Troops build defense

The troops of Bravo Company, 4-502nd Inf., received training in the new Combat-in-the-City Standard Defense this week at Doughboy City as they prepared for the upcoming ARTEP.

The defense was practiced by Co. A last week and next week will be Co. C’s turn as the battalion seeks to give all of its soldiers experience in the new set up.

“This training helps the guys get a feel as far as preparing positions and actually building positions,” said 1st Sgt. Frank Caruthers. And Caruthers was pleased with the way his troops carried out the plans. “It’s been very successful,” he said. “We were actually ahead of schedule.”

While Co. A underwent the same training last week, there were a few different aspects of the Co. B defense. “Ours is actually a little more difficult,” Caruthers said, “because we’re set up to defend in the opposite direction that Co. A set up for. There are more obstacles in our path.”

According to Caruthers, the first step in setting up the defense is to establish and build crew-served weapons positions for maximum fields of fire. The next step is to establish alternate positions and strengthen and refine the existing positions. The troops must always be alert because there’s always the possibility of a mock attack.

HHC 4-502nd practices support role

By David Porreca

While elements of the 4-502nd were training at Doughboy City this week, 4th Battalion’s Headquarters Company was busy with their own training at Roosevelt Barracks.

As part of their preliminary ARTEP training, HHC, 4-502nd, set up an administrative-logistics-operations center and field train network Wednesday at Roosevelt Barracks. The purpose of the ALOC and field trains was to demonstrate HHC’s ability to provide exhaustive logistical support to the rest of the battalion.

“This is practice for the ARTEPs,” 1st Lt. Frederick Mueller, HHC, 4-502nd, said. “We are deploying all the supply elements of the battalion. Right now only one company from our battalion is at Doughboy at any one time, but we’re acting as though the entire battalion is there.”

“This is a basic run-through,” HHC 1st Sgt. Rick

Vernon added. “We want to see what logistical configuration can be set up and what works best for the troops in the field. We provide the main logistical thrust for the battalion. We are meant to be self-sustaining, since our mission is to push assets forward. This means we also provide our own security. For the ARTEPs themselves, security will be very tight.”

The nerve center of the exercise is the ALOC, according to Vernon. The ALOC consists of a logistics center and a personnel center. Among other responsibilities, the personnel center handles graves registration and POWs. All communications come through the ALOC. The field trains feature a main facility, medical facility, field mess, and petroleum, oil, and lubricant station.

Construction of the ALOC and field trains began Wednesday morning. The exercise will continue until today.

Soldiers should know Constitution

We, as American soldiers, are in uniform to protect our freedom. Freedom, in itself, is a vague concept. But it is clearly defined for us in our Constitution. The first 10 Amendments, the Bill of Rights, and the 13th, 14th, 15th, 19th, 24th and 26th Amendments specifically detail the rights of the people.

For example, the First Amendment guarantees freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom to assemble peaceably, and the freedom of the press. Some of the other rights guaranteed to Americans under the Bill of Rights are the right to keep and bear arms, and the right to maintain an army or "militia," which the Second Amendment describes as "being necessary for the security of a free State"; the right to a "speedy and public trial" when accused of a crime; and the right to trial by jury.

The 13th Amendment prohibits slavery; the 14th Amendment says States must not "deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Awareness of the importance of civil rights did not start in the 1960s. The 15th Amendment, ratified in 1870, says, "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied . . . on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." The 19th Amendment extends the right to vote to women. Voting rights are further guaranteed by the 24th Amendment, which prohibits a poll tax in elections for President, Vice-President, Senators and Representatives in Congress.

And finally, the 26th Amendment extends the right to vote to 18-year-olds.

Our Constitution is unique. The men who drew up our Constitution, and many of those who have followed, have gone to great lengths to clearly define our freedom, and guarantee it would continue.

What we now often take for granted was a bold, new concept to our forefathers. The Constitution did not originally contain a Bill of Rights. Those precious freedoms were insisted upon by the people in order for the new Constitution to be ratified.

As American citizens, it is important that we learn more about our system, how and why it came into existence. Only then can we know exactly why and what we are here to protect.

-Observations

Do you think more emphasis should be placed in teaching the origin and structure of American government in elementary and high schools?

Lloyd Williamson, retired
"Yes, the instruction isn't up to par in my opinion. The kids should know more about their own government."

Denise Gray, family member
"Yes, definitely, especially where we are. As soon as kids leave the states, they forget where they came from."

Sgt. Richard Bell, HHC, 6-502nd

"Definitely, because younger people don't know about the structure of their government. Because of the competing systems in the world, they should know how their government is structured."

