Snow, cold highlight CSB 'zone' training

by Brian Farman
CSB Correspondent

Combat Support Battalion loaded up last week and departed for Bergen Hohne, West Germany for cold weather training.

After the convoy arrived last Friday and the rail load Saturday, the battalion got together Sunday for a 0700 formation. Led by Battalion Commander Lt. Col. J. Frank Hennessee, the soldiers took off on a three-mile run, followed by grass drills.

Monday kicked off with rounds going down range from M60 and M2 machine guns and 105 and 155mm rounds from tanks and howitzers. Company F, 40th Armor found themselves going through a systems calibration or zero with their M60A3 tanks, firing both machine guns and the 105mm main gun in preparation for tank qualification.

Battery C, 94th Field Artillery found themselves in a split battery mode with one team qualifying with M60 and M2 light and heavy machine guns. The redlegs will undergo an ARTEP (Army Readiness Training and Evaluation Program) while in Bergen Hohne, while the fire support teams will vie for the title of best FIST in Berlin.

"We didn't expect the weather to be like this, but it's the kind of weather we need to train in," said Sp4 Stephen Dockery, Battery C. "We did well in firing. It just goes to show you the artillery is flexible."

Meanwhile, 42nd Engineer Company has been making loud noises of their own, but not with weapons. Their hammers have been striking wood as they construct projects they will later destroy. That may seem strange — to destroy what you just built. But for the engineers it will keep them proficient in two important areas — basic or rough construction and demolitions.

The biggest noise of all will be heard Tuesday, when the Combat Engineer Vehicle Crews fire their 165mm guns, the largest in Berlin.

CSB units will continue to fire next week following a battalion exercise this weekend.

2nd Battalion soldiers ski into cold weather training

by Roger Lund

2nd Battalion Correspondent

While most of the attention in downhill and cross country skiing is focused upon Yugoslavia for the 1984 Winter Olympics, the soldiers of Company B, 2nd Battalion set their attention upon Vicenza, Italy, recently.

From Jan. 7 to 20, the soldiers participated in winter warfare training at a site high atop a mountain — the home of the 4th Battalion, 325th Airborne Infantry.

Departing Berlin on Jan. 7, the Bravo Bears arrived in Italy and immediately began their cold weather training and survival training. After settling into their billets, equipment such as skis, snow shoes, and boots were issued.

The soldiers received an introduction to winter warfare capabilities and problems. What the soldiers especially looked forward to during the initial sessions was the use of snowshoes and skis. As the day progressed and their techniques improved, races were held in snowshoes to test their abilities.

Sgt. Tim Mast found these classes interesting. "The class on avalanches was very informative. It showed us how to identify the features that lead to one. Even more importantly, it showed us how to survive one," he said.

Their training in the cold realities of winter training intensified over the next few days. The soldiers learned how to set up the ten-man squad tent designed to help in winter survival. Even more important to their skills was the use of a snow sled that resembles those pulled by the sled dogs of North America. Hauling equipment ranging from tents to provisions, a four man team pulled this sled. As SSgt. Ernest Krutzsche admitted, it was not as easy as it sounded.

"It was rather simple for four men to pull it over level ground. But when we met steep terrain, it became another story. It would take an entire platoon to carry it up a steep path. Some came close to losing one a few times," Krutzsche added.

After a presentation on threat cold weather training, tactics, and capabilities, it was off to the mountain tops to test their newly acquired skills. For seven nights the company was billeted in an abandoned missile hanger under rather spartan conditions.

Many in the company admitted the most enjoyable portion of the training were these adventures in Alpine or downhill skiing. For several days the soldiers practiced and experienced the excitement of this form of skiing. Grouped according to levels of experience, they kept reinforcing their training at the civilian ski slopes near the training area.

Some admitted they felt intimidated by the civilian skiers. One commented, "It's really something to be trying hard, only to see a little kid come racing by and burning up the slopes."

Another added that he was lucky he did not break his leg. "I was heading downhill and the front of my skis went deep into the snow. That's when I learned about how quickly you can stop out there."

Following their course downhill, they had their chance to learn Nordic or cross country. Travelling with their ruck sacks, they endured the rough training. Most admitted that this was the most difficult portion of the training.

After working hard at perfecting their techniques, a field training exercise was held to test their prowess in winter warfare. For two days and one night, the company braved the elements and demonstrated what they learned.

Practicing the infantry skills they are so accustomed to in Berlin, the snowshoe-clad soldiers moved up the steep slopes. SFC Wendon Kavecki spoke of the improvised shelters used to survive during the cold night and the deep snow.

