502nd Infantry

On this day we in Berlin bid farewell to the 6th Infantry, following its 34 years of faithful and honorable service in this wonderful city.

With its distinguished and proud heritage spanning more than 175 years, battalions of the 6th Infantry will continue to serve in both Europe and in the United States.

I know you all join me in wishing this honored unit goodspeed and good luck. We are all proud to have served with the 6th Infantry.

I am also proud and honored to have the opportunity to welcome the 502nd Infantry into the Berlin Brigade. Since its activation in 1942 the 502nd has been at the forefront of the Army, serving with distinction in both World War II and Vietnam. For its heroic and gallant action in the European Theater, the 502nd Regiment was awarded two Presidential Unit Citations and numerous foreign awards. In Vietnam, battalions of the 502nd also earned two Presidential Unit Citations while participating in 13 campaigns. The regiment brings a very distinguished and honorable history to Berlin.

As part of the Regimental System, the 4th, 5th and 6th Battalions of the 502nd in Berlin will share a common bond with sister battalions of the regiment at Fort Campbell, Kentucky. To reduce personnel turbulence, improve stability and enhance unit cohesion and loyalty, combat arms soldiers affiliated with the 502nd will serve regimental tours in either Fort Campbell or Berlin. The Berlin Brigade is extremely fortunate to participate in and share this affiliation.

Duty in the "Divided City" is a challenge the 502nd Infantry readily accepts. Through the professionalism and steadfastness of our soldiers and their leaders, the 502nd Infantry will stand as a symbol to the world of the determination of the western democracies to protect the rights of free men.

Welcome to the Berlin Brigade.

Reminiscing about duty with the 502nd in Vietnam

By Mike Warren

Ruck sacks were important to SFC James G. Witt, but duffle bags were not.

For Witt, now a member of Company A, 5th Battalion, those two items had great significance for him when he served with the 502nd in Vietnam in 1966 and 1967.

The burly blond Anderson, S.C. native joined the unit in September 1966, in Tuy Hoa, Vietnam. The unit was at a forward base camp, bivouacked in pup tents along a beach on the South China Sea.

"The first operation we went on was about 30 days long, during monsoon season. I think it rained 25 of those 30 days," Witt said.

One of the things Witt recalls at that time about the 502nd was the high morale of its troops. He cited confidence as a key factor. "Ninety percent of the guys had graduated from jump school at Fort Benning before they came to the 502nd," he said.

Witt's first job with the unit was a rifleman. He remained a rifleman until November, when he became his squad's grenadier. "At that time, we'd been in and out of a few little skirmishes, but we had little or no casualties," he said.

In late November, the 502nd pulled in to their command post for Thanksgiving dinner. The troops had more to give thanks for than a huge turkey dinner. They were all given new ruck sacks.

"At that time, everyone had a canvas ruck sack," Witt said. "When they (the ruck sacks) got wet, it seemed they weighed 20 pounds, empty. Everyone was given a new, nylon ruck sack." That really lifted their spirits, said Witt.

After several short missions, the 502nd moved to Nha Trang, a resort area and headquarters of the 5th Special Forces Group, for one day of "R and R."

In July 1967 the unit encountered its heaviest contact since Witt had joined it. They ran into a battalion-sized enemy force, and fought a 36-hour battle, with a lot of help from friendly tactical air support. The unit took extremely light casualties, and the morale was still very high, according to Witt.

Witt's final operation with the 502nd in Vietnam came in August. "We landed on a hill, and in the valley you could see the North Vietnamese Army regulars. We tried to move off the hill. The first squad moved into a saddle and got pinned down.

"The fire fight became so intense, we couldn't get off the hill. For the first time, we had to dig in. We had to stay on the hill all night. The fire fight lasted all night, illuminated by artillery and mortars." Witt said that his company lost about 10 soldiers, including his platoon leader, who was hit with a rocket.

Witt said that at some point the enemy reconsidered their attack and retreated. By the morning, the troops were able to move off the hill, and begin a seven day mopping and clearing operation.

Witt was not injured during his tour with the 502nd in Vietnam. "We had good squad leaders and NCOs," he said. "I tried to follow their instructions, and they must have been good, because I was never injured."

After that operation, Witt was granted three days of R and R at China Beach in Da Nang, and when he returned to the unit's base camp at Phan Rang, he had clearing papers and orders to the 82nd Airborne awaiting him.