Carole Bowersox, family member

"Yes, so that our kids will understand more. They'll be better off if they learn more about it. Government is a very interesting subject, but sometimes I have a hard time understanding it myself."

Sec. of Army commends Hispanic contributions to USA

The week beginning Sept. 10, 1984 has been designated by President Ronald Reagan as National Hispanic Heritage Week.

The theme for National Hispanic Heritage Week is "Hispanics — A Part of America's Excellence." This celebration honors Hispanic men and women for their vital role in the development and progress of the United States.

As the number of Hispanic Americans in the Army, both uniformed and civilian, continues to grow, we are proud to honor these Americans for their contributions to the Army readiness mission. I ask that you join me in recognizing these contributions through your participation in National Hispanic Heritage Week 1984 observances.

Jesus Christ Superstar is currently presented at Messehalle 1 of the Funkturm Exhibition Grounds, with German performances running until Sept. 22. English performances are scheduled to run from Sept. 23 to Oct. 10. Tickets are only available one week in advance, and range from DM10 to DM35, plus surcharge. This opera was planned to be presented at the Theater des Westens, but the theater is still under renovation. Tickets, however, can be purchased at the Theater des Westens at a container set up at the theater parking lot. Hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and on Sunday from 3 to 6 p.m. The theater is located on 12 Kanstrasse. Take the underground to Zoologischer Garten, or buses 9, 60, 66, 69, 73, 92 or 94.

Partner for Progress is the title of the 22nd Overseas-Import-Fair, open to the public at the Funkturm Exhibition Grounds until Sunday. Products, such as skilled craft, textiles, precious stones, wood carvings, and exotic foods from Africa, Latin and North America, Asia, Australia and Europe are just a few of the very interesting goods the Übersee-Import-Messe has on display at the bazaar. The bazaar is set up in Halls 7,8 and 9, with entrance on Messedamm. Opening hours are from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., today through Sunday, and admission is DM5. Take the underground to Theodor-Heuss-Platz, or Kaiserdamm, or buses 4, 10, 65, 69, 92 or 94.

Schloss Strasse in the Steglitz district has been converted into a picture gallery. Until Sept. 29, 60 artists and sculptors exhibit more than 200 pieces of their art in the windows of the Schloss Strasse shops, up to Walther-Schreiber-Platz. This exhibition takes place in connection with the 5th Steglitzer Kunsttage, and offers the public the opportunity to enjoy art while window shopping. The exhibited pieces of art are also for sale.

Weekend happenings

On Saturday and Sunday, Sender Freies Berlin is holding its traditional SFB-Volksfest. This year, the grounds of the Bundesgartenschau, the Federal Garden Fair, in the district of Neukölln will be the site of this big spectacle. The address of the Bundesgartenschau is 1 Sangerhauser Weg (Massiner Weg). About 160,000 visitors are expected to come and enjoy music and entertainment from 1 to 6 p.m. on both days. Before the program at the Bundesgartenschau begins, concerts will be given at places in all Berlin districts from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, and a Festzug, a festive procession, will be conducted through the district of Neukölln on Sunday, also from 10 a.m. to noon. Admission to the music fest at the Bundesgartenschau costs DM2, and tickets can be purchased in the form of a program at the SFB-Pavillon, located on the corner of Theodor-Heuss-Platz and Masurenallee, also at any branch of the Bank für Handel und Industrie, Berliner Bank, and Sparkasse der Stadt Berlin West. To get to the Bundesgartenschau, take the underground to Alt-Mariendorf, or Johannisthaler Chaussee, and from there buses marked with the letter "E" to either Mohringer or Buckower Damm.

The 34. Festwochen: Berlin um 1900 are in full swing and run here until Oct. 2. You can take your pick from a wide selection of music and theater presentations the festive weeks are offering. "Berlin around 1900" is this year's theme, and detailed information about the Festwochen can be obtained at the Infoladen, the information shop of the Berliner Festspiele, located in Schöneberg, on 48 Budapester Strasse. The hours are: Monday through Friday, also Saturday and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. Telephone number is 2634-250. Also check with the Truman Plaza ticket booth, located at the American Express Travel Agency. The hours are: Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and again from 2 to 4 p.m. On Wednesdays, the ticket booth is open from noon until 6 p.m.

Care to find out all about the International Congress Centrum here in Berlin? There will be guided tours on Sunday, conducted from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The cost for a tour is DM3 per person. The ICC is located on Messedamm, and you can take the underground to Kaiserdamm, or buses 4, 10, 65, 69, 92 or 94.

