Redesignation — it's coming in June

by Mike Gelfand.

Redesignation, a rumor, a lot of work and a whole lot of questions.

By now, most people in the community have at least heard a rumor about redesignation. What it means is that the three infantry battalions will no longer be part of the 6th Infantry Regiment.

At the Brigade Review in June, the infantry will take on new insignia as they become the 4th, 5th and 6th Battalions of the 502nd Infantry Regiment.

The only thing this change will mean is that they will be part of the new regiment, there will be no movement of soldiers or equipment, and the mission of the units will stay the same.

In 1982 the Army decided that it needed something new to help reduce personnel turbulence, build cohesion and give soldiers in the combat arms a meaningful and lasting sense of belonging.

That's when they came up with the "New Manning System," and the part of it the Berlin Brigade will be involved with, the "Regimental System." Under this system, the brigade will have three battalions of the six making up the 502nd Infantry Regiment. The other three will be state side units in the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault).

For now this system will only affect companies here with the 11B, 11C and 11H MOSs and officers with the 11 Specialty.

Over the next few weeks, the Observer will be running a series of articles on the "New Manning System," the "Regimental System," the 502nd Regiment and its history as well as the 6th Regiment and its history and where it goes from here.

More brigade soldiers qualify as commandos

by Roger Lund
2nd Battalion Correspondent

More than 30 members of the Berlin Brigade, principally from 2nd Battalion, have been enduring the rigors of the French commando course.

The Center for Commando Training is located at Napoleon Barracks in the French sector. The three-week course is designed to instruct soldiers on the initial phases of commando training.

During the weeks of intensive training, hand to hand combat, demolitions, boat crossings on the Havel and Tegel lakes, climbing and rappelling took place. SFC Theodore Bush, of 2nd Battalion's Company C, saw the training as building confidence.

"You had to learn to work in high places, to jump, to work on thin cables.

Your confidence increased as you used ropes to climb sides of buildings and rock formations such as Teufelsberg and Humbolt Bunker," noted Bush.

The first two weeks of training focused on classes and daily runs through the obstacle course. Additionally, land navigation in wooded areas such as the Grunewald and Tegel Forest took place. The woods were not the only areas for navigation training, however.

The soldiers would navigate on the water using boats and moving from point to point.

Language was no barrier to communication between the American and French forces. An interpreter from Field Station Berlin was in the course and aided communications. If a problem developed, sign language was used.

Toward the end of the second week of training, squad level competition was held. The "Rally Test" was a timed exercise that took place over a one night period. It emphasized such skills as climbing, building a rope bridge, boat crossing, land navigation, demolitions and litter carrying of a patient. This last exercise saw "wounded" soldiers moved over obstacles and raised and lowered from buildings.

As many of the soldiers explained, the tasks forced them to work as a team. A squad from 2nd Platoon, Company C was the first place finisher. For their success, shirts with the commando insignia were given to each member of the squad.

The final week of commando training focused on practical applications of what was learned during the previous two weeks. It was a way to move as a commando on ropes, next to buildings and through woods undetected and unseen.

Many of the soldiers involved expressed their appreciation to train with the French and to see how they train tactically. "It broke down the apparent barriers between the two forces and increased our awareness of the alliance with the French," said 2nd Lt. Garland Payne, Company C. "It enhanced interoperability between the forces and built strong friendships."

After the training and evaluations were completed, graduation ceremonies for the Guardians and other members of the course took place at Napoleon Barracks March 24. The graduates were awarded certificates and medallions indicating they successfully braved all the commando center offered them.

THE WILL

The question that many young people ask, "What's so important about having a will?" can be answered very simply.

A will lets you decide who will get what part of your estate when you die. In other words, it lets you dispose of your personal and real property in the manner you want.

If you are married, having a will becomes even more important. Through a will you will decide not only who gets your estate, but also you will have a say in who will be responsible for looking after minor children and their shares of what you own.

Whether you own only the clothes on your back and have a car or have equity in a house, other parcels of real property, bank accounts, stocks and the like, a will is a necessity if you want to control who gets what. In fact, a will is the only way you can retain control over the way your estate will be handled.

Since a will has no legal effect until you do die, it can be changed as your circumstances change. In other words, if you marry, you can include your spouse and family; if you divorce, you can alter your will accordingly.