His duffle bag was still with the bulk of the unit, and they had moved north for an operation. Witt had his choice of going north to retrieve the duffle bag, or to catch the "freedom bird" for home without it. He chose the latter.

"And I haven't seen that duffle bag since," he said.

USCOB Change of Command

Maj. Gen. John H. Mitchell assumed command of the U.S. Command and the U.S. Army Berlin Wednesday afternoon in the forecourt of Clay Headquarters.

Mitchell took over for Maj. Gen. James G. Boatner who has served as the USCOB since July 6, 1981. Boatner has been selected to be the Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, Force Development and Training for the Army Material Development and Readiness Command in Washington D.C.

Mitchell comes to Berlin after having served as the Director of Human Resources Development, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel for the United States Army.

More than 100 distinguished guests and dignitaries attended the change-of-command ceremony Wednesday including Eberhard Diepgen, West Berlin's governing mayor.

In his first official speech to the command, Mitchell reiterated a former Army commander's sentiments when he said, "It's a great day to be a soldier," and added that, "it's a great day for the Mitchell family."

In anticipation of his upcoming duties as the USCOB, Mitchell noted, "I am humbled and genuinely eager to begin working in this singularly unique brigade, with our distinguished allies and most important, with the two generations of Berliners who have captured the imagination and admiration of two generations of Americans."

In his more than 27 years of service, Mitchell, a native of Atlanta, Georgia, has served as commander of the 8th Battalion, 6th Artillery, 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam. He has served in the Office of Personnel Operations in Washington; as the Assistant Chief of Staff, G1 (Personnel), 8th Infantry Division, United States Army Europe; as executive officer and later as assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, USAREUR and 7th Army; as commander of Division Artillery and chief of staff, 1st Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Fort Riley, Kansas and as commander, Field Command, Defense Nuclear Agency, Kirtland Air Force Base, New Mexico.

Boatner, who now joins a long and distinguished list of former USCOBs, served as a rifle platoon leader, rifle company commander and light infantry battalion commander in combat during the Korean and Vietnam wars.

His staff experience, in addition to regimental and division assignments includes three tours on the Army Staff in operations, comptrollership and personnel. He has also served as military assistant to the Deputy Secretary of Defense. His most recent command experience before coming to Berlin includes command of the 82nd Airborne Division Support Command and the Alaskan Brigade.

In his parting comments Boatner said that in the last three years he has seen a continually improving climate of professionalism and spirit in all areas of the command, Army, Air Force, State and diplomatic missions and family members.

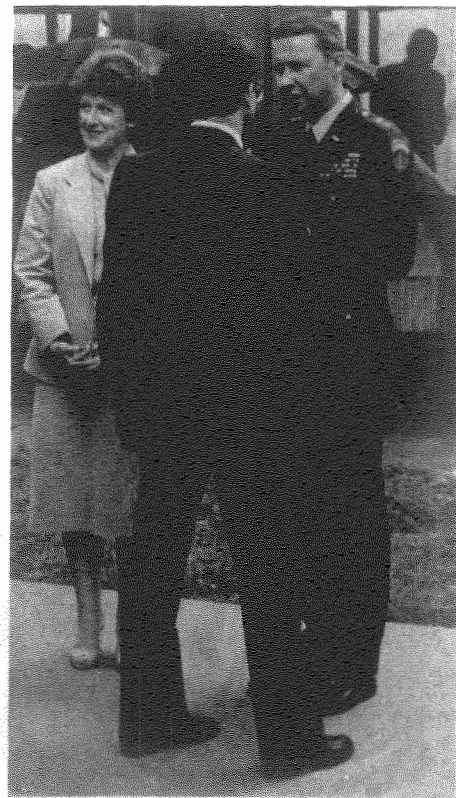

"Your professionalism has made the last three years very pleasant for me and my family," he said.

"Berlin is a beautiful, exciting and friendly city. We won't say goodbye, because the German phrase, I believe, is so much more appropriate. Auf Wiedersehen."

502nd Infantry: a tradition of duty

by Mike Gelfand

Born March 2, 1942, as the 502nd Parachute Infantry Regiment, this wartime unit was made up entirely of volunteers. Soldiers who felt they were the best and as this history will try to show, soldiers who proved their point.

The regiment's history starts out with firsts and continues with them. On July 1, 1941, the 502nd Parachute Battalion was formed. This forerunner of the regiment helped make U.S. airborne history by jumping twice in the First Army Carolina maneuvers in 1941.