The Kaiser-Wilhelm-Gedächtnis-Kirche is offering an organ vesper at 6 p.m. on Saturday. Christa Welzien is presenting works by Buxtehude, Böhm, Bach, Reger and Brahms, and admission is free. Take the underground to Zoologischer Garten, or buses 9, 19, 29, 54, 60, 62, 69, 73, 85, 90, 92 or 94 to get to memorial church on Breitscheidplatz.

The Radio-Symphonie-Orchester Berlin is presenting a concert on Sunday. This concert is given in connection with the Berliner Festwochen, and begins at 11 a.m. on Sunday, and at 8 p.m. on Monday at the Grosser Sendesaal of Sender Freies Berlin. Works by Busoni, Saint-Saens and Shostakovich will be presented under the direction of Myung-Whun Chung. Tickets can be purchased at the RSO-Büro, telephone number 302-7242, located on 26 Kaiserdamm, today until 5 p.m., or any ticket agency in town.

During the week

Beginning Thursday until Sept. 23, Berliner Kunst- und Antiquitätenhändler, will present valuable art and antiques at the Orangerie of Charlottenburg Castle. This combined exhibition and sale can be seen daily from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., and admission is DM8. A catalog costs DM20. To get to Schloss Charlottenburg, located on Spandauer Damm, take buses 9, 21, 54, 62, 74, or 87.

Family films coming to Europe

MUNICH — Patrons of AAFES-Europe movie theaters will be able to see G-rated and family movies at their local AAFES theater beginning the end of September.

According to Col. George Goetz, AAFES-Europe's service division director, "efforts to get copies of some of the best of Hollywood's older family films have paid off. We'll now begin scheduling 26 such hits at our theaters that show special children's matinees."

Among the 22 all-time favorites are: "Dr. Doolittle," "Lassie Come Home," "Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm," "The Wizard of Oz," "Prince Valiant," "Those Magnificent Men in their Flying Machine," "Flipper," "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" and "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, World."

The colonel added that "we're obtaining new copies of these all-time favorite films from two of the major American film makers."

New cars

Buying through AAFES can save money

By Mike Warren

The Army and Air Force Exchange System new car sales offices, located just past Thomas A. Roberts School on Hüttenweg, look much like any other such office in the United States. Inside, there are "working" offices, small and functional, with a desk, scattered papers, pictures of satisfied customers, and certificates and plaques showing the sales rep's achievements.

But unlike most of their stateside counterparts, no haggling over prices goes on here. That's because prices are fixed, and that's good news for potential buyers.

Furthermore, once an agreement has been reached to buy a car, the buyer can be assured the price won't change — something that is not necessarily true when buying a car in the states. There, the price may be raised between the time of the original agreement and the actual delivery date.

Prices for cars purchased through AAFES are uniform for all AAFES customers, and the markup does not vary during the model year, according to AAFES officials. Prices are usually lower than U.S. new car dealer prices, although it is possible that stateside dealers might sell leftover cars at prices equal to or less than what AAFES buyers pay. However, "these cars are

One cost the customer can't avoid, however, is tax. State and local taxes, if applicable, are the buyer's responsibility. In some instances, the buyer may be able to take delivery of the car with a temporary license and not pay a sales tax. However, he should be prepared to pay an assessment upon Shipment time depends mostly on whether the customer orders a car to his exact specifications from the plant, or whether the car is already on stock in Europe. Special order cars can be delivered in about 100 days, while in-stock cars usually take about two weeks.

Delivery can be made to Berlin, or to one of several stateside delivery centers.

After a new car is delivered, the customer can have warranty-related service performed at the AAFES garage, or an authorized German garage. "We never forget about a customer after he takes delivery," Silhol said. "We're here to back up the transaction."

Hertz are not the only people who can put you in the driver's seat.

AAFES new car customers save an average of 10 to 18 percent compared to what they would pay at a stateside dealership, according to Chuck Silhol, AAFES Chrysler/AMC representative in Berlin.

Another factor in new car prices is shipment cost, which is approximately $500, and affects special order cars only. There is no shipment cost for cars in stock in Europe. Furthermore, the buyer can avoid this cost if he has at

Voting Week

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — The week of Sept. 10 has been designated as Armed Forces Voters Week by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Armed Forces Voters Week emphasizes the importance of participating in the election process, Federal voting assistance program officials say, and provides members of the military and their eligible family members every opportunity to register and vote.

