"March Kessel" — Allies train together

A tripartite field training exercise was held last week involving members of 2nd Battalion, 40th Armor, 1st Battalion of the Royal Hampshire Regiment, the French gendarmie and 46th Infantry Regiment.

Operation "March Kessel" afforded the three Allied powers the opportunity to work together and to improve interoperability. As many attested, it led to a better understanding of each other and how each unit operates.

The objectives of the exercise were to practice Allied Combat-in-Cities defensive operations, refine tactical communications procedures between the Allies and promote Allied cooperation and understanding.

French and American soldiers occupied Doughboy City and set up defensive preparations. At the same time, 46th R.I. and Y Company, 1 R Hamps occupied the Ruhleben Fighting City. Soldiers from Company B, 2nd Battalion and B Company, 1 R Hamps served as aggressors.

Capt. Anthony Bullard, battalion operations officer, saw the training in realistic terms. "It was a realistic defensive scenario. It gave the soldiers the time to do it right. There were probes and air attacks that led to the big attack on Thursday morning," stated Bullard.

Soldiers from Company A departed earlier in the week to Doughboy City in order to begin their defensive preparations. Laboring long hours without much rest, filling sandbags and placing them in position, and setting up wire tested the soldiers' resolve.

SFC Danny Hobbs, acting first sergeant, described the FTX as "rough and that's putting it mildly.

"We used a new defense. We were familiar with the way we used to do defenses. But with the new method, you have to know how to stretch out your people and your time," added Hobbs.

SSgt. Marcos Amador, platoon sergeant with Company A, noted it was certainly a different experience. "The leaders had an important role. Each of the squad leaders had to lead by example and hide their fatigue," declared Amador.

"We can accomplish more and finish the crew-served and individual positions. Obstacles and wire could be properly prepared and reinforced. We could rehearse the withdrawal and counterattack," added Amador.

4th Battalion volunteers help protect historic mill

by Damon Elder
4th Battalion Correspondent

A small group of volunteers from 4th Battalion added their efforts to those of local workmen Tuesday in an attempt to prevent time and the Berlin climate from destroying a local historical site.

The windmill on Schettstadter Strasse was constructed more than 100 years ago using classic Hollander design. This included a wood shingled roof which wind and rain have reduced to ruin and sloping brick walls from which the mortar binding the bricks together has gradually eroded over the past century.

Despite the ravages of time and tempest, the mill presents a stately and thought-provoking spectacle, connecting Berlin with its proud past. Zehlendorf officials are determined to attempt a restoration of the site if funding can be found. The immediate problem is to prevent the elements from completely ruining the structure's beautiful antique roof.

Last year, the American military community was able to provide a temporary solution in the form of enough canvas tentage to protect the roof in the hopes that a more permanent solution would be forthcoming. Although some progress was made, it's not yet possible to begin restoration of the structure and wind and water had torn portions of the canvas partially exposing the already damaged wooden roof beneath.

On Tuesday afternoon, a volunteer force from 4th Bn. headed by CSM Gary Donaldson arrived at the windmill site. Several infantrymen, armed with rope and canvas, pitched in with the local workmen to restore the protective covering on the mill's roof. Using a crane, hundreds of feet of rope and a generous measure of elbow grease, the new canvas was maneuvered into place.

While the workmen completed the job of nailing the new canvas in place, the 4th Bn. soldiers took the opportunity to talk with some of the gathered spectators.

All of the soldiers present expressed a sense of satisfaction at having been able to help in the effort to protect the historical site. Recalled Donaldson, "When I was first here in Berlin, this mill was working. Of course, that was in 1959, before most of you were born."

PULL A LITTLE MORE—CSM Gary Donaldson (l), PFC Aaron Blessing, PFC Jimmey Rosales and Sp4 Arthur Vaughn, of 4th Battalion, help put a new tarp on an old windmill. (Photo by Damon Elder)

The young volunteers had their own feelings toward the mill and its antique appearance, which was expressed not so much by what was said as by the way in which the soldiers gazed at the mill while they worked.

