical training.

Food supply

"The support platoon is responsible for transportation support for the battalion. We run the food out to the line units and transport the soldiers to training sites," said SSgt. Edward Brooks, support platoon NCOIC.

"We've also been making laundry runs and we're responsible for the rail loading of vehicles to Wildflecken and back to Berlin as well as their fueling."

"We've been running a field-type shop maintenance," said Sgt. Lee Faulcon, battalion maintenance shop foreman. "We have been doing both scheduled and unscheduled work. Aside from a few slight problems with getting parts, our section is operating as it normally would in garrison."

Field desks

The personnel actions center has set up their field desks in Wildflecken and are doing what they normally do. "We've been handling allotments, pay changes, extensions, promotions — everything we normally do in garrison," said Sp5 Royce Henderson, personnel services NCO.

The dining facility personnel had a little adjusting to do to prepare for the field. In garrison, the dining facility is consolidated, but in the field, the cooks are divided into five teams with one assigned to each company.

According to MSgt. William Scott, senior dining facility manager, the teams each have a mess trailer where the meals for that company are prepared. The mess teams and trailers go with the assigned company on any moves.

To be able to feed the soldiers, ration accounts were established in Wildflecken. According to SFC Joseph Sanderlin, dining facility manager, the ration people in Wildflecken were very helpful. The 4th Battalion soldiers have been eating two hot meals a day and drawing C-rations for lunch.

Aid station

The battalion aid station has been seeing patients and running their normal sick call from a tent at the training area. However, four medics received some additional training when returning from a boat trip. The medics involved were PFCs Michael Haivey and Rigo Fernandez, Pvt. 2 Ernest Thomas and Pvt. 1 Todd Pitts.

"We saw a head-on collision on the road as we were coming back from the boat trip," said Fernandez. "Someone asked for medics, so we got off the bus to help. One guy had a deep laceration on his head that we bandaged. The passenger in his car had a slight cut that we also bandaged. The other driver was not hurt."

CHECKING IT OUT — Sp4 Donnie Lewis, HHC maintenance section, checks out the wheel bearings on a jeep. The maintenance section has

Thomas added, "One of the German paramedics commended us on the job we had done when they arrived at the accident scene."

The military police attached to the battalion have been helping with convoy movements and tactical traffic control points, according to Sgt. Jack Frost, NCOIC of the detachment.

"We have also been supporting the Wildflecken training area MPs," says Frost. "We've pulled security guard for the tactical operations center. In addition, we've done some route reconnaissance."

All the sections have been doing their jobs, but three soldiers were given Impact Army Achievement Medals for doing exceptionally fine jobs. The awards were presented to the individuals by Brig. Gen. Leroy N. Sudath, Jr., brigade commander, during his tour of 4th Battalion's training operations Tuesday. The individuals honored were Brooks, Faulcon, and Frost.

2nd Battalion soldiers join presidential volksmarch

by Roger Lund

Marching is nothing new to the infantry soldier. But when several soldiers decide to volunteer for a 28-kilometer volksmarch with the president of the Federal Republic of Germany; that certainly is different.

That is exactly what occurred last Saturday. Six 2nd Battalion soldiers joined President Karl Carstens, members of his personal staff and several hundred Berliners on a volksmarch that started near Teufelsberg and ended at Freedom Bridge.

The soldiers who decided to spend their Saturday pounding the Berlin turf were 2nd Lt. Paul Mullin, Sp4 Ferdinand Lopez (a veteran of the recent Nijmegen march), and PFCs James Jacks, Anthony Salsman, and Wilbert Walker.

Several of the soldiers looked forward to their first volksmarch. One remarked, "I just want to earn that medal."

Unfortunately, for him, there were no medals to be earned Saturday — only blisters, sore feet and most importantly, a chance to meet President Carstens and his staff.

"I didn't know I would be marching with the president. I felt really proud to be one of the Americans marching with him," said Lopez.

During the trek along the Wannsee and through the Grunewald, the president became aware of Americans accompanying him.

Mullins, representing the group, had an opportunity to speak to the president. He mentioned he would be traveling to Philadelphia in the near future to meet with President Reagan to celebrate the 300th anniversary of German immigration to American shores.

Along the march route, groups such as a children's ensemble, student band, folk dancers, and a church choir performed and refreshments were provided by the German Red Cross.

Many of the German marchers enjoyed seeing the Americans joining them in one of their pastimes. "I liked meeting so many different people from different walks of life," stated Salsman. "I enjoyed talking to them all."