In his message to members of the Armed Forces and employees of the Defense Department, Secretary Weinberger expressed delight with reports showing a significant increase in military voting in the primaries this year.

Absentee ballot requests this year have indicated a significant increase over past presidential election years, according to FVAP figures.

The FVAP works with state and local election officials to eliminate some of the difficulties in absentee voting.

Voting information and assistance are available at an military unit voting office, U.S. Embassy of U.S. Consulate worldwide. If answers on absentee voting are unavailable at the local level, contact the Director, Federal Voting Assistance Program, room 18457, Pentagon, Washington, D.D., 20301, or call Autovon 224-4928/4960 or commercial 202-694-4928/4960.

White House Fellowship

Washington (ARNEWS) — Soldiers interested in applying for the 1985 White House Fellowship Program should begin now to meet upcoming deadlines.

The program is designed for individuals to serve one year as White House or Cabinet Office Staff special assistants. Soldiers in all grades are eligible to apply. However, officials at the Education Branch at the Military Personnel Center said that interested personnel must receive permission from the Army before applying to the White House.

Request for permission to compete may be submitted by letter or message, and need include only name, rank, social security number and the statement, "I desire to compete for a 1985-1986 White House Fellowship." Requests are due the Soldier's appropriate career management division before Nov. 1.

The career management divisions are responsible for delivering application packets to candidates with approved requests. Candidates must then submit the packet to the White House Fellowship Commission before Dec. 1.

Soldiers elected as White House Fellows will receive full pay and allowances at their current grade level, and permanent-change-of-station orders to Washington, D.C. Fellowship assignments begin in September 1985 and end in August 1986. Participants accept a three-year service obligation.