In legal terms, a person without a will is said to have died "intestate" and the laws of intestacy apply. The same thing happens if a person writes a will and it is declared invalid because it is not legally acceptable for one reason or another.

"Intestacy" is a legal term meaning the deceased died without making arrangements for the settlement of his or her estate and all assets must therefore be distributed according to state laws. If you die without a will, your property will be distributed as specified in the laws of your state of legal residence, or home state as it is called.

These laws vary from state to state. This is one marked disadvantage of not having a will prepared. Another disadvantage is that state laws may provide for property division among persons you would not have chosen to leave such property.

Under most state laws in the absence of a will, not all of your estate would go to your surviving spouse if you have children by a present or former marriage. The children would inherit a portion of your estate in their own rights regardless of their ages at the time.

Generally speaking, the wife or husband would inherit one-third to one-half of the estate and the children would share the balance.

When a wife or husband but not no children are left, the surviving spouse may get the entire estate under the laws of some states. But in other states, the surviving spouse gets only a portion of the estate, usually one-half or one-third, with the remainder going to the deceased's parents, brothers and sisters and, in some states, even nieces and nephews.

When only the children are left, they receive the property in equal shares. When there are no heirs, the estate goes to the state.

Another disadvantage of not having a will is that a court appointed administrator is required. This means the person appointed may or may not be someone you would have selected. A portion of your estate will have to go for paying the administrator's fees. Such fees can run into thousands of dollars, consuming money that otherwise would have gone to your heirs.

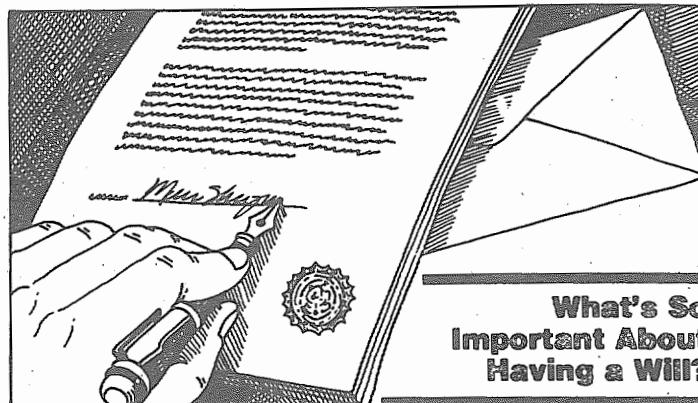

A question many married couples ask is "Should both spouses have wills?"

The answer is simple — yes. Spouses frequently make reciprocal wills, that is wills that will complement each other. For example, each spouse will provide for the other spouse and then the children, appoint the same guardian and distribute the estate in the same general manner.

You and you alone have control over how your estate will be distributed and that control can very simply be exercised by drawing up a will.

Today, when many families are not original families (husband or wife or both have children from former marriages), it is even more necessary for one to provide ahead of time for the division of his or her property.

Thinking about the various ways you could draw up your will provides an opportunity for family consultations and agreement on certain decisions. It also provides a natural way of forcing the family group to recognize the possibility of the death of the husband or wife, mother or father, and as a result make rational plans broader than just drawing up a will.

VIP days

The city of Baden-Baden, West Germany has something special coming up — the city has designated June 2 and 3 as "American VIP Days."

Organizers of the VIP days estimate more than 6,000 Americans will be in the city during the Baden-Sollingen Canadian Club Volksmarch, to be held June 2 and 3. The city is offering American visitors reduced hotel rates, free tours, half price entrance to the casino and a fest in the Schloss.

Baden-Baden is located 30 kilometers south of Karlsruhe on Autobahn 5 and is known for being the most densely-wooded holiday resort in all of Germany.

For more information about the VIP days, the Canadian volksmarch or the city, write:

If you write before May 1, the city will send you a free city merchant discount coupon book.

Mid-term soldiers

There are now tougher general and skill qualification criteria for mid-term soldiers who want to reenlist, say officials in the Army's Office of the Chief of Staff for Personnel.

Trainability requirements for mid-term soldiers are:

- Those soldiers tested on the Armed Forces Services Vocational Aptitude Battery before Jan. 1, 1976, or on or after Oct. 1, 1980, must have two aptitude area scores (other than GT) of 85 or higher and a GT score of 100 or higher.