"The snow covered the tree branches and these hung low to the ground. We'd use these as huts and would cover the openings with other branches. you could be comfortable in there," Kavecki observed.

Some even suggested that these exercises should emphasize more cold weather survival. One commented that "snow caves" and other shelters be part of the exercise.

Many believed that the scenic view from the top of the mountain was worth the long arduous climb to get there. "You could see the Austrian border from up there. It was a beautiful site with all the mountains and snow," one soldier commented.

Despite the injuries which were few in number, all felt the training was worth it. SSgt. Oscar Lara noted, "It was some of the best training I've had in the Army and I've been in 10 years."

Sgt. Charlie Gann, who accompanied Company C during last year's training, remarked that this training was far better. "The instruction and techniques we learned were better than last year's experience."

SJA has advice for Americans in LN positions

It is tax time again, and with it come several questions concerning the tax reporting of U.S. citizens working in LN positions which are paid by the Occupation Cost Office in Deutsche marks.

There has been some controversy in the past few years whether these earnings are taxable by the Internal Revenue Service.

Some IRS officials have expressed the opinion that it is taxable and some taxpayers have been told after IRS audits that they must pay taxes on it. The taxpayers and other concerned government agencies have expressed the opinion that it falls within the "Foreign Earned Income Exclusion."

The Foreign Earned Income Exclusion is a provision that allows the taxpayer to exclude salary or wages earned abroad during the last tax year up to $80,000 from taxable income.

This exclusion does not apply to money earned abroad if it is earned income from the U.S. Government or a U.S. Government instrumentality.

In plain, simple English, this means if you have a job overseas, and it is not a job with the U.S. Government, you don't have to pay taxes on any of your earnings from this job of less than $80,000 in a single tax year (calendar year for most taxpayers).

Also, to qualify for this exclusion, you must have been out of the U.S. for 330 days before the day you file your tax return or be a bona fide resident of the foreign country from which you are filing. (Most taxpayers here in Berlin qualify under the 330 day rule.)

The problem is that the IRS has maintained that U.S. citizens in LN positions actually work for an instrumentality of the U.S. Government. Taxpayers and some other government agencies contend that the Allied Kommandatura is the actual employer, and that it is not an instrumentality of the U.S. Government.

There was a meeting late last summer between IRS and other U.S. Government agencies' representatives. At this meeting, the IRS representative stated that no final decision had actually been made and that collection action would be suspended in the interim.

What does this mean to you if you are a U.S.-citizen taxpayer in a LN job, filing a single, head of household, or joint return? It means that you may complete a Form 2555 showing your income as foreign-earned income.

By doing so, you exclude (subtract) this income on the front of the Form 1040 (the main income tax form). When this is done, you do not pay taxes on that amount.

What happens if IRS decides in the future that you were not eligible to take this exclusion, and that they will tax this income?

The IRS could try to tax such previously excluded income for up to the past three years. If so, it is possible, but unlikely, that they would charge an interest penalty at the prime rate for each year of the deficiency.

It is more likely that, if IRS does decide to assess and collect tax on this amount, it will be done beginning with the year the decision is made and for succeeding years.

Is an adverse decision by the IRS the final word on this matter? Not necessarily. The taxpayer could challenge the IRS before the U.S. Tax Court or the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. It would also be possible for a group of people to cooperate in a court challenge to an adverse IRS decision.

So, what should I do if I had a job in Berlin for which I received DM compensation from the Occupation Cost Office?

You may file a Form 2555 and a 1040 (the main income tax form).

You compute the dollar amount using the official exchange rate on each payday or the official overall rate for the year, which is DM 2,55 for tax year 1983.

If you meet either the 330 day or bona fide resident test, you can subtract the amount on the front of the 1040, if you wish. (Also, employees who don't meet the 330 day test by filing time could later file an amended return when they do meet the time requirement.)

If you don't exclude that amount, you pay tax on it. You could in a future year file an amended return for tax year 1983, and get the tax paid back to you.

By not excluding this amount and paying the taxes on it you will avoid any interest penalty that the IRS max charge should it decide in the future not to allow the exclusion.

If this question is finally settled in favor of the taxpayers in Berlin, then you could file an amended return and claim a tax refund. However, you won't get any interest from the U.S. Government on the amount refunded.

If you elect to exclude the amount, you will not pay tax on it. However, if the IRS does decide to collect tax, you may be assessed a deficiency for past years, which might include an interest penalty.