Several of the Guardian Battalion marchers expressed interest in the next volksmarch, even though all were clearly tired.

When it became apparent the finish was some distance from the starting point, the president's staff arranged transportation with the Berlin Senate to take the Guardian marchers to their bus as a way of saying "thanks" for joining them on a Berlin volksmarch.

Mork returns in September

by Mark White

September looks like a good month for viewers with a host of top rated shows and movies returning or being seen for the first time on AFN Berlin TV.

Fans will delight to see the return of "Lou Grant," "Little House on the Prairie," "LaVerne and Shirley," "Mork and Mindy," "Dynasty," "Happy Days," "SCTV," and "Taxi."

First runners on AFN are "Fall Guy," "Today's FBI," "Flo," "In Concert," "Coral Jungle," "This was America," "An Evening at the Improv," "Lively Special," and "Code Red."

"Fall Guy" is an exciting new series that follows the life of a veteran Hollywood stuntman who also works as a bounty hunter to make ends meet. Lee Majors stars as Colt Seaver.

Fighting crime

On "Today's FBI," Mike Connors leads the new breed of dedicated young FBI agents fighting today's crime with tomorrow's weapons.

"Flo" needs no introduction. AFN-TV viewers have met Flo in the regular Alice series. Portrayed by Pollycher Holiday, who created such an impact she was "spun" off, as they say in the trade, and like magic, her own series was born!

William Shatner, hosts a new 15-week series, "This Was America." He uses early photographs, presenting America at the turn of the century when the quest for wealth often meant bitter poverty for many and great riches for a very select few.

"Yesterday's Glitter" provides an analysis of many of the pop Hollywood movie stars. Film clips are shown of the movies in which the star appeared. Hostess Anne Rhomer talks with Dom DeLuise on the first show about his movie career with clips from several of his top films.

"Lively Special" is a cross over from jazz to country and western with the first show featuring jazz and the talents of Brian Russell, Donna Vay and Tim Tickner.

They're back! America's sweethearts and long time roommates, LaVerne and Shirley reach new heights of hilarity in their fifth season opener! In their premier episode, the girls become engaged to Richie and Fonzie to save the boys from a shotgun wedding.

Fans of "Dallas" will undoubtedly enjoy the second season of "Dynasty." A serial drama of power, passion, money, and ruthless ambition, fueled by oil and set in Denver.

Calling all young viewers! "Code Red" is a dramatic entertainment series that has been designed for the young and young at heart.

Fans will flip over the 25 weeks of "Mork and Mindy" encoring this month as they kick off their third season about the alien Mork, sent by his planet Ork to study human behavior and society on planet Earth. Now, Mork has gone native. He sports a new haircut, a polyester leisure suit, and holds a regular nine-to-five job. Robin Williams stars as Mork with Pam Dawber back as Mindy.

Speaking of fans flipping — that suave, sophisticated, mature series with a heart — "Second City TV" is back.

You can laugh to their spoofs of Merv Griffin with "The People's Golden Choice Awards;" carryings on at the Scuttlebutt Lodge; guest Brooke Shields giving a Farm Report.

Back by popular demand is that laugh-filled series called "Taxi." All the cabbies gather in the garage for another season to reminisce, advise, agonize, confide, and swap zany stories with their fellow taxi drivers.

Little House

The popular Michael Landon returns with the Ingalls for another season of "Little House on the Prairie" with Charles, Caroline, Laura, Mrs. Oleson, Mr. Oleson, and a new addition, little Nancy.

Top Movies of the Month: Barbra Streisand and Michael Sarrazin in the '74 comedy, "For Pete's Sake;" Arthur Hill and Sharon Gless in the suspense-drama of 1980, "Revenge of the Stepford Wives;" Roy Scheider and Janet Margolin star in "The Last Embrace." A suspense-drama shot in 1979 and inspired by the famous Alfred Hitchcock, thriller extraordinaire: Ingrid Bergmann, Rex Harrison, MacLaine, George C. Scott, and Omar Sharif, star in a unique story of a yellow luxury limo and its 10 years with three owners — "Yellow Rolls Royce."

"Inmates — A Love Story" stars Kate Jackson and Tony Curtis, and as the name implies, relates the story of men and women locked behind the walls of a coed prison, trapped between the rules and their own passions. Definitely mature with violence throughout.

Famous duo

Another western-comedy with violence, a "Spaghetti Western" made in Italy, with that famous duo of Terence Hill and Bud Spencer. It's named "They Call Me Trinity."