- Those soldiers tested on the ASVAB on or after Jan. 1, 1976, but before Oct. 1, 1980, must have two aptitude area scores (other than GT) of 90 or higher and a GT score of 107 or higher.

- Soldiers who verify their SQT with a score of 80 or higher as shown on the Individual Soldier's Report are exempt from all area aptitude score requirements.

- Soldiers who verify their SQT with a score of 60 to 79 as shown on the ISR are exempt from all ASVAB scores except the GT score.

- Soldiers who have no SQT or who fail to verify the SQT must meet all score requirements.

Soldiers not on overseas assignment and who fail to meet the above requirements may with general court-martial convening authority be extended until April 1, 1985 for the purpose of retraining or retesting to meet the new criteria.

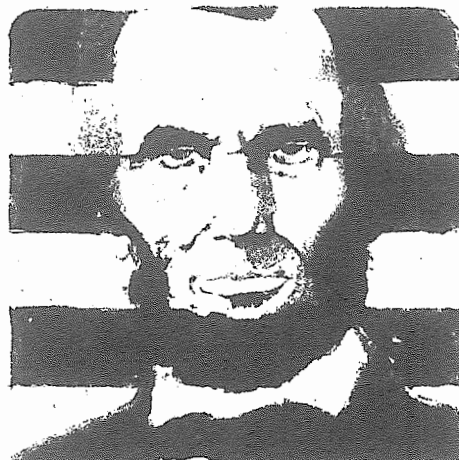

Soldiers who are on overseas assignment instructions may with GCMCA approval be extended for the minimum time necessary to complete the appropriate overseas tour or until April 1, 1985, whichever is longer.

Bus rules

Wear of the yellow PT uniform is not allowed on Berlin civilian buses, U-Bahns or military buses, remind transportation officials.

They also ask that users of the military buses use common courtesy. Fellow passengers need a seat for safety, so place luggage or packages in the compartment underneath the bus where it belongs.

Drivers will allow you time to take your packages out at your stop. This practice is much friendlier and follows existing safety regulations, they add.

Requirements set for S. F. tab

Eligibility requirements for the Special Forces tab, including the retroactive award of it, have been set by MILPERCEN.

Those who successfully complete the Special Forces Qualification Course or the reserve component SFQC and are awarded the additional skill identifier 5G or suffix "S" will be awarded the new tab, according to a message from Department of the Army.

Those awarded an MOS in the new special operations career field also will be authorized award of the tab.

Authority to wear the new tab rests with the commander of John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Center, Fort Bragg, N.C., according to the message. In addition to awarding the tab to those who complete their Green Beret training now, the JFKSWC commander also may award the tab retroactively.

Those eligible for retroactive award include active and reserve component soldiers awarded the "S," ASI 5G or prefix "3," used to identify Special Forces-qualified soldiers years ago.

Also eligible for retroactive award of the tab are soldiers who served in combat for at least 120 days (or for a shorter period if wounds received in action resulted in medical evacuation) as an enlisted member or company grade officer with a Special Forces operational "A" detachment and were awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge or Combat Medical Badge. An "agency relationship" exists when an individual (sponsor) authorizes a person or persons to act on his or her behalf. The existence and use of a joint checking account by a family member or the absence of a letter of disclaimer indicates a valid agency relationship between family members and their sponsors.

Abuse of check cashing privileges by family members acting as an agent may result in deduction of the amount of the dishonored check, including bank and service charges, from the sponsor's pay if the check is not promptly redeemed.

The information listed above means that if you, as the sponsor, have a joint checking account with your family members, you are responsible for that account.

If your family member(s) writes a dishonored check and it is not redeemed within the grace period, your check cashing privileges will be suspended at all U.S. military check cashing facilities, your name placed on the dishonored check list, your I.D. card overstamped and in some cases, the amount of the dishonored check may be deducted from your pay.

A sponsor wishing to disclaim responsibility for the acts of their family members may file a letter of disclaimer with the Check Control Office, Bldg. 1, Room 0041, Clay Headquarters.

Since some facilities deny check cashing privileges to family members whose sponsors have filed a letter of disclaimer, the sponsor should make the family member(s) aware of this privilege denial.

Be careful if you have a joint checking account. Make sure everyone named on the account knows how to correctly maintain the account. The Check Control Office offers weekly classes on checking account maintenance. To schedule attendance for classes or for further information on checking accounts, contact the Check Control Office at 819-6678.