One final note, if you are moving back to the U.S. during 1984, you may wish to stop by the SJA Office just before your departure to discuss this and special rules which may apply for exclusion of tax year 1984 income.

Teacher has message for parents of students

Dear Parents,

I feel compelled to ask for your help. I believe I speak for teachers everywhere. Get involved in your children's education!

Perhaps, you have heard this before; perhaps you are currently involved. But if you aren't, it's still not too late.

America is facing a crisis. We are turning out children who are not as academically talented as their foreign counterparts. These children represent our future.

There is a dangerous trend developing, especially in high school. More and more I see students who are not excited by learning, who don't try to excel, who just 'slide by.'

We must act to protect our future. What can a parent do? Plenty. Do you set down realistic standards and expect your children to maintain them? Don't accept a 'D' or an 'F' as a grade. Encourage your children to achieve their fullest potential.

When was the last time you met with your children's teachers? Find out what your children are learning. Do you work with your children at home? Discuss with the teacher ways you can help them.

Monitor their progress on a daily basis, not just when a 'failure notice' arrives. Read with your children. Make learning a goal in itself.

Finally, limit the amount of time your children spend in front of the television set. Most television is in fact a mindless form of 'entertainment' which has little educational value. The 'T.V.' has become the American babysitter.

Only by working together can we change this trend.

Long overdue changes in the American educational system are on the way. They will take years to implement. But let's work together now to improve the attitude of our children.

Let's make learning our highest priority. If we don't, we may soon discover our country hopelessly behind in our changing technological world.

Saving energy – community project

Members of the Berlin community have been thinking about energy conservation lately.

With the help of Capt. Zap and articles from DEH, the community has saved enough energy to make us one of the top five communities in USAREUR.

Some of the ways to continue saving energy are listed below, but you can help by finding new ones.

When you shop for a major appliance, look for the yellow and black Energy Guide label that tells you which appliance is most energy efficient.

By 220-volt rather than 110-volt appliances. Using 220-volt appliances saves money spent on transformers and prevents having to run for the fuse box every time your transformer blows a fuse.

If you purchase 110-volt appliances, use the proper size transformer. Large transformers use more energy than smaller ones, so if you use a transformer too large for a particular appliance, you're wasting energy.

Buy products in returnable containers. It takes energy to make containers; if they are reused, energy is saved. You also save money by buying products in returnable containers because the price of the throwaway containers is included in the purchase price.

And perhaps the easiest energy conservation measure of all: Turn off appliances (television, radio, and stereos, especially) when not in use.

Make sure your water is turned off. It adds up to gallons quick.

An example of inefficient use of energy or sheer waste is the family member who leaves a transformer plugged in when not needed. Or there's the Army driver who leaves his engine idling while he makes a stop. We all must become aware of energy waste.

Practices like these mean the loss of tons of coal and barrels of oil that cannot be replaced.

Efficient use of these resources and a little common sense could add millions of dollars to other badly needed Army Programs.

"One drop per second...200 gallons per month."

BAHS report cards

Berlin American High School officials have announced that second quarter report cards will be given to students in homeroom the last ten minutes of the day on Feb. 3, instead of Jan. 27 as printed in the January Parent Newsletter.

The parents copy, containing the quarter's absence notes, will be sent home the following week.

If you have any questions about the report cards, please call 819-6393 or 819-6359.

New field jacket

The mandatory possession date for one camouflage field jacket is March 1.

Two will be required by Oct. 1, 1986. The wear out date for the OG 107, olive drab field jacket has been extended to Sept. 30, 1986, say G-1 officials.

Guess where this guy wants to send a MARSGRAM?

MARS news

The MARS station has been renovated and they are waiting for your business.

Some of the ways they can help you are listed below.

Phone Patch — To make a Phone Patch booking, all you have to do is call the MARS station at 819-3289 or 819-3567, during the hours of 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday through Friday and on weekends from 2 to 8 p.m.

In the event that someone would like to make a phone patch booking but does not have a telephone, they can go to Building 934, Andrews Barracks and make the call.

Once a call is booked, the Mars station will contact a MARS station in the United States over the radio and give the stateside station the telephone number of the party you want to call.

The stateside station will call the number collect and connect them through his radio to the Berlin MARS station and on to your phone.

MARS Phone Patches are a lot cheaper than calling from a pay phone here in Berlin and they are a little harder to get through, but you only pay the charge from the MARS station in the states to your party.

If you have a preference on when you would like to have your call completed, let the operator know at the time you book your call.

Even though there are MARS stations throughout the states, phone patches are generally made through a station on the East Coast, New York, for example. This affects the total cost of the call.