George C. Scott (Oscar winner for "Patton") is a master criminal who escapes from an escape proof prison to plan the robbery of a sophisticated safe in an exclusive bank.

This 1980 three-part made for TV movie, "Scruples," stars Lindsay Wagner, Barry Bostwick, and Gavin MacLeod, along with Gene Tierney, Connie Stevens, Robert Reed, and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. Judith Krantz wrote the novel of a wealthy woman who upon the death of her husband decides to fill the void in her life by creating a shop where the rich can indulge in their utmost fantasies and desires.

Our last movie is taken from the Golden Age of TV series penned by J.P. Miller. Starring in the original cast are Cliff Robertson and Piper Laurie.

Hour-long variety specials during the month: "Second City TV;" Perry Como's "Spring In San Francisco;" Kenny Rogers' "America;" and Paul Simon.

Some of Dick Cavett's more interesting guests are comedian Dudley Moore reflecting on his filming of "10" with Bo Derek; Michael Palin of Monty Python fame; British actress Diana Rigg, actor-comedian Walter Matthau and Bob Hope.

September is an action-packed, fun-filled month and if you check your schedules there is something there for all ages and tastes. Comments are welcome and should be addressed to Chief, Programming, AFN Berlin, APO 09742, or dial 819-6145.

Widmark visits Berlin

Richard Widmark, star of stage, screen, and television, was in Berlin Monday on a movie promotion tour.

During his acting career, that spans more than 35 years, Widmark has starred with such movie legends as John Wayne in "The Alamo" and Spencer Tracy and Judy Garland in "Judgment at Nuernberg."

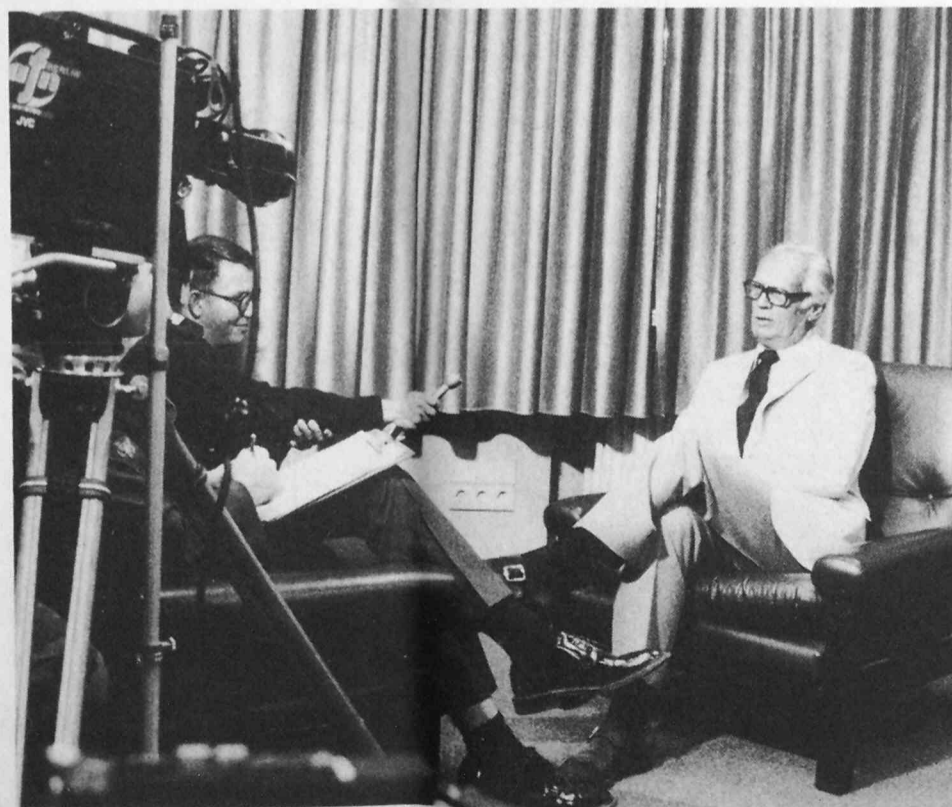

Widmark had a humble beginning for his first taste of theater work. "I started out in a local theater as a ticket taker," he recalled. "But my fascination with the movies goes way back to the silents."

As a youngster, Widmark had hopes of becoming a lawyer. As he recalls, "I found I was able to speak when I had to address the entire student body of my high school," he said. "I prepared my speech and got up and then found that I was able to control an audience. I thought hog dog this is for me!" He continued, "Well in those days when a kid could speak publicly, it meant he would become a lawyer."