Training was tough and marching was considered as more important than the jumping, and the 502nd was first in that as an excerpt from a local paper showed:

Company H, of the 502nd Infantry, completed a march of 145 1/2 miles in 57 1/2 hours... The first 33 miles was covered in 11 hours, cross-country and over back roads at night.

Another first of the regiment, stuck to the entire 101st Airborne Division.

The Regiment had a boxing team they called the "Screaming Eagles." The team was good and three members not only were local champs but went on to the national Golden Gloves meet in New York.

When the regiment was in England the boxing team used it again and the 101st Airborne Division used it for the name of the division football team. While playing football against teams from the other divisions in England, some Stars and Stripes correspondents applied it to the division and after that other correspondents copied them. Thus the 502nd "Screaming Eagle" boxing team went on to give their nickname to the entire division.

The unit trained hard, making parachute jumps, marching and most important of all weapons training. One company of the regiment qualified 99 percent as experts.

Not all of the training was as hard. With the 504th Regiment, the 502nd put on a demonstration for the British Foreign Minister, Anthony Eden and his party which included Field Marshal Sir John Dill and the commander of U.S. Ground Forces Gen. George C. Marshall. The unit did well receiving a commendation from the British minister.

Next came the movement to England and even more training as that all important day came closer, June 6, 1944.

D-Day

D-Day began at about 1 a.m. on June 6th for the 502nd as they landed all over Normandy, with some making it close to their drop zones. The regimental mission was varied. One battalion was to capture guns that could fire on the beaches, another was to secure the northern flank of the invasion area and to engage any enemy forces and disperse them.

The whole mission of the regiment was to smooth the path of the 4th Division so that the division would have a fair chance to collect themselves before launching the attack to expand the beachhead.

With hours of the drop the regimental missions were complete though with many casualties. Just 8 1/2 hours after landing, Lt. Col. Robert Cole, 3rd Battalion, commander, met with soldiers of the 4th Division thus completing the main D-Day mission.

As the regiment went on fighting and completing its missions, it was ordered to take the bridges around the town of Carentan.

As the 3rd Battalion moved on the town they came under very heavy fire from the defenders and were pinned down taking heavy casualties for over an hour.

The area the fire was coming from was some stone houses across a meadow about 150 yards wide. Cole saw what was happening to his men and made his decision.

The charge

Cole yelled to this executive officer, "I'm calling for smoke and then make a bayonet charge." Within a few minutes the smoke was being laid in an arc. Cole waited while the smoke was being put down. After about 15 minutes, Cole passed the word — to fix bayonets and load their rifles with a full clip. Three companies — G., H and Headquarters were supposed to attack.

Cole blew his whistle and took off across the field. Only about 20 men followed him and another 50 followed the XO.

Most of the men never heard the order or never heard the full order so stayed where they were. As Cole advanced the men saw what was going on and started forward to catch up with the attack.

Cole ran about halfway across the field. Then he stopped, knelt on one knee and looked back. Fire was clipping the grass all around him and more was passing overhead. He saw that his men were following him in single file and he waved his arms for them to spread out. Instead they hit the dirt. He started working on them one man at a time, urging them to go on, all the while under fire in plain sight. He kept firing his pistol wildly in the direction of the objective and as he fired he yelled: "Goddam, I don't know what I'm shooting at, but I gotta keep on." After that some of the men started moving, seeing their commander standing in the fire and yelling at them.

The soldiers then crossed the field and took the farm houses and the orchard next to them. The enemy machine gun groups which had been well fortified had to pull back. There were dead Germans lying thick over the ground and in the foxholes.

For his charge across the field, Cole was awarded the Medal of Honor, the first man in the regiment and the division to be so honored in World War II.

Market-Garden

Planing for the next operation was virtually completed in three weeks. The mission was to take a series of bridges in Holland so that the British XXX Corps could move forward through Holland and into Germany.

The mission of the 502nd was to guard the landing zone for later glider landings, to capture the road bridge at Oedenrode and be ready to take over the defense of the town of Zon, and to support the 506th Infantry in its move towards Endhoven. It was also given the mission of sending a company to seize the bridges at Best on the regiment's flank.

The 1st Battalion landed and moved out to St. Oedenrode were it fought off light German forces and liberated it, the first Dutch town to be liberated. The other two battalions carried out their mission as best they could.