Even after the work was completed, they continued to walk around the structure examining it from various angles. When asked if he felt the afternoon's work was important, PFC Aaron Blessing said, "I'm here. I guess that's the best statement I could make."

PMO gives some ideas for Rape Prevention Month

ARMY CRIME WATCH

The Provost Marshal's Office has this information for Rape Prevention Month.

HERE'S HOW TO DESCRIBE A PERSON

1. NAME
2. SEX
3. RACE
4. AGE
5. HEIGHT
6. WEIGHT
7. HAIR
8. EYES
9. COMPLEXION
10. PHYSICAL (marks, scars, moustache, limp, etc.)

 - E. SOCKS
 - F. SHOES

What should you do if you are attacked?

It depends on you, the attacker and the specific situation.

Without knowing the situation, nobody can tell what you can do. But here are some things to consider if you were to be involved in a rape.

In the Army, rape is defined as the commission of an act of sexual intercourse by a man with a female, not his wife, by force and without consent.

Anyone can become a victim. So, everyone should think about some kind of defense. During an attack is not a good time to consider your options.

Rape is a crime of violence, not sex; so, remember a rapist may be willing to use violence. If attacked, your main concern should always be your safety.

There are many ways in which to react to an assault. But the final decision must be made by you.

Submitting to a rape out of fear for your life or someone else's does not mean you consented. It is still a rape, and is still a crime.

Resisting an attack

Resisting by screaming, struggling and fighting back may be the right thing to do, but nobody can tell you whether resisting will work. Resistance may also lead the rapist to become more violent.

There are many types of resistance. Here are a few ideas:

- Screaming — may frighten the attacker.

- Struggling and fighting back — Self-defense courses, such as Judo or Karate, are effective, but proficiency takes continuous practice.

In the unfortunate event that you are attacked, try to remain calm. Attempt to talk to the rapist and persuade him not to go through with the threat.

Whether you submit to an attack or resist by using force, remember you can always go along until the chance to use some type of resistance presents itself. It is hard to get the rapist to let his guard down if you have already resisted.

For further information about rape prevention, call the Provost Marshal's Office, Crime Prevention Section at 819-3450.

Submitting to an attack

In every rape, the attacker in some way threatens the victim's safety or life. Sometimes, family members may be threatened. If you believe you may be harmed or a family member may be harmed, you may wish to submit and not fight back.

AER: Army people helping Army people

The 1984 AER Campaign has started. Here is your chance to help yourself, your friends and other Army people.

Here in Berlin, the '83 campaign collected $43,275, but paid out $56,532 in aid to members of the community.

"Why should I want to donate my money to AER? What can it do for me?" These are the most commonly asked questions at donation time.

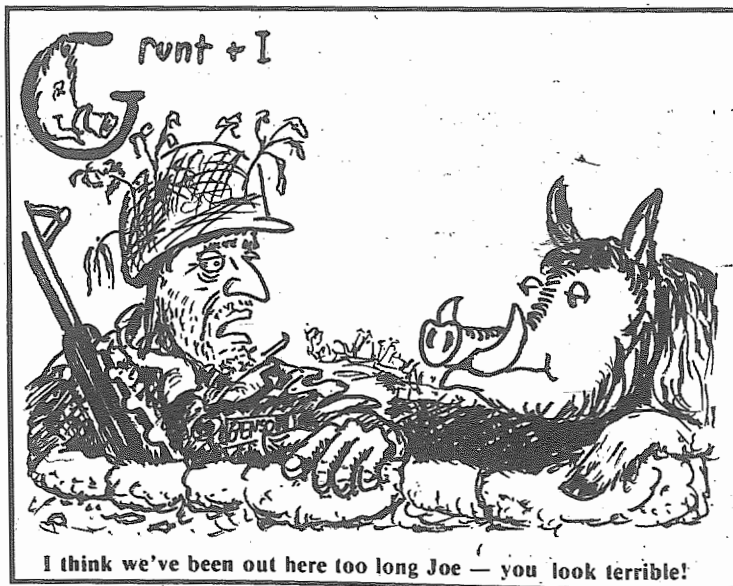

Financial problems can happen to any soldier. This makes AER's mission extremely important. An emergency can happen at any time, and if the soldier doesn't have the money, then AER can help.