Crafts winner

Sgt. Maj. Joseph Chester, USACC Berlin, used his spare time and hobby to sweep the glass category in the 1984 USAREUR Designer-Craftsman Contest.

His entry "Windows" was judged the best and sent forward to Fort Huachuca, Ariz. for All-Army competition.

this category are those who met the criteria for the badges during that duty but had them awarded earlier.

Active or reserve soldiers who served for at least 120 days (or a lesser period if wounded and medically evacuated) as company grade officers or enlisted members of selected reconnaissance strike forces also are eligible for the tab. The must have earned the CIB or CMB during that duty or been eligible had they not been awarded earlier.

This category covers strike forces or recon teams under the control of the Military Assistance Command, Vietnam, Studies and Observation Group, Combat Control North or South.

Finally, those who served in combat for 120 days or more (or a lesser period if wounded and medically evacuated) before 1955 as an officer or enlisted member of a special operations unit, other than the Rangers, may qualify for the tab.

Those authorized to wear the tab will have permanent orders cut reflecting that authority, according to the message. Furthermore, it said, the tab can be revoked by the JFKSWC commander if the soldier is removed from Special Forces status for cause.

After initial award of the tab, those who voluntarily terminate Special Forces duty before completing at least 18 months of satisfactory service in a Green Beret unit can also have their tabs revoked. (ARNews)

Campus smoking — a burning issue

by Sandra L. Doty

At the November meeting of the Berlin American High School PTSA, a parental letter was read expressing concern about the current on-campus student smoking policy at the school.

This introduced a lively discussion into the meeting which has continued "in the wings" among various concerned parents and teachers. As a result, this issue is due to come before the membership at the April 18 PTSA meeting in the form of a formal resolution asking for a total ban of student smoking on campus.

One of the primary reasons behind this resolution is the fact that BAHS houses not just high school-aged students but approximately 300 junior high students as well.

During this most difficult of transitional ages, young persons are seeking to establish their identity as young adults; seeing the example of their older peers seems to more greatly influence their behavior than any other factor. The designated smoking areas are highly visible, in central areas of the campus, which may glamorize those allowed this special privilege.

Also, it has been noted by parents, teachers and students that having designated smoking areas has not eliminated the problem of students smoking in restrooms and buses and other non-designated areas.

A safety factor, which needs to be considered was pointed out by Cosmetology teacher Patty Beech, who has noticed several students with singed hair and clothing burns from the sometimes careless and sometimes intentional mishandling of student cigarettes.

Smoking effects.

It is hardly necessary to quote the many studies and reports which have conclusively proven the detrimental effects of smoking. However, a most recent study presented in the British Medical Journal pertained particularly to teens who smoked and reported that "after two years of smoking more than a few cigarettes a day, the children who smoked appeared considerably less healthy than their non-smoking peers and showed some evidence of early obstruction of the airways."

During the discussion of this issue at the November PTSA meeting, Dr. Huston Jack, Jr., principal of BAHS, stated that despite Department of Defense regulations pertaining to smoking in federal buildings, he had designated student smoking areas to eliminate smoking in restrooms and other unauthorized areas.

A brief survey of eight out of the 17 DoDDs High Schools in Germany which house students in grades 7-12 revealed that six of eight have a 'No Smoking' policy in their schools.

Some smoking area away from the school grounds is allowed but it is usually out of sight of the school. None of the schools reported any problems with enforcing this policy or with student vandalism because of it, although the assistant principal at Nürnberg High School said that there was resistance by the students at first; and some community opposition when the smokers started using their housing area as a gathering place.

But "persistent enforcement by both, the school administration and the military police has solved these problems, and the general student body is very satisfied to have smoke-free restrooms." He also stated that in considering such a change in policy, one must bear in mind that it will present problems at first, but the long-range view of the overall positive benefits to all concerned must be kept in mind.

Teacher feedback

It cannot be denied that should such a ban be put in effect, there will be enforcement problems for the administration and teachers. The Overseas Education Association representative, Mary Rekucki, polled the teachers on their feelings about such a change in school policy at BAHS with the following results and comments:

Sixteen teachers were for banning student smoking on campus with their position aptly summed up in the statement of Mrs. Bryner: "Students should not smoke at school."