MARSGRAM — The MARSGRAM is a message of up to 25 words in length that you can send to the U.S. or within Germany.

To send a MARSGRAM, fill out a MARSGRAM form available at the MARSGRAM box located at the McNair library or you can go directly to the MARS station at Andrews, or you can send it through distribution to Radio Branch, C-E Division, Bldg. 1, Clay Headquarters.

In the near future, there will be additional MARSGRAM boxes installed at the Main Library, Andrews Library, Hi-lite Rec Center and the All American Rec Center.

This is a free service, but it may take up to seven days for delivery.

For more information you can call the station directly at 819-3567 or 819-3289 or you can call the Radio Officer at 819-6025.

ARMAF helps out

Being an in-patient at a medical facility is never a pleasant position in which to find yourself.

If you have recently experienced a stay in the hospital, and specifically, over the weekend periods, there has been something provided you, that tends to make a pleasant experience just a little bit better.

Through the cooperation and efforts of a local organization known as The Association of Retired Members of the Armed Forces, or ARMAF for short, each patient is provided a copy of the Saturday and Sunday Stars and Stripes newspaper.

If you are not an in-patient, but find yourself in the waiting room for emergency service, you will also find a copy of the newspaper on the tables to help you pass the time while awaiting medical attention.

The papers are provided free, by ARMAF funds and each month an ARMAF member volunteers to collect the papers from the Stars and Stripes Bookstore at Truman Plaza and bring them to the hospital wards each weekend day during the month in which he or she volunteers to do such.

If you find yourself as an in-patient on weekends, your newspaper will arrive as soon as they are available for receipt and distribution. This is one small way that ARMAF members show appreciation to fellow Americans living and working in the Berlin Community. (Submitted by Jim Kottke)

German speed limits

All USAREUR drivers are reminded that speed limits in Germany are 50 kilometers per hour (kph) on city streets and 100 kph on highways, unless otherwise posted. Autobahns and roads reserved for motor vehicles have a minimum speed of 60 kph, unless otherwise posted.

If a USAREUR-plated vehicle is "flashed" by a German radar patrol, a photo of the vehicle with the USAREUR plate high-lighted will be forwarded to the Provost Marshal's Office. Once the USAREUR plate has been identified, the PMO issues an Armed Forces Traffic Ticket (DD Form 1408) to the owner of vehicle.

Check and balance

The GI Division Check Control Office provides counselors to aid service members, family members, and civilians of the Berlin Community. Counselors are available from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to answer questions concerning dishonored checks or checking account problems. Personnel are also available to speak to military and civilian groups concerning the Berlin Community Dishonored Check Program.

During the month of December 1983 a total of 86 checks were returned with a dollar value of $4,079.18 to the Berlin Community Check Control Office. This is a 12 percent decrease from the November dollar value of $4,622.01 for returned checks. In order to continue this decline an educational program to train individuals in checkbook maintenance has been started.

Classes in checkbook maintenance are conducted twice each Wednesday from 1 to 4 p.m., and again in the evening from 6 to 9 p.m. Interested individuals may schedule themselves for class by calling 819-6678 or 819-6683.

BRITISH UNIFORM INSIGNIA • ARMY

The main part of the officers ranks is a diamond shape called a 'pip'. A second lieutenant wears one pip centered near the end of the shoulder board; a lieutenant, wears two pips and a captain, three.

A major has a crown; lieutenant colonel a crown and a pip; then colonel wears a crown and two pips.

The next British rank is the brigadier. While the British brigadier is not called a general, the U.S. equivalent is brigadier general. The British brigadier wears three pips in a 'v' and a crown.

The next ranks are the generals. First is the major general, who wears a crossed sword and baton with a crown above it. Lieutenant generals have the same crossed sword and baton, but with a pip above, and the general has crossed sword and baton, pip and crown.

The next rank is one you will probably never see outside the movies and that is field marshal, who has a crossed sword and baton inside a wreath with a crown above.

The British enlisted ranks are pretty simple for Americans because they are similar.

The privates do not wear chevrons and will be called privates or depending on their regiments things like gunners for artillery, sappers if they are engineers or fusilliers if in the Royal Regiment of Fusilliers.

Lance corporal is like our pfc and wears one chevron, corporals wear two chevrons and sergeants, three.

Staff sergeants wear three chevrons and a crown centered above and can be called either staff sergeant or color sergeant, depending on the unit they are assigned to.

Next come the warrant officers, they are the equivalent of our first sergeants and sergeants major.