The regiment was running into difficulties at Best. The battle for that town turned into a major fight which gave the regiment its second Presidential Unit Citation, for the attack on the town.

Also during the battles around Best, PFC Joe E. Mann, gave his life in saving some of his buddies and winning the second Medal of Honor in the regiment.

Though the operation only lasted 10 days, it cost the regiment 683 casualties and added the battle honor "Best, Holland" to the regimental roll.

Bastogne

After Holland, the regiment went into reserve in France, but the rest did not last long.

On Dec. 16, the Germans launched their greatest offensive of the war in the west, achieving a considerable success in their first attacks as they broke through the Allied lines.

As they moved 65 miles into Allied territory, the regiment was moved to the Belgium city of Bastogne. Road links were vital to both the Allies and the Germans.

For the first few days, the unit was surrounded by enemy forces trying to enter the town until Christmas, that the regiment held out.

The regiment fought off a German attack on Christmas. In that fight headquarters cooks, clerks and even walking wounded were on the line and stopped the Germans cold. The mission of the regiment captured a German platoon against the attacking Germans. At 17 enemy tanks and about 120 prisoners and the lines held.

On Jan. 3, the regiment fought another battle, it was almost overwhelmed. In that battle the regiment counted some 26 enemy prisoners and found numbers of German casualties.

On the 14th Bastogne was relieved and the lines flowed into the city.

The 502nd had sustained 773 casualties during the long fight. They had also added another battle honor to the regimental roll: "Bastogne."

After Bastogne, the unit went into Germany and the troopers were used as regular troops in a couple heavy fights and then were sent back to England where the unit ended the war collecting medals.

Then back to France as they waited for the war to end. Nov. 30, 1945, the regiment was inactivated. In years of combat over 90 percent of the men of the regiment were casualties, and only a few were still with the regiment.

Through the years of peace, the regiment was activated and inactivated about four times. It was a training unit at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Vietnam

Then in 1964 it was activated again as the 2nd Battalion, 502nd Airborne Division again to become a test-battalion and equipment.

Then in 1965, the 2nd Battalion was activated in Vietnam and two years later the 1st Battalion was activated.

On July 29, 1965 the 2nd Battalion was activated in the Republic of Vietnam.

Within weeks of arriving in Vietnam the 2nd Battalion had started operations against the enemy. In 1965 as part of the 1st Brigade, 1st Airborne Division, the men of the 502nd participated in several operations.

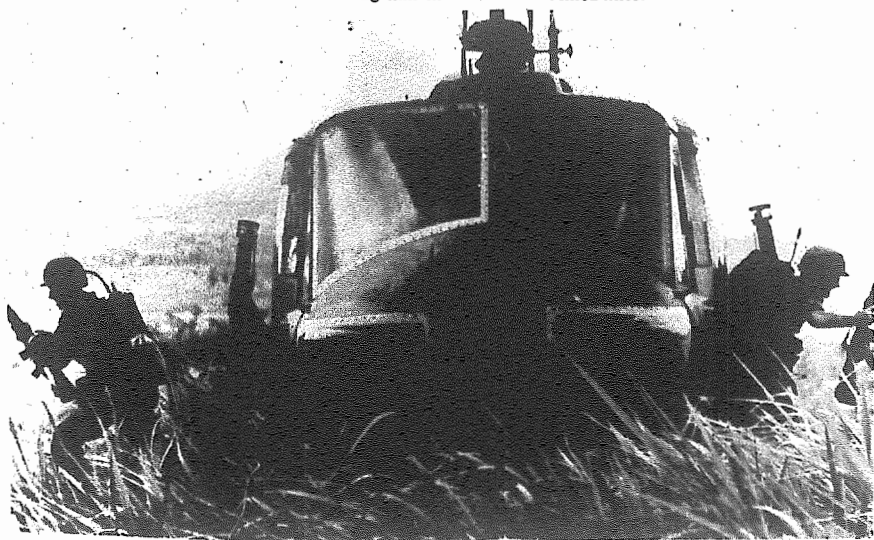

Operation Barracuda

Although enemy contact in this area was not as heavy as in other areas, the men had shown that in less than three months they were ready for employment in the overall Vietnam conflict.