Facts about AER

- Belongs to you and all Army people — it is your organization
- Serves all Army people, active and retired, and their dependents including spouses and orphans of deceased Army members

- Is private non-profit organization
- Began in 1942 and merged with Army Relief Society in 1976
- Provides financial assistance to all Army people in time of emergency need
- Has undergraduate educational assistance program for dependent daughters and sons of Army people
- Is Army people helping Army people
 - AER depends on receives support only from members of the Army family
 - AER funds made available to local commanders are not limited and allow all valid emergency financial needs of Army people to be met
 - AER is, in effect, the Army's own emergency financial organization
 - Is the only organization dedicated solely to helping the Army care for its own

briefly

Security at Clay

New security provisions have been initiated at Clay Headquarters. They include the following procedures:
100 percent ID card and Installation Pass check to include:

- Face to picture comparison
- Expiration date
- Serviceability of document
- Where applicable, Pass to Ausweis comparison

Random vehicle inspection to include:

- Visual inspection of passenger area
- Engine compartment
- Storage compartment
- Underbody mirror check

Random hand carried purse, briefcase, bag or package inspection.

During periods of normal operations LS und U.S. guards will not be required to physically handle ID documents but just to visually examine documents at a distance not to exceed 60 cm (2 feet).

During periods of increased security, ID documents will be physically inspected by security personnel as an additional check of authenticity.

The practice of physical inspection by security forces will be implemented under the direction and on order of the Headquarters Commandant. Personnel refusing to comply with this policy will be denied access to the Headquarters.

If you require further information of wish to make comments, contact 1st Lt. Andy O. Smith, HQ commandant or SFC Dale E. Douglass, NCOIC, Security at 819-6034 or 819-6241.

DEH asks for help

The Directorate of Engineering and Housing is having a problem and wants your help.

It seems that too many people are calling in for emergency service when their problem is more an inconvenience than emergency. DEH has therefore defined emergency:

A real emergency is a work requirement that cannot be deferred until the next working day because of danger to life and health or serious damage to government property is expected.

According to DEH, due to constantly rising labor and material costs, it is imperative that emergency services be limited to situations that comply with the above definition.

Cost is not the only factor that must be considered in the abuse of emergency requests, the response time for valid emergencies is increased.

Of the calls received after duty hours, approximately 30 percent are considered non-emergencies. This percentage may be reduced if customers make an evaluation of the situation, says DEH.

The following information may be helpful in determining whether or not an emergency exists:

- Lockouts — be sure that a key cannot be obtained from another family member.

- Electrical failures — considered an emergency only when complete circuit breaks disrupt the operation of facilities, especially mess halls and cold storage areas.

- Home refrigerator failure — not an emergency. Customers may pick up a refrigerator from DEH for temporary use.

Real emergencies may include, but are not limited to, leaking gas pipe breaks, backed up sewage lines, loss of heating or hot water and incidents that may jeopardize security.

PCS funds

John Nemetz, area manager of the Community Banking Facilities has this advice if you're leaving soon.

Most banks in the states will not accept large cashier's checks or bank drafts for immediate payment. He recommends taking a small amount of cash, a bank draft to be deposited to an account at your new bank and the rest in travelers checks.

The one percent cost of travelers checks is also refundable within certain limits if you see your finance officer at your new duty station.

Warrant board

The Fiscal Year '84 Warrant Officer Regular Army Integration Board will convene June '84 to consider applications for Regular Army Status.

Cut-off date at Department of the Army for receipt of applications is April 25. Authority for applications is AR 601-100, chapter six.

This program provides an opportunity for warrant officers to obtain tenure beyond 20 years active federal service. For more information contact AG Personnel Actions at 819-6586.

502nd vets

The Public Affairs Office is looking for anyone that served with the 502nd Infantry Regiment.

If you served with this unit please contact Capt. Steven Genser or 1st Lt. William Kirkland at 819-6188 or 819-6112.