Eighteen teachers were against banning student smoking on campus. Six teachers were absent the day of the poll; therefore the 34 who responded represent 85 percent of the BAHS teachers. Their feeling ran the gamut from Mr. Eichner's "Yes—this should eliminate 75 percent or more (of the smokers)—let the rest do it and suffer if caught," to Mrs. Poethke's "No—parents allow students to purchase cigarettes or they purchase them for their children. I don't think it could be enforced."

Many teachers felt as did Mrs. Bryner that "the difficulty is the enforcement of such a policy, but it is possible."

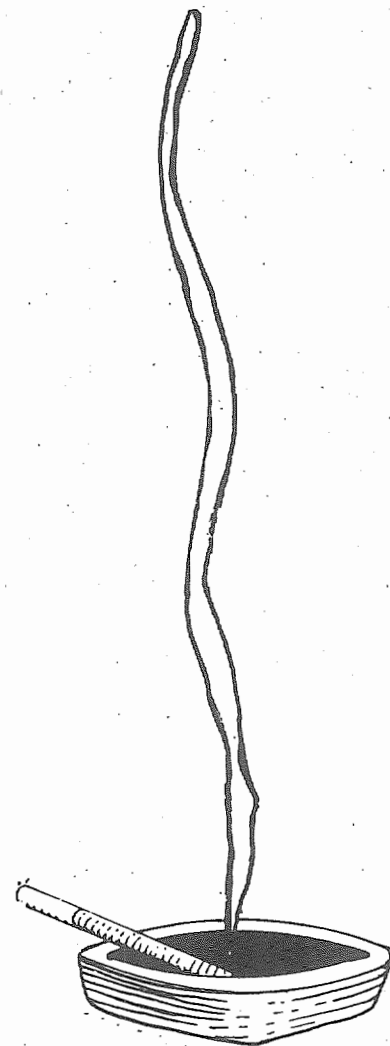

Several teachers felt as Mrs. Smatlak: "I believe in such a policy, but feel it would be impossible to uniformly enforce. I would rather have them smoking at designated points outside than polluting and dirtying the bathrooms." Some teachers expressed a concern about the increase in their work load in policing such a policy.

As a result of coaches strong feelings about the negative effects of smoking on athletic performance, students wishing to play team sports (and their parents) must sign a sport participation contract. In it is a brief statement to the effect that if caught using tobacco, the player will be suspended from the next game on the first offense, suspended from the team on the second. This policy is accepted by the students with little comment. Enforcement has not been seen as a problem.

Student feedback

Student comments by both the smokers and non-smokers give a different insight into the question of banning student smoking at BAHS:

Smoker Anja Beier: "Kids will smoke whether or not their parents let them. They can buy cigarettes on the economy and smoke out of the home. Kids should get smoking permits from their parents to let them smoke at school. The school is not a position to decide whether or not the students should be allowed to smoke."

Non-smoker Peggy Van Gorder: "If the privilege of the smoking area is denied to the students, they will simply smoke in the bathrooms more than they do now. The problem of smoke-filled stalls and ash-covered toilet seats is bad enough; it does not need to be compounded by the closing of the smoking area."

Smoker Joe Rivera: "The students will smoke with or without an authorized area. It will save the students and the administrators the trouble of suspensions and detentions if the smoking area is kept."

Smoker Janette Juris: "If the teachers and administrators are provided with smoking areas, then the students should be as well. The student's smoking area is outside, causing no inconvenience to non-smokers. Most of the students are old enough to decide for themselves whether or not they should smoke. The smoking area should be provided for those who choose to do so."

It is easy to see that all sides of this issue present credible arguments. It will be difficult to come to a solution satisfactory to all factions. Parent Teacher Student Associations were created as a forum for issues such as this. They offer an open environment for all sides to air their views and come to an understanding of other positions on the question as well as to hopefully come up with an amenable compromise for all parties concerned.

All views may be expressed at the April 18 meeting which will commence at 6:30 p.m. in the Harnack House Theater Room. Also at this meeting, the nominees for next year's Executive Committee will be presented to the membership and the students will present an uniquely individualized Talent Show complete with break dancing and balancing acts.

4th Battalion works on friendship

by Damon Elder
4th Battalion Correspondent

Last week, members of the 4th Battalion participated in two events designed to strengthen the valuable bonds between the battalion, its Allies and the Berlin community.