At the end of August the 2/502nd was activated to its men, the "0-6" mission, to secure An Khe Pass. The mission was that keeping it open kept a major highway open. The historic importance had been demonstrated a decade earlier when an entire French

At the end of August the 2/502nd or as it was unofficially known to its men, the "0-Deuce" had its first mission, to secure An Khe Pass. The pass was vital in that keeping it open kept a major highway, Highway 19, open. The historic importance had been demonstrated a decade earlier when an entire French regiment had been annihilated in an ambush in the pass.

In a series of operations most in the Son Con Valley, northeast of An Khe Pass, the soldiers of the 0-Deuce earned their Combat Infantryman Badges.

Another first

In March the battalion was taking part in Operation Harrison, during that operation the battalion conducted the first known battalion night airmobile operation.

Operation Malheur

The 1st Battalion, 502nd Infantry had arrived on December 16, 1967 and now the two battalions were operating as part of the 101st Airborne Division.

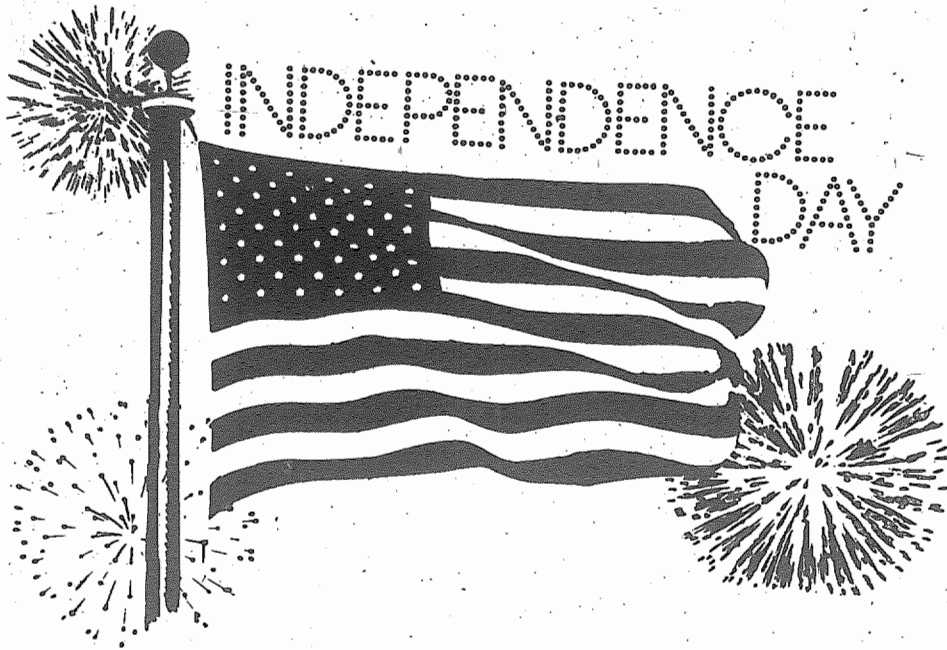

Some of the major operations the battalions took part in were: Çarençan II, in the lowlands of Quang Tri and Thua Thien Provinces. Nevada Eagle, which was continuation of Airmobile operations in the central highlands, which resulted in 3,299 known enemy casualties. Delaware, L.A. Son 216, in the Ashau Valley with Vietnamese units and other U.S. Units.

One of the largest operations was Jefferson Glenn/Op Ord 13-70, in which operations with the 1st Vietnamese Infantry Division accounted for 2,026 casualties and cleared a large area of Thua Thiem Province.

There were many other operations in which the battalions of the 502nd fought and awards were numerous. The 2nd Battalion won two Presidential Unit Citations and two other Medals of Honor were won by members of the regiment.

Lens program

A limited Contact Lens Program has been initiated at the hospital for active duty military personnel.

Due to limited resources, a patient waiting list is being maintained and service members are being scheduled for appointments as time permits.

Entry on the waiting list is only open to those service members who have at least 120 days remaining in Berlin, and who are available to participate in an optometry screening process to determine applicability.

The next screening session is to be conducted on July 16, appointments may be obtained by contacting the Central Appointment System at 819-4211. Participation in the program is on a first come-first serve basis.

Participants must bear the cost of lens and supplies, estimated to be $75 to $100.

Package found

On June 19, a wrapped package addressed to Herlong, Calif., but with no return address was left in the lobby of the Truman Plaza APO at closing time.