Detour

Brümmerstrasse and Löhleinstrasse between Thielallee and Fabeckstrasse, will be closed for all motor vehicle through traffic until approximately December 1984.

The closure is necessary due to gas-pipeline and road construction work. Detours are posted.

OPD class

An Officers Professional Development class will be held on March 30, at 3 p.m. in the Coliseum Theater at McNair Barracks.

Attendance is mandatory by all combat arms officers assigned or attached to U.S. Army Berlin and is open to all officers of other branches.

The subject is MILPERCEN Combat Arms Division Update and will be presented by Col. Ronald Griffith, chief, Combat Arms Division, MILPERCEN. There will be a question and answer-period session later.

AFN changes

The United States does not switch to Daylight Saving Time until April 29. In the meantime, after Europe is on Summer Time, certain adjustments will be necessary in AFN TV's broadcast schedule.

The "Today Show" will temporarily be reduced one hour and will air from 5 to 6 p.m., with other news and information programs keeping you up to date between 4 and 5 p.m. during the five week interim.

The week of April 23, AFN will move "Family Feud" from 7:05 p.m. to 11:30 a.m. The 10 p.m. "CNN-Headline News" aired previously on tape-delayed basis will be aired live at 10:30 p.m.

These two program changes will create an additional hour for more popular general audience programs in our prime time period from 7 to 10:30 p.m.

Check news

On March 1st, a new policy for dishonored checks written to the commissary went into effect. Checks that are not honored will be handled by the 200th Theater Army Material Management Center.

When a check written to the commissary is dishonored a Request for Collection Action (DA Form 139) is initiated by TAMMC and sent to finance with a copy furnished to the service member who wrote the check, the service member's commander and the Check Control Office.

Included with the service member's copy is a letter explaining why the action was taken and what offense has been determined in accordance with AR 210-60.

The dishonored checks will be kept at TAMMC in Zweibrücken until the DA Form 139 action is completed and payment has been recorded. After the payroll deduction has been made the check is returned to the service member. There is no service charge on a dishonored check written to the commissary.

If you write a check to the commissary and your bank notifies you that you do not have funds to cover the check, it can be prepaid (before a collection action is initiated) by coming to the Check Control Office Bldg. 1, Room 0041, Clay Headquarters. The check control office will call TAMMC to determine if the collection action has been initiated. If the action has not been initiated the service member may send a money order only to pay for the check.

To avoid making double payments do not automatically send a money order without consulting with the check control office. Do not attempt to pay for the check at finance or the commissary.

"March Kessel"

Sgt. Mike Carll, Company A squad leader, stated that while the new standard is tougher, it has advantages. "Superior defences are the result," Carll asserted.

SSgt. Wade Wilson said, "We had the time to do it, to react and get the job done. After we were done, we were ready for the British attackers and knew they couldn't get it."

The crew-served weapons teams gained valuable experience and insight into their defensive operations. SSgt. Jacob Reed, weapons squad leader, stated, "We tried a lot of new things with the crew positions such as outside positions in abandoned vehicles."

Most of the soldiers involved in the defensive portion of "March Kessel" noted the strenuous demands placed upon them. Sp4 Dennis Calderon said, "I got very little sleep. It was tough but good training." Added Sp4 Raoul Vega, "Without the support of the other soldiers, it would have been a lot harder."

After laboring the many hours in Doughboy City, the Alpha Gators were ready for the aggressor forces. Roll after roll of concertina wire, barbed wire serving as tanglefoot, and numerous obstacles were in place to greet the attacking British forces and to deny them access to the occupied buildings in the city.

Artillery simulators and explosions prefaced the attack. Aggressor U.S. tanks and British reconnaissance vehicles that appeared near the area were "hit" by defending tanks and anti-tank missiles. The attackers that did manage to breach a few of the positions and wire could gain little advantage and were forced to withdraw fairly quickly by the counter-attacking "Gators." Those who were slow in withdrawing were taken prisoner and transported to the rear.

Meanwhile, Company B soldiers attacked the defending French soldiers at Parks Range with similar results.