The warrant officer will wear their rank on the lower right sleeve of their uniforms, approximately two or three inches above the cuff.

While they may have many titles, the easiest way to place them, company sergeant major (warrant officer II), wears a crown or a crown with a wreath around it. Next is the warrant officer class I, who wears the full Royal Coat of Arms as a badge the same place as the company sergeant major.

One of the hardest things to remember is that British warrant officers are not officers in the way American officers are and are not saluted.

Bears win two, lose two

The Berlin Basketball Bears breezed past two teams while the Lady Bears gave up two hard fought contests in the Sports Center Gym last weekend.

Led by high scorer Roderick Riley with 22 points, the men's team blasted the Kitzigen Knights 107-87 on Saturday afternoon. Supporting him, Chris Drayton, Stanley Gordon, Jerry Brackett, Joseph Billings and James Jacks all recorded double-digit scores.

On Sunday the men routed the Neu Ulm Trojans 87-75. Chris Drayton led the Bears with a game high of 29 points and Willie Upshaw, Gordon and Brackett contributed 11, 12 and 12 points respectively.

Men's coach Al Garcia attributed the Bears' victories to practice and team cohesiveness. "We're learning the offense and working well together as a unit and the defense and rebounding are strong," said Garcia. He added that he hopes to improve the team's shooting and passing.

The Trojans were a quicker team, said Garcia. "I had to play all 11 of our players, but when we did buckle down we were able to stop their offense," he said.

'Cudas beat Patch'

by Nona Ballard

Bear-A-Cudas correspondent

The Berlin Bear-A-Cudas swim team overpowered the Patch Piranhas Sunday by a score of 252-155. In a heated contest of the European Forces Swim League, new swimmers and extra efforts from relay swimmers clenched the victory for Berlin.

One triple winner surfaced when Aryn Ballard won the 10 and under girls individual medley, backstroke and butterfly races.

Double victories were earned by swimmers Casey Buntton, Kirstin Walsh, Troy Johnson, Bethany Ballard, and Gretchen Gruett.

Important single efforts were recorded by Cindy Honderd, Kathleen Belz, Laura Jacoby, Anne Doucette, Marla Minderman, Chris Phipps, Cindy Lawrence, and Todd Walsh.

New swimmers Anne Doucette and Troy Johnson contributed invaluable points in this sixth win of the season. Noteworthy performances were praised by Coach Ted Colquhoun of swimmer Gretchen Gruett and the 15-19 mixed freestyle relay team combining Chris Fortune, Cindy Lawrence, Nona Ballard, and Todd Walsh.

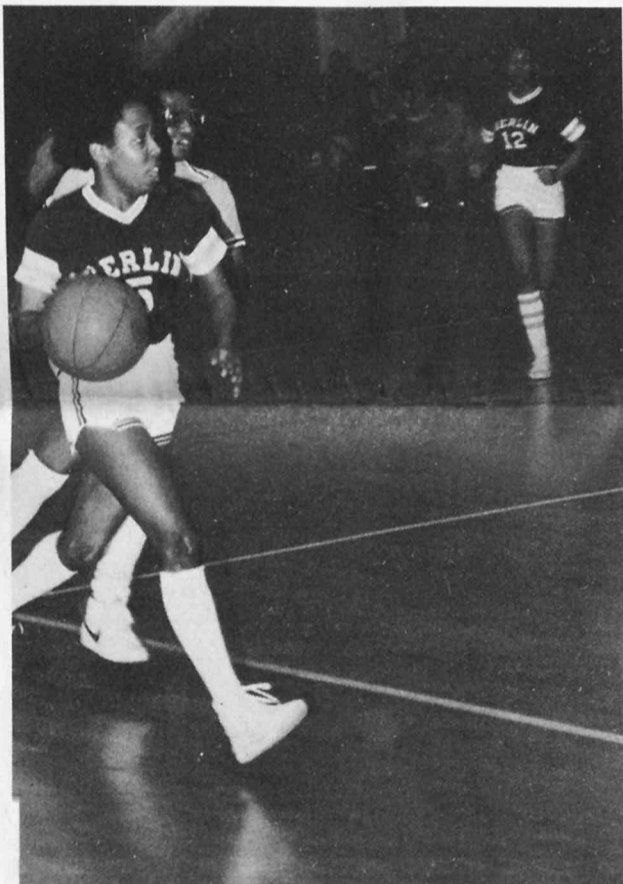

This coming Sunday at Andrews Pool the 'Cudas' traditional arch rival, SHAPE Seals, will challenge the Berlin squad.