The owner of this package should contact the Postal Officer at the Main APO, Bldg. 810, Roosevelt Barracks, 819-6780, between 7:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

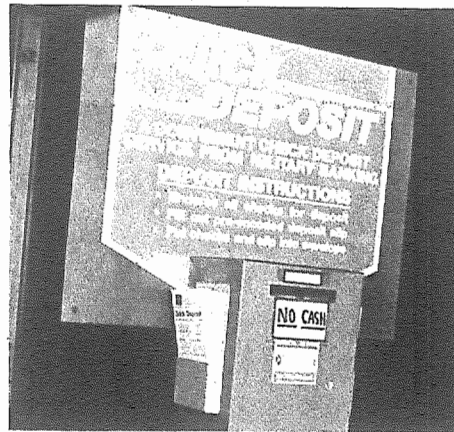

Club magazine

"Undeniably, the finest publication of its kind," rages CW3 Lee Hicks, Deputy Area Club Manager. "At any given time, a soldier can pick up 'The Berlin Club System Magazine' and find the music, entertainment, or food he or she's in the mood for."

For the first time, important information on Army club activities has been tastefully stuffed into one local publication. Called "The Berlin Club System Magazine", or "The Magazine," it comes out every six weeks and can be found at any Berlin Army club.

"The Magazine" itself contains operating hours, phone numbers, names of club management and advisors, and occasional food and alcohol related articles. The first edition (just released) is 16 pages, both visual and informative, with photographs and line drawings.

Of course, one of the nicest things about "The Berlin Club System Magazine" is that it's FREE; compliments of local advertisers.

Quick deposit

John Nemetz, area manager of the Community Banking Facilities has some advice for you that can save you time.

"If you are only depositing a check to your account use the Quick Deposit Box located just inside the door of the bank. Follow the simple instructions on the envelopes and avoid the lines."

PCSing?

Most banks in the states will not accept large cashier's checks or bank drafts for immediate payment. He recommends taking a small amount of cash, a bank draft to be deposited to an account at your new bank and the rest in travelers checks.

The one percent cost of travelers checks is also refundable within certain limits if you see your finance officer at your new duty station.

O' club card change

The Harnack House has started a new system for its members. As of today, Social Security numbers will be substituted for club card numbers.

The old club card numbers are no longer valid and members should use their Social Security numbers for all charge sales in the future.

For the 4th of July activities Wednesday, Transportation Division has buses scheduled to make it easier and safer for members of the community to get around.

Private First Class Joe E. Mann

Private Mann, Company H, 502nd Parachute Infantry Regiment, Army of the United States, distinguished himself on 18 September in the vicinity of Best, Holland when his platoon, attempting to seize the bridge across the Wilhelmina Canal, was surrounded and isolated by an enemy force greatly superior in personnel and fire power. Acting as lead scout, Private Mann boldly crept to within rocket launcher range on an enemy artillery position and in the face of heavy enemy fire destroyed an 88-mm gun and an ammunition dump. Completely disregarding the great danger involved, he remained in his exposed position and with his M1 rifle killed the enemy one by one until he was wounded four times. Taken to a covered position, he insisted on returning to a forward position to stand guard during the night. On the following morning the enemy launched a concerted attack and advanced to within a few yards of the position, throwing hand grenades as they approached. One of these landed within a few feet of Private Mann. Unable to raise his arms which were bandaged to his body, he called "Grenade," threw his body over the grenade and, as it exploded, died. His outstanding gallantry and his magnificent conduct were an everlasting inspiration to his comrades for whom he gave his life.