The operation tested the soldiers stamina and knowledge of Combat-in-Cities techniques. It also placed demands upon the battalion's logistical ability with the volume of barrier material delivered to the defenders. As Bullard noted, "It was the most realistic FTX to date."

Engineers add new dimension to FTX

by Kurtis Morley
42nd Engineer Company

Engineer operations played a key role in last week's tripartite exercise, "March Kessel."

The 2nd platoon and heavy equipment section represented Combat Support Battalion's 42nd Engineer Company in performing a list of support missions. Their responsibilities included providing two combat engineer squads, a maneuver damage repair team, clean-up team and a battlefield demolition squad.

SSgt. Arsenio Vega and SSgt. Ashton Flores led their engineer squads through offensive operations against stiff defenses at both Ruhleben Fighting City and Parks Range. Each squad was attached to an aggressor company composed of infantry and armor elements.

Their primary engineer mission was directed toward increasing the mobility of assaulting forces. Some of these tasks included the simulated breaching of wire, minefields and solid obstacles. Each squad, however, was capable of accomplishing survivability, counter-mobility and general engineer missions as well.

Numerous special effects were created especially for the Allied Combat-in-Cities training at Parks Range by an engineer squad under the direction of Sgt. Timothy Acevez. Their goal was to stimulate the senses of participating soldiers with as much battle realism as safely possible.

On Thursday morning, their efforts produced the necessary and convincing simulations of bursting shells, smoking rubble and flaming wreckage to depict a battlefield atmosphere.

The 42nd Engineer heavy equipment section remained on call throughout the three day FTX. Led by Sgt. Edward Powell, they accomplished general support requirements and were tasked with cleaning up the maneuver damage at Parks Range. Junked vehicles were carried to locations throughout Doughboy City during exercise preparations. The section's heavy equipment was also utilized for heavy duty clean-up operations.

Benefits of 42nd Engineer operations were shared by all who participated in the exercise. The U.S. and British units were afforded a great opportunity to utilize combat engineer support in a tactical situation. Capabilities of engineer heavy equipment were demonstrated and demolitions and special effects delivered an effective combat environment with a high regard for the safety of personnel.

Eagles end Bear's bid for title

by Tom Jackson

Either game could have gone either way but the Berlin Bears surrendered their last chance to ascend to the USAREUR basketball finals when the Wiesbaden Eagles stopped the Bear's last minute scoring drive and won 89-85 Saturday at the Sports Center Gym.

Although the Bears dominated the first half of Saturday's game and enjoyed a 10 point lead for some time, the Eagles rallied in the closing six minutes of the half and stayed competitive throughout the second half.

Berlin scored the first basket of the game and after settling into a good pace led the Eagles 47-36 after the first 12 minutes of play. But in the last minutes of the first half the Eagles closed in with a full court press. Their defense stopped the Bears cold and their offense picked up the last 10 points of the half putting them just one point under Berlin 47-46.

At the start of the second half both teams struggled to gain the upper hand. Wiesbaden finally pulled ahead and stayed there 54-53 with 16:30 left in the game.

Not wanting to fall victim to Berlin's explosive fast break potential, the Eagles wisely switched to a ball control game. Despite the ice, the Bears twice battled to within three points of evening the score but several costly turnovers allowed the Eagles to hang on to their lead.

In the first half Berlin committed eight turnovers to Wiesbaden's 14, but in the second half Berlin gave up the ball 12 times to Wiesbaden's six.

With less than three minutes remaining in the game Berlin's Jerry Brackett connected on a free throw to narrow the gap 80-77. The Eagles however, countered with a crucial offensive rebound and a basket that drew a foul for a three point play that put it at 83-77.

Berlin again refused to surrender when in the last minute Willie Upshaw sank a pair of free throws to make it 86-83.

But Wiesbaden, as they had so many times in both games, went to the foul line for two more points and followed that up with a layup. In the final seconds Upshaw countered with a driving layup of his own to end the game 89-85 in Wiesbaden's favor.