The Lady Bears however, lost both games to the Neu Ulmers on Saturday and Sunday.

Despite aggressive play from Joan Fagerness and Gwen Benton who scored 18 and 17 points respectively, the women's team gave up a 65-67 heartbreaker on Saturday.

In the third quarter of Sunday's game, the women's coordinated offensive attacks and gutsy rebounding closed the Neu Ulmers 14 point lead to within two points. But the opponents slight height advantage and some remarkable outside shooting stretched the Neu Ulm team's lead back out to 73-65 by game's end. Carolyn Murphy led the Lady Bears on Sunday with 14 points.

Berlin men's record is now 16 and 10 and the women's record is 9 and 9. This weekend the Bears and Lady Bears will play Grafenwöhr away.

Youth soccer

Last Sunday a group of 11 nine and 10 year-olds represented the US community in an international indoor soccer tournament at Cité Foch in the French sector.

The Berlin Wolves, coached by Wolfgang Dymke and Lloyd Raupp, competed with 11 other teams, including German, British, French, Turkish, and Yugoslavian clubs and all star teams, in the seven-hour tournament organized by the German Wacker 04 Sports Club.

The Wolves opened play by holding a bigger and more experienced British team to a scoreless tie. In their next game the Wolves posted a surprising 1-0 victory over host Wacker 04. The team then tasted defeat in the final game of the preliminary round against Sport Club Charlottenburg, 1-0.

In the final round, the Wolves split their two games, losing to Stern 1900, 1-0, then defeating the Turkish team, Zaferspor, 1-0. The Wolves finished with a final record of two wins, two losses, and one tie.

Powerlifting

by Tom Jackson

It looks so easy at first.

The powerlifter's name is called out. He, or she, ambles up to the oversized discs of iron, casually tosses them into the proper position and struts away.

But then comes the second and third lifts.

The weight is increased. Jaws start to flex. Muscles bulge, veins pop out, eyes squint or sometimes bloom out like saucers from the strain. Teeth are bared, sweat beads on the brow and then the referee gives his signal and hundreds of pounds crash back to the floor.

That's powerlifting — a brief but furious war between muscle and gravity. On Saturday, 24 powerlifters took part in the Berlin Brigade's first Powerlifting Championship at McNair Gym.

There are three events in a powerlifting meet, the squat, benchpress and deadlift, explained Tom Kearny, men's sports coordinator, Physical Activities Branch, Morale Support Activities Division.

Each powerlifter is given three lifts for each event and must make at least one successful lift in each event to qualify. Points are awarded for the best lift in each event, said Kearny. Winners are determined by totaling the best lifts in each event.

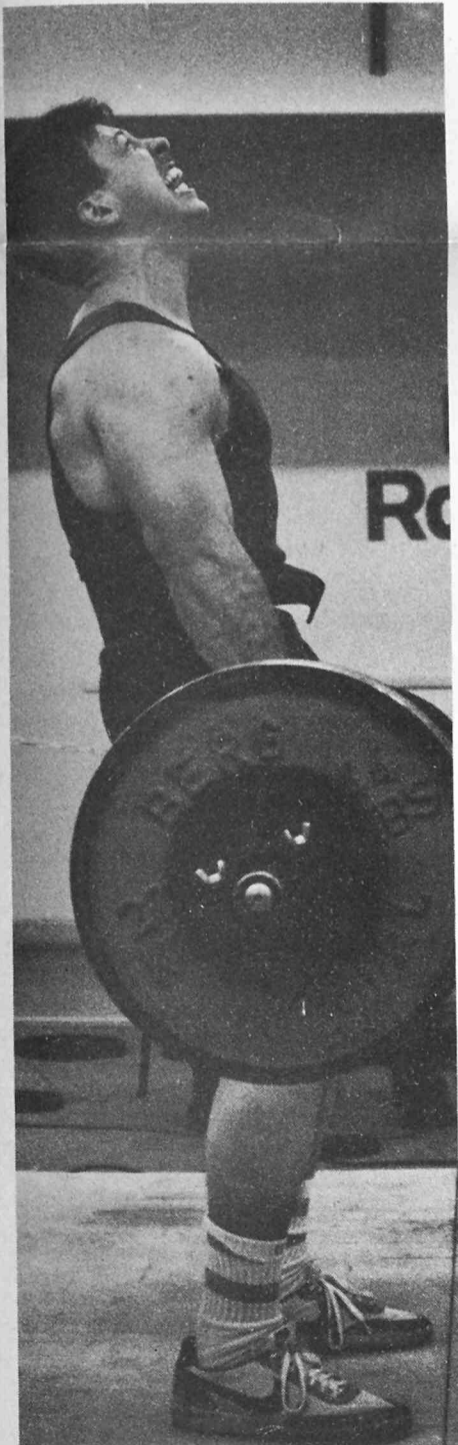

Powerlifters compete within their own weight class which runs from 52 kilograms (about 114 pounds) to the over-125 kilogram class (275 pounds and up).