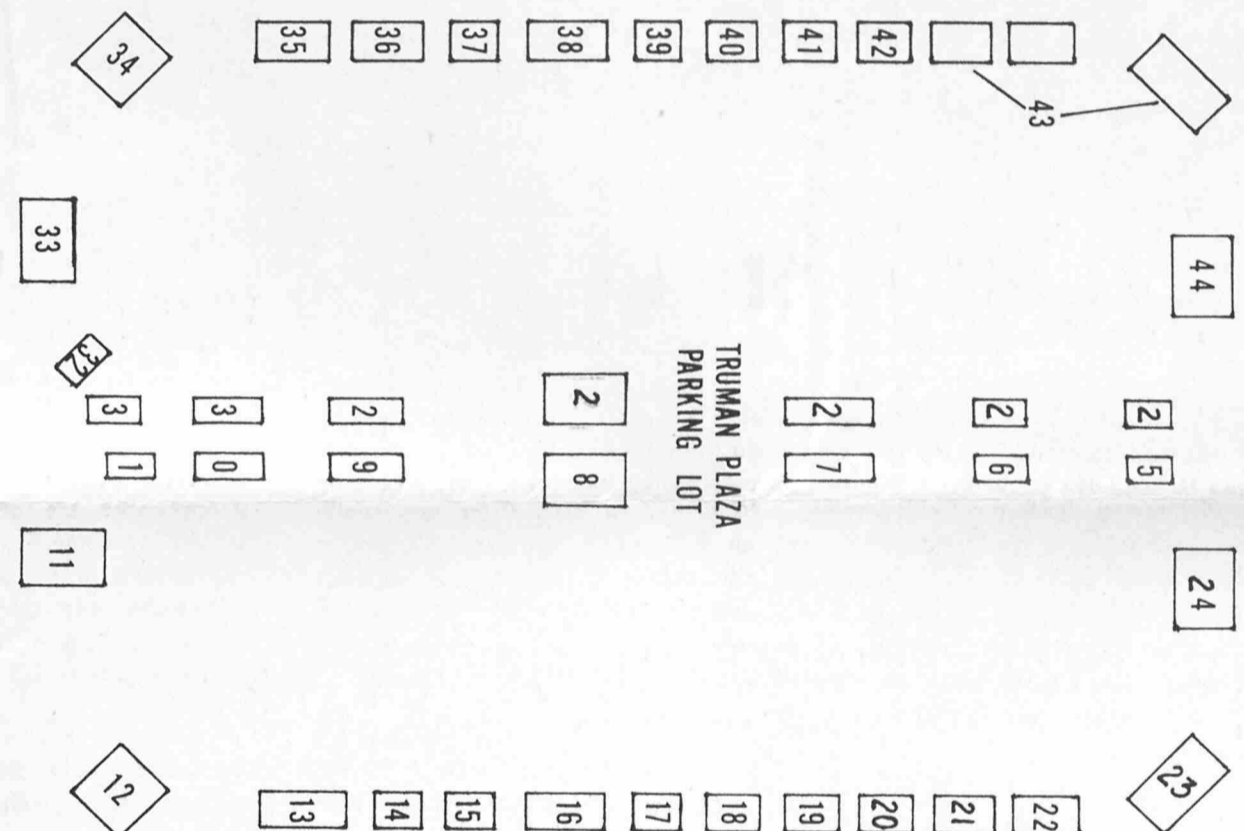

The fellowship program, according to its purpose statement, provides "gifted and highly motivated young Americans with some firsthand experience in the process of governing the nation and a sense of personal involvement in the leadership of the society." Individuals are chosen based on contributions to the community and demonstrated potential for leadership.

5-502nd goes through marksmanship program

By David Porreca

Members of the Berlin Brigade got a chance to brush up on their marksmanship skills this week as the 5-502nd began its semi-annual two-week rifle qualification program at Keerans Range. The program, which started Tuesday, lasts until Sept. 14. In addition to the 5-502nd, other participating units include HHC BB and AFN.

Each soldier taking part in the program spends two days going through the various firing stations. It takes two weeks for the entire battalion to complete the program.

The first day begins with a six-station round robin primary rifle instruction course, designed to refresh the troops' knowledge of their weapons. This is followed by several live-fire exercises — battle sight zero, slow-fire, and rapid-engagement time-fire. The day concludes with known-distance firings of 200 and 300 meters, and a field-fire exercise.

The second day is devoted to qualification firing. After a practice run, the troops fire for record. According to Sgt. Maj. James Adams, 5-502nd, the soldiers emerge from the two days of firing confident and qualified.

"This program isn't like other ranges," Adams said. "The typical range wants to get soldiers on and off the firing line as quickly as possible. This program, though, isn't a fast operation. It's slow, and it's designed to get the soldiers familiarized with marksmanship. As a result, soldiers come out of here confident and qualified."

Another important feature of the program is the presence of hand-picked expert cadre who oversee the instruction. "All of our cadre are experts," Adams noted. "All of them were picked specifically for this. Each soldier has a line coach, and the coach stays with his soldier throughout the firing. There's no switching of coaches, so this adds an element of continuity to the instruction."

Adams also pointed out that the large amount of live firing sharpens the soldiers' combat skills. "The individual soldier must hone his arms skills or he will lose them," Adams said. "The nice thing about this program is that we fire more than any major unit stateside or elsewhere that I know of. The troops enjoy this because it gives them a chance to use their weapons rather than let them get rusty in the arms room".

The troops of the 5-502nd shared Adams' opinions. "This is a great way to improve your shooting," Pvt. 1 Craig Berry, 5-502nd, said. "We always need to be familiar with our weapons. This helps us do it. The program has been run tremendously. One thing about a large group is that it's hard to organize, but not this."

To add a further dimension to the program, the 5-502nd offers several incentives for outstanding marksmanship. In addition to the brigade triad coin, these include battalion and platoon certificates of achievement. "The incentives really make you feel better," Berry said.

'Hero Street' has unique Hispanic heritage

America Forces Press Service

There's a street in a small Midwestern community whose residents swell with a little pride on patriotic holidays and during Hispanic heritage week.

The street is in the small town (population 7,100) of Silvis, Ill. and is only a block and a half long. But it holds a special place in American military history.

During World War II and Korea, more men reportedly entered the military service from this street than any other place of comparable size in the United States.

Many years ago, it was known simply as "Second Street." But in 1969, officials of the town — which is about 180 miles west of Chicago — renamed it Hero Street USA.

The 22 families of mostly Mexican descent who call Hero Street USA their home sent 84 men to the U.S. armed forces during World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

In World War II and Korea alone, 57 men from Hero Street went into combat. Eight were killed.

Two families named Sandoval sent 13 men to the armed forces, six from one family and seven from the other. Three Sandoval sons did not come back.

Mrs. Georgia Herrera of 187 Hero

St., maiden name Sandoval, said the families are "very proud" of their men and the sacrifices they made for their country.

"I knew them all," said Joseph Teronez, a town alderman who spearheaded the drive to have the street renamed. "Soon this great Hispanic contribution will be recognized across the whole country," he said.

And Hero Street is still contributing. Currently, there are two men from the street in the armed forces. Mark Sandoval is in the Air Force and Mario Munos is serving with the Army.

Although Hero Street may be unique, heroes among Hispanics are not. Secretary of Defense Caspar W.