Brackett was Berlin's hottest hitter on Saturday sinking 30 points. Roderick Riley was next with 16, Chris Drayton sank 12 and Ernest Vinson hit 10.

In their first clash of the semi-finals Wiesbaden won on their home turf 84-69. But hidden behind that score was a wild, rough and tumble game that saw the lead change hands 15 times before the game's end.

Berlin carved out a 42-40 lead seconds before the halftime buzzer when Robert Izzard connected on two foul shots.

Berlin led 61-59 at the seven minute mark when the Eagles went on a five and a half minute scoring drive that gave them 14 points to Berlin's three and a lead of 73-64.

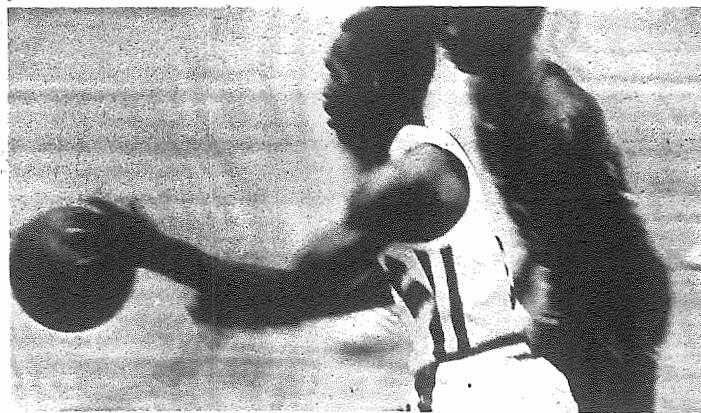

As was to be repeated in Saturday's game the Eagles with 1:10 remaining held fast to the foul line and dropped in seven points to give them the 84-69 victory.

High scorers for Berlin were Riley with 18 points, Brackett with 14 and Izzard with 9.

Spring sports specials

Spring is in the air and along with it comes your chance to earn the German Sports Medal. Testing will consist of requirements in five different categories of sport and category 1, swimming, must be completed first. Swimming is tested at Andrews Pool and the track and field events are held in Yankee Stadium at Andrews Barracks. For more information on how to earn this distinguished medal call Tom Kearney or Don Carter at the MSAD Sports Office at 819-6168.

The Run For Your Life program is open to all active duty military, Department of Defense civilians and the family members of both groups. Active duty military wishing to become involved with the Run For Your Life program should contact their unit A and R NCOs. Civilians and family members should contact the MSAD Sports Office first.

Before starting the program each individual must fill out an application and for those over 40 years of age, a physical examination should be attached to the application.

Patches and certificates are awarded at 50, 100, 150, 200, 300, 500, 800, 1000, 2500, 7500, and 10,000 miles. On completion of each increment, the progress schedule should be turned in to the A and R NCO or directly to the MSAD Sports Office.

Berlin Scoreboard

Yanks edged out

They scored the first points, they led at the half, regained the lead in the third quarter and held it until the final minutes when the German BSC team scored on a desperate try to snatch a victory from the Berlin Yanks Rugby Football Club at McNair's Defender Field Sunday.

The Yanks 10-9 loss proved to be one of their toughest defensive battles of the season. All nine of their points came from penalty kicks as did all six of the visitors points until their last minute try.

Peter Welsch put the Yanks on top early with a three point penalty kick. The BSC team countered with their own three pointer 10 minutes later but Welsch booted in another at the close of the half to give the Yanks a 6-3 lead.

The Germans caught up quickly in the second half but Welsch scored again near the end of the third quarter to give the Yanks a 9-6 lead.

In the closing seconds however, the German club ran one into the end-zone and took the lead and the game 10-9.

The loss puts the Yanks at 3-4 for the season. Their next game will be against Gatow at Gatow, Sunday at 2 p.m. goal each. Craig Mahek supported the offensive attack from right wing with two assists and several key plays.

For the girls, Kathy and Wendy Wurzbarger spearheaded a tough defense that denied Nürnberg any scoring opportunities. On the offense Debbie Macauley with three goals led the attack supported by Joanne Prokopowicz, Peggy Van Gorder and Didi Crawford with one goal each.