Widmark began studying law at Lake Forest College in Illinois at the tender age of 16 on a four-year scholarship. It was while in college that Widmark began acting in plays and later decided to study acting instead of law. "I dumped the law and decided I wanted to become an actor," he said.

After graduating from college, Widmark stayed at Lake Forest as an instructor in the theater department. Another portion of his acting career was a series of television episodes called "Madigan." But he has some reserves about doing television. "I've always disliked TV. If not used properly, it can be a very dangerous medium." He left Berlin Tuesday to return to London.

Augsburg takes softball title

by R. Gibson

The U.S. Army Europe (USAR-EUR) women's slow-pitch softball crown was won by the team from Augsburg, West Germany, Sunday. The Augsburg team beat the team from Wuerzburg, 9-3, at Andrews Field for the victory.

The Augsburg team handed the Berlin Bears their first loss in the tournament, 7-3, after Berlin beat Baumholder, 6-3, in the tournament opener Thursday. Berlin was taken out of the tournament by Heidelberg on Friday. That score was 5-3.

As the field of 10 teams from all over Europe took to the fields at Andrews and McNair Barracks, each had the same goal in mind, to take home the championship.

And, as one team after another found their way to the loser's bracket, Augsburg continued winning. Their first win was against Berlin, then on to face the team from SHAPE, Belgium, for a 4-0 victory.

The team from Hanau had to beat Wuerzburg to earn a chance to meet Augsburg in the semi-finals.

Hanau did beat Wuerzburg, 9-1, but the Wuerzburg team knew they would have another shot at Hanau before the tournament ended, and they didn't have long to wait.

After Augsburg beat Hanau 6-2 in the semi-finals, it set up the second Wuerzburg-Hanau contest, Wuerzburg was ready for the win, and win they did with a 13-3 trashing of Hanau. That win moved Wuerzburg into position to meet Augsburg for the crown.

Despite the winning spirit that Wuerzburg had demonstrated throughout the tournament, Augsburg was just too tough.

After Wuerzburg fought back from an early 5-0 deficit, the Augsburg team kept the pressure on, boosting their lead to 6-3.

In the sixth inning Augsburg put the game out of reach completely, scoring three more times for the championship winning score of 9-3.

American Rugby team prepares for opener

Mike Gelfand

A flag football game was going on at McNair Barracks Tuesday, but a lot of the players were busy watching another group of athletes.

With yells of scrum left, back ten and line out, the Berlin Yanks Rugby Football team was having a scrimmage.

Rugby is a fast-moving contact sport from England and each team is made up of 15 players. It has more contact than football but is played without pads or any other type of protection.

The American rugby team was started in May 1981, when Brian McConnell arrived in Berlin and wanted to play. McConnell explained, "It was a very slow start because almost no one knew how to play and it took a while to find members of the command who could.

"We finally got a team started last August and only had a couple of practices as a team before the first match. It was not a super start."

This year the team has a good group of players from all over the command. The team coach, Chris Dyer, from DEH says the team has a lot of potential. "This year a lot of good athletes turned out and with the experience back from last year, it should be a good team."

The team is still looking for more players so anyone wanting to play a different sport with a challenge should contact Lt. Col. Harry Mohr at 819-6009 or Capt. Chris Rottner at 819-6411.

The first match for the Yanks will be Sept. 5 at 2:30 p.m. at McNair Barracks when they host the Bamberg military community team.

Servant spreads message with music

by R. Gibson

At about 6 p.m. Tuesday a crowd began to gather in the lobby of the Sports Center gym. The service and family members craned their necks to get a look at the group warming up on the canvas-covered basketball court.

The group was Servant, a contemporary gospel group from Grants Pass, Ore. The message behind their music is an old one, but the music itself is as upbeat and dynamic as any of the group's secular counterparts.

The concert turned out to be a sound and light spectacular that brought a small and unsuspecting audience to their feet in applause. But there's more to this seven-member group than modern sounds and stage lights.

Their home, just outside of Grants Pass, is a 70-person "community" called Fish Hatchery Common. The people who live there call themselves tree planters. That's how the group finances their eight-months-a-year concert tour, from planting and harvesting a tree farm.

They came to Berlin, sponsored by the Chaplains Division, to introduce their brand of gospel to service and family members. Before coming to the walled city they played several engagements in Holland.