Weinberger has made this observation about the gallantry and dedication of Hispanic Americans who have served in the United States armed forces:

"Hispanic Americans have contributed gallantry to the defense of our nation, and 36 have received the highest decoration our country can bestow — the Medal of Honor. This is a higher representation of such heroes, in proportion to their population in America, than any other group. No manner of tribute to our country's heritage could be more appropriate than to acknowledge the importance of Hispanic America's contributions to national security."

Dental training

The Berlin Dental Activity will conduct a Dental Assistant Training Program beginning in November. The requirements for acceptance into the program include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Willingness to fulfill the requirements of the American Red Cross Volunteer Program;
- Possession of a high school diploma or its equivalent;
- Have at least one year remaining in the command after completion of the program which will end in May 1985.

Persons interested in participating in the program should contact SSG Christensen or SFC Oringderff, 819-4153, beginning Sept. 4 for further information.

Fire hazards

The Directorate of Engineering and Housing advises that use of barbecue or other outdoor cooking devices in buildings, garages, and on balconies is strictly prohibited. Never leave burning grills unattended. Offenders face possible eviction and are held responsible for damages resulting from misuse of these devices.

German fire prevention laws prohibit the following: smoking in forests from March 1 through Oct. 31; starting fires within 100 meters of wooded areas without permission of land owner or fire meister; and disposal of burning or glowing articles within 100 meters of wooded areas.

Kontakt Disco tour

The people from Kontakt say their agents have scouted the area and have chosen two discotheques for a disco tour — the Ebony Discothek and the Twenty-Five. This will "at least get things going," they say. Starting time and place is Saturday at 9 p.m. in front of the Ebony. Dress is casual, but please, no tennis shoes, t-shirts, or old jeans.

NCAA football '84: Miami's no. 1

By David Porreca

Whew, I'm sure glad I didn't write this preview two weeks ago. Auburn, Pittsburgh — they were among the early choices for college football's top spot in '84. First Auburn loses to a Miami team that should have been in mourning for the loss of coach Howard Schnellenberger, then Pitt loses to Brigham Young. Brigham Young? This was supposed to be the first time in ages that BYU didn't have a quarterback. Well, it looks like it's going to be one of those years in college football — plenty of upsets, and lots of teams seesawing in the standings. For the soothsayers, it's a year to keep the fingers crossed.

The NCAA Top 10

1. Miami: Can any defense stop quarterback Bernie Kosar? Probably not. No signal-caller in college, and very few in the pros, can match his accuracy or his ability to read defensive tendencies at the line of scrimmage. Combine that with two potential All-America receivers in Eddie Brown and Stanley Shakespeare, and you have an offense that can score almost at will. If the Hurricanes get by Michigan tomorrow and Florida State on Sept. 22, they will repeat as national champs.

2. Nebraska: How does a team recover from the loss of all-world players Mike Rozier, Irving Fryar, Turner Gill, and Dean Steinkuhler? Very nicely, if they're the football factory known as the Nebraska Cornhuskers. Craig Sundberg replaces Gill at quarterback, and while he won't take anyone's breath away, all he really has to do is give the ball to I-back Jeff Smith and watch him run. And run. And run. Look for another Nebraska-Miami showdown in Orange Bowl '85.

3. UCLA: After two straight Rose Bowl wins, coach Terry Donahue's Bruins are ready to challenge for the national championship. Senior quarterback Steve Bono and All-America receiver Mike Sherrard return to provide the fireworks, while tailback Danny Andrews gives solid backfield support in the tradition of Wendell Tyler and Freeman McNeil. The Bruins face an early showdown Sept. 22 when they play Nebraska, but beyond that, they face few hurdles in their quest to become '84's best in the West.

4. Ohio State: All coaches should have Earle Bruce's luck. His Buckeyes play one of the easiest schedules in the country, and the only teams that should give them trouble, Iowa and Michigan, both visit Columbus. Add to that the return of Mike Tomczak, one of the best quarterbacks in the Midwest, and Keith Byars, the best running back in the Big Ten, and you know why Earle's smiling — and Bo Schembechler's frowning.

5. Notre Dame: The hottest rumor in football is that Howard Schnellenberger would accept the Notre Dame coaching job in a flash if it were offered to him. For that to happen, though, present coach Gerry Faust must have another mediocre season. But with this team, even Faust will have a hard time botching things up. Few teams in the country are bigger, stronger, faster, or more talented than the Irish. Unfortunately, that's been the case the past three years, during which Faust has compiled a stunningly average record of 19-15-1. If the Irish don't go at least 9-2 this season, Faust will be gone — and Schnellenberger will have a new job.