The Support Platoon, led by CWO 2 Albert Moore and Capt. Craig MacAllister, traveled to the British sector April 4 to spend the day with the support section of 1st Battalion, Prince of Wales Own Regiment of Yorkshire. A few days later, the officers of the battalion hosted Zehlendorf officials in an afternoon of basketball and an evening of comradeship.

The program for the day with IPWO centered around a tour of the British post, which included the maintenance shops and related facilities, midday meal and a competition between the British and American drivers on an obstacle course.

The driving competition provided the Allies with an opportunity to get a glimpse at the others' vehicles. The Americans for the first time climbed into Land Rovers and Bedfords while the British took charge of the "deuce-and-a-half" and Gamma Goat and the ever-popular jeep.

Soldiers on both sides of the exchange found much to be admired in their counterparts ways of doing things. Of particular interest to the Americans was the British regimental system.

The afternoon was concluded with a dayroom party, providing an opportunity to "swap war stories" and generally enjoy themselves. An exchange of scrolls was made, and as the Americans left promises to meet downtown and invitations to come to McNair could be heard around the room.

The basketball tournament between the Zehlendorfers and 4/6 officers took place at the McNair Gym April 7. Although many of the Berliners were unfamiliar with the game, the mixed Berlin-American teams quickly overcame any initial hesitancy and competition became quite vigorous if not exactly orthodox. The head officials, Lt. Col. Jerry Draper and Maj. Michael Virgin, kept the action moving and casualty rate low.

The cagers enjoyed dinner at a local sports club after the tourney. The teams were recognized for their efforts and trophies awarded to outstanding German players.

250 3/6 soldiers take Triad medals

by Thomas Powell
3rd Battalion Correspondent

More than 250 3rd Battalion soldiers received Triad awards from Brigade Commander Brig. Gen. Leroy N. Suddath Jr. in a ceremony Thursday at the Coliseum Theater, McNair Barracks.

Suddath presented gold, silver and bronze medals to soldiers who had excelled in physical fitness, marksmanship and soldier skills during the past year.

The top gold award was presented to Sgt. Timothy T. Hamilton, assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company. A tracked vehicle mechanic assigned to the maintenance platoon, he made a perfect score on the PT test, obtained a perfect score on his SQT and hit 39 of 40 targets at Keeren's Range to win top honors.

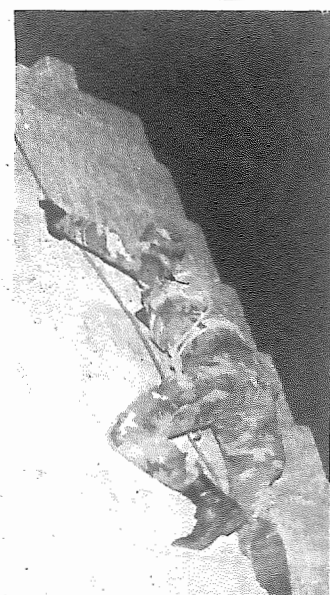

In addition, 15 soldiers received silver awards for high standards in all three events. Suddath presented an additional 294 bronze awards for outstanding performance in one or more individual events.

Though not absolutely sure, the soldiers of Company C, 4th Battalion thought they had achieved their objective when the last man crossed the two-mile run finish line. The objective — to win the battalion PT test competition. And win they did!

Company C compiled a PT test average of 264, the highest of any company in the brigade on a battalion administered PT test.

Their success is attributed to squad level PT. Starting in November, physical training in Company C was decentralized as a way of improving upper body strength by providing more training and attention to individual soldiers. A squad was defined as two men or more and squads were not mixed. The squad leader was responsible for leading his men in PT.

The only exception to squad level PT was platoon training on Wednesday. All squad PT was monitored by the company commander, executive officer, first sergeant, platoon leaders and sergeants by doing PT with a different squad each day.

As an incentive, a "Best Squad" was chosen each month. The award consisted of a plaque with the names of the best squad engraved on a plate. They also enjoyed a three-day pass.

Naturally, several of the company's soldiers had a positive reaction to achieving their goal. "We worked real hard to win and we deserved to win," said Sp4 D.O. Cochran. "Since going to squad level training I have achieved and even gone over my goal for the PT test."

In all, Company C had 11 perfect PT scores. The PT streamer was awarded to Capt. Rodney Davis and the company by Brigade Commander Brig. Gen. Leroy N. Suddath Jr. in an awards ceremony recently.