Corporal Frank R. Fratellenico

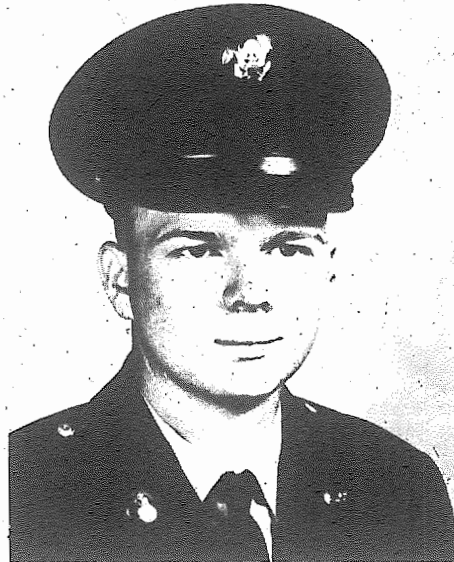

Corporal Frank R. Fratellenico distinguished himself on August 19, 1970 while serving as a rifleman with Company B, 2nd Battalion, 502nd Infantry, 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division. During an assault that day against a North Vietnamese Army company near Fire Base, Barnett, Quang Tri Province, Corporal Fratellenico's squad was pinned down by intensive fire from two well-fortified enemy bunkers. At great personal risk, Corporal Fratellenico maneuvered forward and, using hand grenades, neutralized the first bunker which was occupied by a number of enemy soldiers. While attacking the second bunker, enemy fire struck Corporal Fratellenico, causing him to fall to the ground and drop a grenade which he was preparing to throw. Alert to the imminent danger to his comrades, Corporal Fratellenico retrieved the grenade and fell upon it an instant before it exploded. His heroic actions prevented death or serious injury to four of his comrades nearby and inspired his unit which subsequently overran the enemy position. Corporal Fratellenico's conspicuous gallantry, extraordinary heroism, and intrepidity at the cost of his life, above and beyond the call of duty, are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit on him, his unit, and the United States Army.

Private First Class Milton A. Lee

Private First Class Milton A. Lee distinguished himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action above and beyond the call on duty on 26 April 1968, near the city of Phu Bai in the Province of Thua Thien, Republic of Vietnam. Private Lee was serving as the radio telephone operator with the 3rd Platoon, Company B, 2nd Battalion, 502nd Infantry, 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile). As lead element for the company, the 3rd Platoon received intense surprise hostile fire from a force of North Vietnamese Army Regulars in well-concealed bunkers. With 50 percent casualties, the platoon maneuvered to a position of cover to treat their wounded and reorganize, while Private Lee moved through the heavy enemy fire giving life-saving first aid to his wounded comrades. During the subsequent assault on the enemy defensive positions Private Lee continuously kept close radio contact with the company commander, relaying precise and understandable orders to his platoon leader. While advancing with the front rank toward the objective, Private Lee observed four North Vietnamese soldiers with automatic weapons and a rocket launcher lying in wait for the lead element of the platoon. As the element moved forward, unaware of the concealed danger, Private Lee immediately and with utter disregard for his own personal safety, passed his radio to another soldier and charged through the murderous fire. Without hesitation he continued his assault, overrunning the enemy position, killing all occupants and capturing four automatic weapons and a rocket launcher. Private Lee continued his one-man assault on the second position through a heavy barrage of enemy automatic weapons fire. Grievously wounded, he continued to press the attack, crawling forward into a firing position and delivering accurate covering fire to enable his platoon to maneuver and destroy the position. Not until the position was overrun did Private Lee falter in his steady volume of fire and succumb to his wounds. Private Lee's heroic actions saved the lives of the lead element and were instrumental in the destruction of the key position of the enemy defense. Private Lee's conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit in himself, the 502nd Infantry, and the United States Army.