6. Texas: The Longhorns lost a herd of first-rate players from last season's 11-1 team, but coach Fred Akers isn't complaining much. How can he, when his team returns two good quarterbacks in Todd Dodge and Rob Moerschell, two fine receivers in Brent Duhon and Bill Boy Bryant, and an Earl Campbell-clone in tailback Edwin Simmons? Another Cotton Bowl appearance looks likely for the Longhorns.

7. Oklahoma: Marcus Dupree is gone, and so is the ill-starred Sooner version of the I-formation. Most polls are counting the Sooners out of it this season, but their return to the wishbone offense should make them a serious contender again. No coach in college football runs the wishbone better than Barry Switzer, and this year he has the horses to make Sooner fans forget the ghosts of Billy Sims and Joe Washington. The Sooners will lose to Texas and Nebraska, but the rest of their opponents should take cover now.

8. Penn State: Can youthful enthusiasm and raw talent compensate for lack of experience? Coach Joe Paterno hopes so. Forty-one sophomores make up the heart of the '84 Nittany Lions, and they will be joined by a host of outstanding freshmen. The youngsters, headed by sophomore running back D.J. Dozier, give Paterno as much pure talent as any team in the country. If the kids grow up fast, Paterno could have one of his best teams ever.

9. Alabama: After a fitful year of trying to get out from under Bear Bryant's shadow, coach Ray Perkins finally feels at home in the pressure-packed 'Bama environment. He should. Fifteen returning starters from last year's 8-4 team promise to make '84 a satisfying season for Perkins. Mike Shula, son of Don, will start at quarterback, and he will be bolstered by an excellent backfield of Kerry Goode and Ricky Moore. With a few breaks and the help of Shula's pro-style passing arm, the Crimson Tide should return to their rightful place as the powerhouse of Southern football.

10. Pittsburgh: The Panthers lost their season-opener to BYU, 20-14, not a particularly good way to begin a drive for the national championship. Nevertheless, Pitt has too much size and sheer brute strength to avoid finishing in the top ten. Offensive tackle Bill Fralic is by far the best lineman in the country, and he has two experienced fullbacks, Marlon McIntyre and Marc Bailey, and two superb freshmen halfbacks, Anthony Brown and Craig Heyward, running behind him. Once quarterback John Congemi gets his arm in gear, the Panthers will make their opponents pay for BYU's upset.

The NCAA Second Ten

11. SMU: The Mustangs feature an awesome defense and a pounding ground game, but they have the misfortune of being in the same conference as Texas. Coach Bobby Collins will be locked out of another major bowl.

12. Auburn: Much to the Tigers' displeasure, Miami proved that Bo Jackson isn't enough. Among other things, Pat Dye's troops need a quarterback and a quick-strike offense. Until they get them, they won't repeat as Sugar Bowl champs.

13. BYU: Robbie Bosco looks like he's ready to join the illustrious list of Cougar quarterbacks. Now that they've gotten past Pitt, the rest of BYU's schedule is a cakewalk. A 12-0 season looks probable, but the Cougars still have to play more first-rate teams before they get ranked higher.

14. Clemson: The Tigers have everything a team needs — good skill players, huge linemen, and vicious hitters. But like BYU, they've got to play a more demanding schedule before they get taken seriously, as in a national championship.

15. Boston College: If the Eagles didn't play in the same region as Penn State and Pitt, they would be contenders for a major bowl. Another trip to the Liberty Bowl, though, looks about right for Doug Flutie's last hurrah.

16. Michigan: Four-year starter Steve Smith is gone at quarterback, but coach Bo Schembechler has enough muscle on the line to make up for the departure. The Rose Bowl looks remote, but the Fiesta Bowl sounds good.

17. Iowa: Hawkeye quarterback Chuck Long is one of the best-kept secrets in the country. If Iowa didn't have to play Ohio State and Michigan, they would be going to Pasadena at season's end. Make it the Gator Bowl instead.

18. Washington: Coach Don James has another fine team, but he needs to find a reliable replacement for former standout quarterback Steve Pelleur. Until then, the Huskies will miss the Rose Bowl for the third straight year.

19. Arizona State: The Sun Devils' strongsuit is defense, and they will be very stingy this season with the return of 10 of 11 starting defenders. If coach Darryl Rogers gets his offense revved up, the Devils will put a scare into UCLA.

20. Georgia: A surprise selection. The Bulldogs are unrated by almost every major poll, but each year coach Vince Dooley does more with less than any other coach in the country. This season will be no exception.