The unit's goal for the next PT test? 280!

BAHS soccer teams blast Baumholder

by Tom Jackson

After some mixed results at season's opening, the Berlin American High Schools or boys and girls varsity soccer teams blasted the visiting Baumholder teams Saturday with just the sort of scoring depth and defensive aggression that could very well propel them into the USAREUR championships.

The boys team obliterated their opponents 8-1 and the girls rolled up a 9-0 shutout.

Craig Mahek scored his second hat trick (three goals in one game) of the season. That alone would have been enough to win, but Steve McDonald, Doug Magruder, Thomas Neitzert, Jim LaBlanc and Danny Franklin each scored a goal as well — fair warning to future opponents that Berlin can score from nearly every position.

Magruder and Franklin had two assists each and Tim Murphy assisted on one goal. Phillip Schmoll, the boys coach commented that his team is once again back on the winning track and has a good chance at winning the championship.

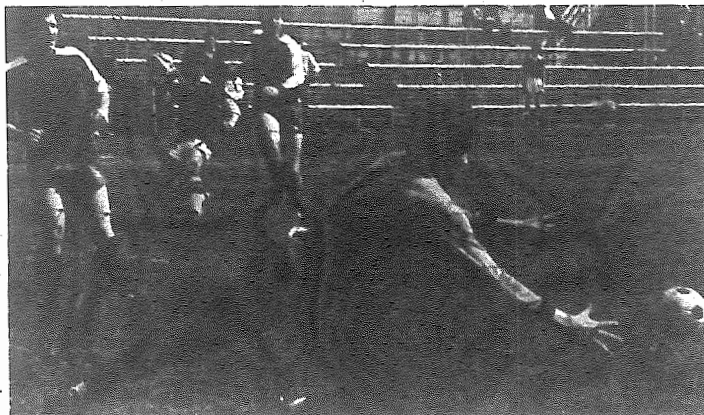

In the girls game, Peggy Van Gorder blasted in five goals. Four of these were unassisted and one assist was credited to Mellissa Murray. Didi Crawford scored one goal, assisted by Rachel Hennessee. Jessica Jacalone scored one goal with an assist from Van Gorder and Caroline Kelly booted in two goals, one unassisted and one assisted by Murray.

For the day, the Berlin girls had a total of 31 shots on goal to Baumholder's one. Girls coach Ray Babineau once again credited much of his teams defensive invincibility to Cathy and Wendy Wurzbarger.

The Wurzbarger sisters tallied up a total of 27 saves — a defensive wall so efficient that the Berlin goalie only got her hand on the ball twice during the entire game.

On to All-Army

Jacky Yzaguirre easily downed four opponents at Lindsay Air Station, Wiesbaden last weekend to become the USAREUR Womens Racquetball champion for 1984. She and a partner also captured second place in the women's double championship.

Also representing Berlin were Eddie Tata, John Aliosio, David Lealofi, and Warren Crecy Jr. All five were selected to represent Berlin after winning the 1984 USAB tournament last month. (Photo by Ernie Rangel)

New courts open at Harnack House

New tennis courts opened at the Harnack House Saturday with Maj. Gen. James G. Boatner, U.S. Commander Berlin, cutting the ribbon to the new gazebo.

Though the courts are located at the Harnack House they are open to the entire American community for regular play.

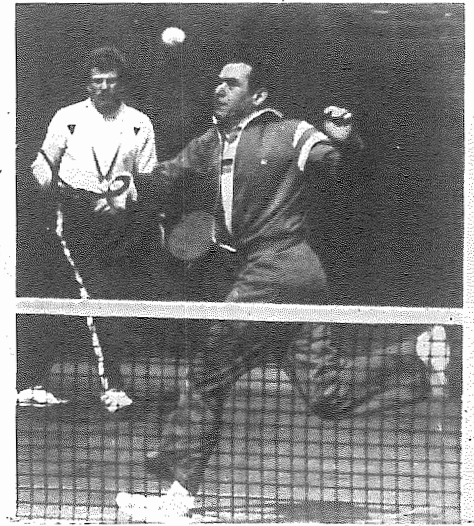

With the ceremonial part of the opening out of the way, attendees in tennis garb then drew numbers to see who would be the first to play on the three new courts, with their players taking turn every half hour.