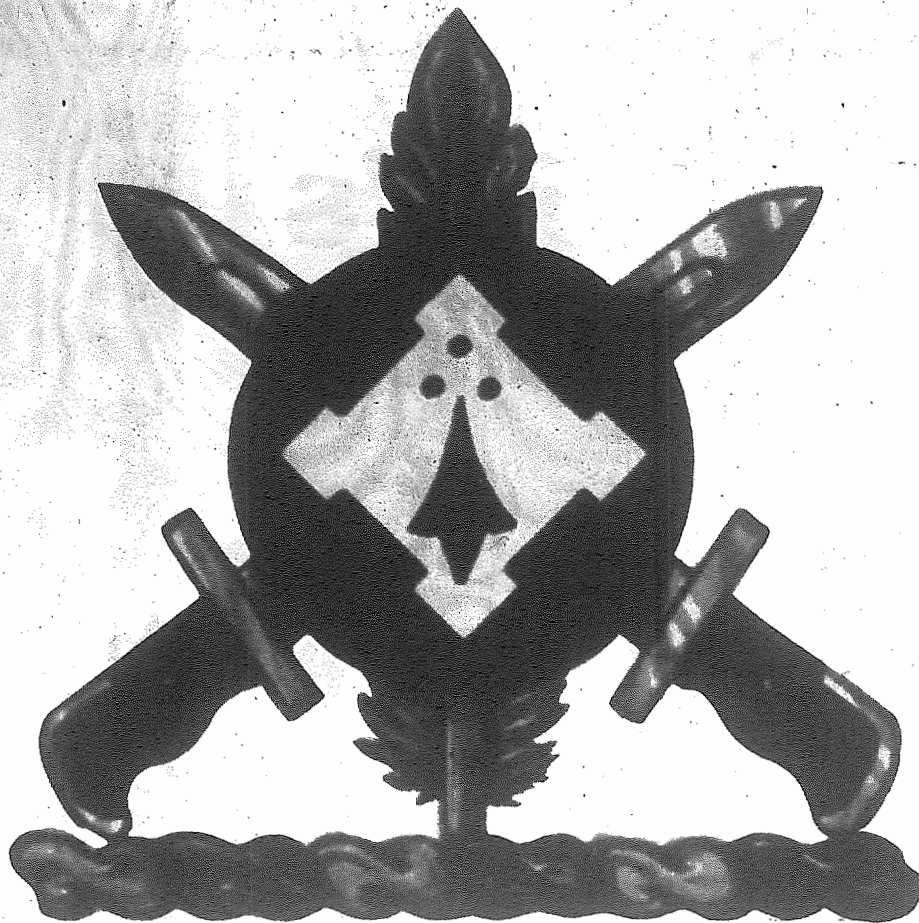

Lieutenant Colonel Robert G. Cole

Lieutenant Colonel Cole distinguished himself with 3rd Battalion, 502nd Parachute Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, during combat operations on 11 June 1944 in France. Colonel Cole was personally leading his battalion in forcing the last of four bridges on the road to Carentan when his entire unit was suddenly pinned to the ground by intense and withering enemy rifle, machine gun, mortar, and artillery fire placed upon them from well prepared and heavily fortified positions within 150 yards of the foremost elements. After the devastating and unceasing enemy fire had for over one hour prevented any movement and inflicted numerous casualties, Colonel Cole, observing this almost hopeless situation, courageously issued orders to assault the enemy positions with fixed bayonets. With utter disregard for his own safety and completely ignoring the enemy fire, he arose to his feet in front of his battalion and with drawn pistol shouted to men to follow him in the assault. Catching up a fallen man's rifle and bayonet, he charged on and led the remnants of his battalion across the bullet-swept open ground and into the enemy position. His heroic and valiant action in so inspiring his men resulted in the complete establishment of our bridgehead across the Douve River. The cool fearlessness, personal bravery, and outstanding leadership displayed by Colonel Cole reflect great credit upon himself and are worthy of the highest praise in the military service.

Specialist Four Dale E. Wayrynen

Specialist Four Dale E. Wayrynen distinguished himself with Company B, 2nd Battalion, 502nd Infantry, 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division, during combat operations on 18 May 1967 near Duc Pho, Quang Ngai Province, Republic of Vietnam. His platoon was assisting in the night evacuation of the wounded from an earlier enemy contact when the lead man of the unit met face to face with a Viet Cong soldier. The American's shouted warning also alerted the enemy who immediately swept the area with automatic weapons fire from a strongly built bunker close to the trail and threw hand grenades from another nearby fortified position. Almost immediately, the lead man was wounded and knocked from his feet. Specialist Wayrynen, the second man in the formation, leaped beyond his fallen comrade to kill another enemy soldier who had appeared on the trail, and he dragged his injured companion back to where the point squad had taken over. Suddenly, a live enemy grenade landed in the center of the tightly grouped men. Specialist Wayrynen, quickly assessing the danger to the entire squad as well as to his platoon leader who was nearby, shouted a warning, pushed one soldier out of the way, and threw himself on the grenade at the moment it exploded. He was mortally wounded. His deep and abiding concern for his fellow soldiers was significantly reflected in his supreme and courageous act that preserved the lives of his comrades. Specialist Wayrynen's heroic actions are in keeping with the highest traditions of the service, and they reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Army.

Crest of the 502nd Infantry Regiment

The bayonets refer to the unit's bayonet charge at Carentan, Normandy. They are two in number in reference to the regiment's two Presidential Unit Citations and its two assault landings in World War II. The eagle's feather stands for the unit's airborne history; orange, being the national color of the Netherlands, refers to the liberation of Best, Holland.

The white four-bastioned fort encircled by a black background represents Bastogne, Belgium, surrounded by the German salient in the Battle of the Bulge. The ermine spot on the white fort refers to the snow which blanketed the battle's terrain.