Giessen outduels Berlin for USAREUR crown

by Paul White

If the saying "everybody loves a winner" is true, then the Giessen Wolverines' reputation as "the team everybody loves to hate" is in serious trouble.

The Wolverines, led by their rubber-armed ace pitcher Richard Jackson, grabbed the 1984 USAREUR fast-pitch softball championship in convincing style Monday by upending Berlin twice, 3-1 and 5-2, at Andrews Field. The title was the second in three years for the V Corps champs, but unlike their first one in 1982, this one wasn't easy, to the surprise of many of the Giessen ballplayers.

Several Giessen players, fresh off their victory over USAREUR defending champ Frankfurt, boldly asserted that they would win it all at the start of the event. Their egos quickly took a beating in the opening round, however, as Berlin humbled the Wolverines 4-3 in nine innings. The Bears scored the game winner without the benefit of a base hit on an error, a hit batsman and a fielder's choice. Berlin pitcher Steve Mahlstedt, after surviving a rocky first inning, settled down to diffuse the Giessen attack. With the victory, Berlin established itself as the team to beat in the tournament, while Giessen found itself faced with the difficult task of battling back through the loser's bracket.

In the other first round game, Nürnberg rolled past Mannheim, 4-2.

Berlin continued its winning ways in the next round as they bounced past Nürnberg, 3-1. With the score tied at one in the sixth inning, Berlin loaded the bases for Mahlstedt and he delivered, ripping a scorching line drive that baffled Nürnberg left fielder Larry Jackson, allowing the go-ahead runs to score.

Meanwhile, Giessen regrouped after their first round setback and bested Mannheim, 5-3, then came right back and polished off Nürnberg, 5-0. The two victories gave the Wolverines another crack at the Bears in the championship game. But since the tournament was double elimination, they would have to defeat the Bears twice in order to claim victory. And with Berlin playing in front of its home crowd and having already handed the Wolverines their lone defeat, it began to appear as though the men's slow-pitch softball trophy would soon have some company.

The championship-deciding games, however, were thoroughly dominated by the Wolverines. Playing for their tournament lives, Giessen had the look of a fired-up bunch, cheering each other on and occasionally taunting the Berlin players. And Jackson, the winning pitcher in both Giessen victories Monday, effectively kept the Bears off balance.

In the opening game, Mahlstedt again got off to a slow start, and this time he paid for it. In the first inning after retiring the first two men, Mahlstedt allowed three solid hits, the major blow being a triple by the ever-present Jackson. A third-inning triple by third baseman Michael Arthur and a sacrifice fly by second baseman Wilfredo Irizarry staked Jackson to a 3-0 lead, and that was more than enough for the cagey righthander. He retired the first 12 batters he faced en route to a four-hitter, and of the four hits he gave up, three were of the infield variety.

Berlin had its chances in the second game, but couldn't seem to come up with the key hit to keep a rally alive. The opportunistic Wolverines, on the other hand, parlayed their nine hits into five runs, including three triples over the head of the shallow-playing Berlin center fielder, Greg Nixon.

"We were really charged up out there today," Carlisle said. After we lost the first game we knew we'd just have to get a little tougher. Last night everybody got plenty of rest so we'd be ready for this, and once we got to Mahlstedt early, we knew we were going to do it."

Even the vocal Berlin crowd had no effect on the Wolverines. "When the crowd started getting on us, that just made us get more fired up to take Berlin out," Carlisle said. "After all," he concluded, "we're the team everybody loves to hate."

Berliners and Americans got an opportunity to see basketball as it's played on its highest level Tuesday night when the National Basketball Association's Seattle Supersonics put on a demonstration at the Sporthalle Charlottenburg.

The Sonics went through several of their practice routines to the delight of the fans. The crowd really got going whenever Seattle stars Jack Sikma, Tom Chambers or Scooter McCray moved in for one of their power dunks. Later, they played a quick pick-up game against one of the local teams, DTV Charlottenburg.

While DTV Charlottenburg was overmatched in terms of size, they surprised the Sonics with some slick moves of their own. Sonics coach Lenny Wilkens was impressed with the quality of the local players. "They've got a good team," he said. "When ever we got a little lax on defense, they had a couple of guys who could really stick it from the outside."

Earlier in the day, the team got a chance to visit the Berlin Brigade as they were hosted by troops from 6-502nd Inf. The soldiers were treated to autographs by the players, and the players were treated to lunch Army-style at the 6-502 dining facility.

After lunch, the players, who were accompanied on the trip by their wives, were taken on a tour of both East and West Berlin.