Servant is only one example of entertainment available to members of the military community through the Chaplains Division. If you would like to see more entertainment of this type, contact your local chaplain and find out what's available.

REALLY SMOKIN'—The Christian rock and roll group Servant performed at the Sports Center gym Tuesday night. Though the message of their music is 2,000 years old, the music itself is very modern. Owen

by Sue Sweeney

Soldiers were standing on the side lawn of the hospital grounds when suddenly there was a loud bang and a strange hissing noise.

The soldiers sprang into action, donning their protective masks and hoods and giving the hand/arm signal for gas attack!

Soldiers from the MEDDAC/DEN-TAC recently tested their skills with a Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical proficiency exercise.

In one test, they walked down a path and were suddenly faced with an NBC hazard, such as spotting a casualty. After identifying the type of NBC casualty, they would be required to choose which of the available treatments to use.

"This training is very important to my soldiers," said 1st Sgt. Ruben Rodriguez. They are learning the jobs of protecting themselves and the wounded they are responsible for in an NBC environment."

According to Capt. Jonathan M. Kissane, MEDDAC NBC officer, the testing was innovative. Besides the testing, the soldiers also got to use some special equipment.

Medics from 3rd Battalion were responsible for showing MEDDAC soldiers and physicians how to use the M-51 shelter system and the SANATOR decontamination apparatus.

"We teach them basic knowledge about the shelter and the SANATOR," said SSgt. Ricky Jewel, 3rd Battalion, Medical Platoon. "It's really good if we can teach them something here that they may have to use in a real crisis."

If a battalion physician's assistant were ever injured or rendered unable to take care of his troops, the MEDDAC physicians must be prepared to take over the job immediately.

WHAT'S WRONG?—During MEDDAC's NBC proficiency test, all soldiers got the chance to practice mask-to-mouth resuscitation, as well as other tasks they would need to know. The 3rd Battalion medics also helped with the test by setting up and demonstrating the static displays. (Photo by Sue Sweeney)

3rd Battalion cleans up

by Jack A. Oliva

"Recovery Week" is a time that brings all 3rd Battalion soldiers back to the basics. Each period of intensive field training is followed by a one-week recovery period.

During the recovery period all the lost, damaged, dirty, unservicable or expended equipment is replaced or repaired.

For individual soldiers, this involves hours of patching holes in waterproof bags and turning in tents, sleeping bags and other TA-50 for cleaning. The soldiers also clean their weapons and protective masks to prepare for the final inspection by the battalion commander.

In addition, the soldiers take time out to clean the barracks, the common areas and reorganize wall lockers.

The battalion motor pool is also very busy during recovery week. Every vehicle receives a technical inspection to identify its problems. Then the mechanics repair it and the vehicle rolls on to a Quality Control Inspection, which assures all repairs are completed.

"Recovery Week" is a lot of work for every soldier in the battalion but it insures that the unit is prepared to handle its next mission.

1107 is lucky number

The first person to appear at AFN Berlin's studios with their newly issued USAREUR POV "white plate" bearing the numerals "1107" (the station's AM frequency) will receive a special prize.

Beginning June 15, 1982, the current U.S. Forces POV license plates (green background-black letters/numbers) are being replaced by a new plate (white background-black letters-numbers).

The replacement process is scheduled to take about a year from June 15, 1982, to July 1, 1983. The new "white plates" will be issued whenever a transaction requires issuance of a new plate; to include a new registration, a renewal registration and transfer of vehicle ownership.

Registrants applying for replacement of lost, stolen and/or exchange of mutilated plates during this period will continue to be issued green plates until the stock is depleted.

AFN officials announced the purpose of the contest is to publicize the issuance of the new "white plates" to military and civilian members of AFN Berlin's vast audience.

The "lucky winner," if they desire, will be interviewed on both radio and TV.

For further information concerning issuance procedures contact the Vehicle Registration Office, Provost Marshal, at 819-3493.

AFN Berlin's studio is located at 28 Saargemundstrasse, across the street from Headquarters, U.S. Army, Berlin.

Back hand

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) held a tennis match for some of its members Saturday like Barry Monson (foreground) and partner Joe Hoff. The match was played at the Harnack House courts and prizes were awarded to the top finishers. The group also held other competitions like a shuttle-type race around one of the courts. The honored guest at the match was Berlin Brigade commander, Brig. Gen. Leroy N. Sudath, Jr., who participated in the match and had a pretty fair day, despite the gray skys and cool weather. (Photo by R. Gibson)