Cudas strike again

Two European Forces Swim League records were set at Andrews Pool Sunday by Bear-A-Cudas swimmer Aryn Ballard during the team's lopsided 303-110 victory over the Munich Dolphins.

But despite the lack of competition, Ballard broke the record in the 10-under girl's long course 50-meter freestyle with a time of 33.32 and the record in the 50-meter butterfly with 36.13.

Three blue ribbons were earned by Ballard, Casey Bunton and Laura Jacoby.

Two first place honors were brought home by Kirstin Walsh, Kathleen Belz, Troy Johnson, Peter Rigney and Bethany Ballard.

Single winners included Cindi Honderd, Anne Doucette, Marla Minderman, Gretchen Gruett, Eddie Wucher, Chris Phipps, Nona Ballard, Cindi Lawrence, Knut Amis and Todd Walsh.

This win boosts the team record to 9-2, placing them third behind SHAPE and Kaiserslautern in the EFSL.

The Bear-A-Cudas now have three weeks to train for the final competition of the nine month swim season. Thirty-eight Berlin swimmers and two alternates have qualified for the EFSL Individual Invitational Championships to be held April 8, at Munich's Olympic Stadium Pool.

BAHS soccer opens

The Berlin American High School Varsity Soccer season opened Saturday at Nürnberg with the girls team bringing home a 6-0 victory and the boys battling to a 4-4 tie. The Junior Varsity boys won 5-0 while the JV girls were edged out 3-0.

Scoring for the boys were Doug Magruder with two goals and Tom Moore and Tom Neizert with one

Golf tournament

How's your handicap? The first golf tournament of the season will start April 1, at the Berlin Golf Course. The tournament will be a four person scramble and is open to everyone who has an established handicap at the club. Extensive world-wide changes in golfing rules make it a good idea to sign up and get the info soon. Call the Golf Shop at 819-6533.

from March 26 through April 13. Those who register by then will be eligible to participate in the YA spring training sessions from April 16 to May 5.

For more information on these and other events call the YA Sports department at 819-6247.

Ladies golf

The Berlin Womens Golf Association invites all ladies interested in playing or learning how to play golf this summer to come out to the U.S. Golf and Country Club on April 3, at 7 p.m. for a meeting. Coffee will be served. For information call Ann Hanson at 832-6648.

Rod and gun shoot

Do pop-up targets bore you? The Berlin Rod and Gun Club will sponsor a slow-fire Rifle-Bowling Pin Shoot at Rose Range Saturday. That's right, bowling pins. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the match is open to all firers with separate classes for open and telescopic sights. Rifles are available for those who don't own one. Prizes and awards following. For information call Mayo Neyland at 819-6001/6297.

Photographer needed

Can you take sports photos that have snap and sparkle? The Observer is looking for an extra photographer to take photos of sporting events in the command on either Saturdays or Sundays. The job is not a paid position but if you own and can operate a 35mm camera, we will do the processing and printing and blow 'em up nice and big for all the world to see. If interested call 819-6122 and ask for Sp4 Jackson.

YA sports

The Youth Activities Division has a number of sports and outdoor activities slated for the coming months.

A teen jog will be held April 7 from 1-3 p.m. starting at the YA Building. Early registration for baseball and softball players age 13 to 19 who are interested in getting into condition for the travel league programs will run

Police run

Wassa matter McNair, Andrews and all you tankers out there? Are the Polizei too fast for your legs? They would like to find out. They've invited all Americans to compete in their annual Cross Country Berlin Police Run.

This five kilometer run will start at the Grunewald Forest parking lot on Fischerhüttenweg promptly at 10 a.m., April 4. Results will be judged on a ten-man team basis. The Americans haven't won this race in nine years and rumor has it that the American civilians are putting together a tough team. So where are those military teams? Deadline for entry is close of business Wednesday. Call Tom Kearney at 819-6768 for sign up and information.