The 14. Freie Berliner Kunstausstellung opens its doors 11 a.m. Sunday at the Funkturm Exhibition Grounds.

This year, the Free Berlin Art Exhibit offers nearly 2,300 artists and amateurs the opportunity to display their works for the public. Visitors interested in purchasing art, will find works offered in a bazaar at the exhibition.

Entrance to the 14. FBK is on Masurenallee. From Monday, the exhibit can be visited daily from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. until May 13. Guided tours will be conducted on Saturdays at 11 a.m. and a catalog listing the exhibited works costs DM 3.50. You can get there by underground to Theodor-Heuss-Platz or Kaiserdamm.

Weekend happenings

There are still tickets available for Festival Tango Argentino '84 at the Philharmonie tonight. The show, featuring Dino Saluzzi, Sexteto Mayor, Trio Mosalini, Beytelmann, Caratini, and the dance ensemble Malambo, begins at 8 p.m. Tickets range from DM 18 to DM 28.

A documentary in English, America: From Hitler to MX, will be presented at Galerie 70 tonight. The movie deals with the build up of military strength between the states and Germany since Hitler's era. The movie is being shown in conjunction with an exhibit, Disarmament: Impressions of the American Peace Movement. The show begins at 7 p.m. and the gallery can be found at 70 Schillerstrasse.

Tomorrow and Sunday, American mimist Pancho Poorman performs at Backstage, 1 Stuttgarter Platz. The show begins at 9 each evening.

The Alte TU Mensa hosts a folk festival tomorrow and Sunday at 8 each evening. Performing will be Dave Meany, Gusto, Skiffle Butlers, Bluesmen and Berlin Swinging Bears. The concert takes place at 12 Hardenbergstrasse.

In conjunction with the exhibit Frühlingwunder or Spring Wonder, an electronic new wave band (Spoons) plays at the Galerie im Körnerpark tomorrow at 8 p.m. The gallery is located on Schierker Strasse.

The 'Slice of Life' Theater Company is back again with their production of Jean Genet's The Maids. The show, in English, will be presented at the Statthaus Böcklerpark, U-Bahnhof Prinzenstrasse, tomorrow and Sunday at 8 p.m.

Sunday is German-British Friendship Day. It takes place in old Spandau between the Spandauer Markt and Carl-Schurz-Strasse. Entertainment, activities and refreshments can be enjoyed from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

You can start Sunday off with a jazz frühshoppen at the Main Hall of Tegel Airport. It starts at 11 a.m.

During the week

A video of Frank Zappa will be shown Monday at the Haus der Jugend Zehlendorf, 28 Argentisches Allee, at 4 p.m. For more information, call 807-2386.

Tuesday, the Amerika Haus shows another in its series of jazz films. This one features Nancy Wilson and her Trio, Shorty Rogers and his Giants, Stan Kenton with Big Band and June Christy and the Barney Kessel Trio. The show starts at 8 p.m. and Amerika Haus is located at 22-24 Hardenbergstrasse.

The Day After will be shown at Galerie 70 Thursday at 7 p.m.

If you feel like cruising down the river, there's good news for you. The Stern und Kreisschiffahrt offers boat rides daily from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. You can, weather permitting, get a two-hour cruise from Wannsee to Kladow, Peacock Island, Freedom Bridge and back for DM 7.40. You can catch the boat across from the Wannsee Bahnhof. The rides run until September and as the weather improves, more tours will be offered. If you plan to go as a group, call 810-0040 a day in advance for reservations.

German TV

You can enjoy a ballet night at home Sunday. Program III offers two dance pieces — Familienszenen by Oscar Araiz and music by Francis Poulenc and Giselle, a romantic ballet — at 8:15 p.m. Dancers include Rudolf Nurejev, Lynn Seymour and Monica Mason.

Monday's Night Studio presents the American movie Dreamland in the original version with German subtitles. It's the story of Lady B.J. who wants to make a career in blues, jazz and rock in the Big Apple. Movie time is 11 p.m. Monday on Program III.

Jazz Fest Berlin '83 with the Cecil Taylor Unit and Ballet comes to you on Thursday at 10:50 p.m. on Program III.

GODSPELL—This weekend is your last chance to see the musical at the Andrews Theater Center. Performances are tonight, tomorrow and Sunday at