The Circus Busch-Roland is in town and celebrating their 100th year. They've set up their big top at Potsdamer Brücke, near the U-Bahn station Gleisdreieck. Performances weekdays are at 3 and 7:30 p.m. and on Sundays at 3 and 6:15 p.m. The anniversary gala performance is scheduled for Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Advance tickets are available at any downtown ticket agency or have them reserved by calling the circus box office at 262-6666.

Weekend happenings

Haute Nature is the title of a fashion show combining 'feel good' clothing with breakdancing. It all happens tonight at the Kombinat, 61 Eberstrasse, at 8:30 p.m.

Feline fanciers are meeting tomorrow and Sunday at the Berliner Kindl Festsäle. More than 500 cats from five European countries will vie for trophies and titles. The competition is open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. both days. Admission is DM 5 for adults with children and students paying half price. The Festsäle is located at 217 Hermannstrasse, U-Bahn Boddinstrasse.

The Hotel InterContinental is presently a paradise for collectors. For the first time, the Norddeutschen Antiquitäten-Tage (North German Antique Days) are being held in Berlin. Until Sunday you can view the art, coins, paintings and porcelain from more than 40 vendors, some dating back as far as 1860. The show is open this weekend from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and admission is DM 8.

Blues fans will want to make it to the Quasimodo this weekend. The Luther Allison Band, with their 'high energy blues,' will play tonight, tomorrow and Sunday at 10 p.m. The Quasi can be found at 12a Kantstrasse.

The Polizei Sport Show takes place at the Deutschlandhalle tomorrow. The show runs from 3-6 p.m. tomorrow and proceeds from the show go to Weisser Ring, a charity for victims of criminal violence. Tickets are DM 8.

The Loft in the Metropol celebrates its first year tomorrow with a party. Bands include Dislocation Dance, Spermaton, Die Ärzte and Die Zwei, just to name a few. It begins at 9 p.m. and you can get there by underground to Nollendorfplatz.

Gil Scott-Heron plays at the Quartier Latin tomorrow beginning at 9 p.m. The Latin Quarter is located at 96 Potsdamer Strasse.

The Go-In hosts its 61st Night of Irish, English and Scottish folksinging Sunday. The pub is located at 17 Bleibtreustrasse.

During the week

A rock band from the '60s reappears at Joe's on the Ku'damm Monday and Tuesday. The Searchers (probably best known for "Needles and Pins") will perform both evenings at 9. Joe's is located at 225-226 Kurfürstendamm.

Another musical act in town for a two-day stay Monday and Tuesday is the New York blues artist Louisiana Red. He's appearing at the Quasimodo and his show begins each night at 10.

The Leeds University Workshop Theater presents Julius Caesar by William Shakespeare Tuesday and Wednesday at the British Council, 20 Hardenbergstrasse. Curtain time for both performances is 8 p.m. For more information, call 31-0176.

Amerika Haus, in conjunction with the Literarisches Colloquium Berlin, presents a literary evening with San Francisco-based poet and playwright Michael McClure Tuesday. McClure has won best play Obie Awards for The Beard, an imaginary dialogue between Billy the Kid and Jean Harlow, and the dramatic fable Josefine, the Mousesinger. The author will read selections of his poetry from The Daily Vision, Fragments of Perseus, Jaguar Skies and September Blackberries beginning at 8 p.m. Amerika Haus is located at 22-24 Hardenbergstrasse. Admission is free.

Wednesday, you can catch the rock-reggae band Crucial, from England, at the Loft in Metropol. They start playing at 9 p.m.

Also on Wednesday, the Slickaphonics with "the futuristic funk that keeps you dancing" will appear at Quasimodo. They'll be performing there through Friday. The show starts each night at 10.

The British Council Film Club offers Brothers and Sisters Thursday at 6 and 8:30 p.m. The movie, by independent film-maker Richard Woolley, has been described as a subversive thriller, using the familiar situations of the thriller as a vehicle for exploring the ways in which men relate to women. The film club is located at 20 Hardenbergstrasse and admission for non-members is DM 5.

The Amerika Haus is currently exhibiting New Art from a New City: Houston daily except Sundays through May 12. The gallery is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.