"The standards for this first meet were very good," said Kearny. "We're going to try and work out with and compete with some of the German clubs and we hope to send our winners to the 1984 United States Army Europe Powerlifting Championships in Heidelberg in May."

Of the 24 lifters in Saturday's championship, eight were guests. One guest, Helmut Kicherin, lifted a meet-high of 610 kilograms in his three best lifts. Kicherin is 57 years old.

One USAREUR record was broken when the brigade's Joan Fagerness bench pressed 72.5 kilograms.

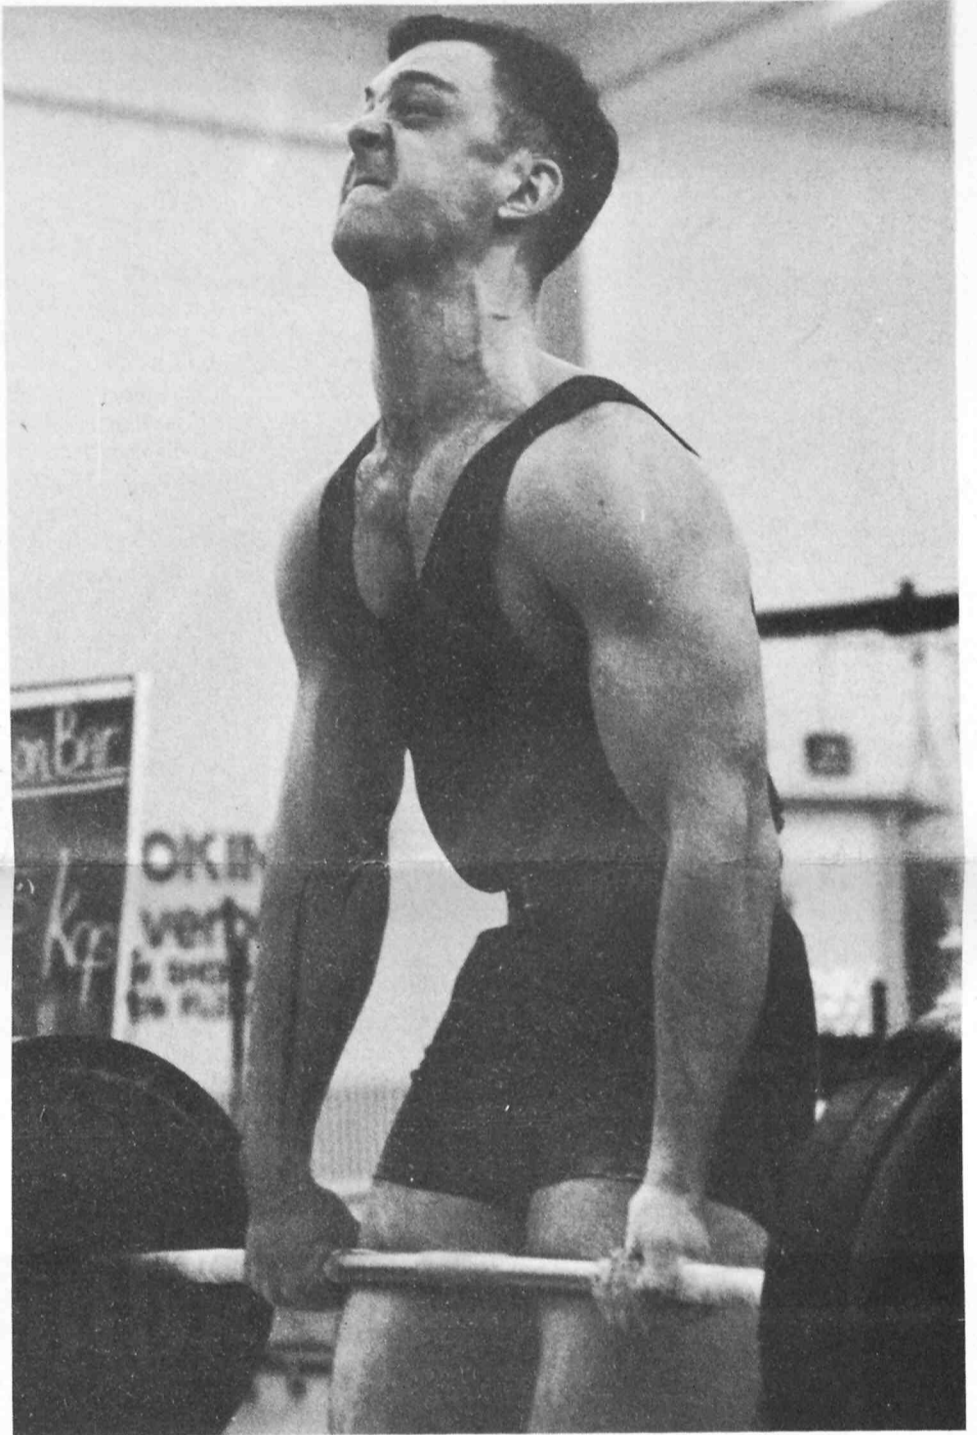

(See powerlifting results on opposite page.)

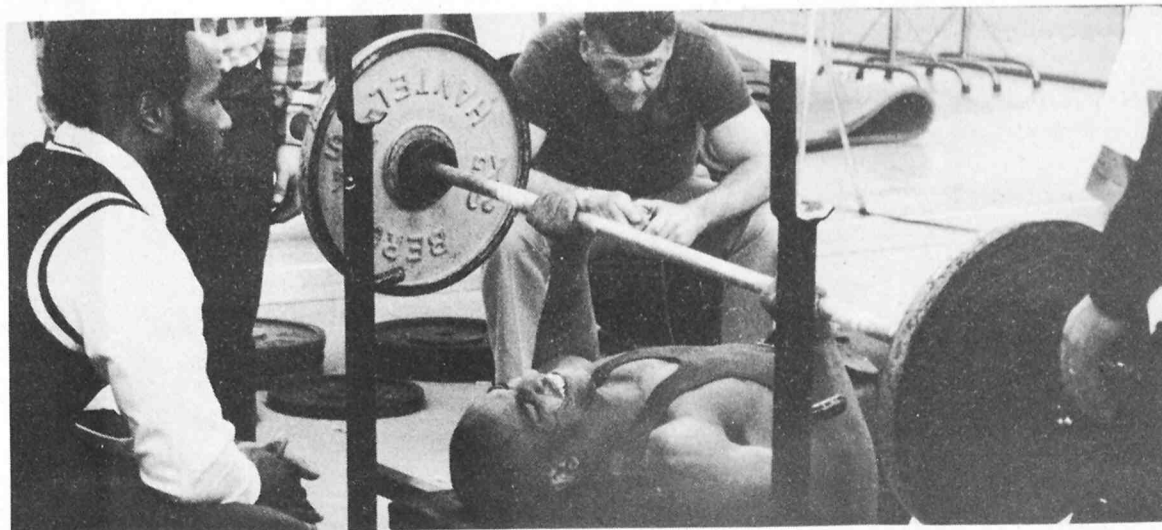

GUEST LIFTER Mark Bingham lifted a total of 565 kg.

ROARING with effort, Charles Bostic benchpresses 165 kg.

USING EVERY MUSCLE he has, Guy Robertson deadlifts 192.5 kg.

STRAINING to lock his elbows, Ralph Nelson battles 105 kg of iron. Photos by Tom Jackson)

Grüne Woche

THE FERRISWHEEL mock-up adds to the atmosphere of a traditional county fair.

Workers were busy all week putting the finishing touches on the American exhibit for Grüne Woche, Berlin's annual agricultural show which opens today.

The theme for the U.S. exhibit this year is County Fair U.S.A. And to help give the hall at the city's exhibition grounds the proper atmosphere, there is a mock-up of a ferris wheel, the Spirit of St. Louis hanging from the ceiling and plenty of food booths offering American favorites.

You can try barbecue ribs, American seafood, tacos or maybe you'd just like a hamburger or hot dog. To go with that you might add corn on the cob. You can wash it all down with California wine, whiskey or maybe you'd prefer fresh squeezed orange juice.

There's more to the exhibit than food and drink, of course. Each day there will be western singing, lasso throwing, Barbershop Quartet singing, gospel music, a magic show, an organ grinder and a variety of other musical entertainment.

According to G.L. Hunt, American exhibit director, he and his staff have tried to bring to Berlin a touch of the spirit, enthusiasm, quaintness and innovation found in American county fairs.

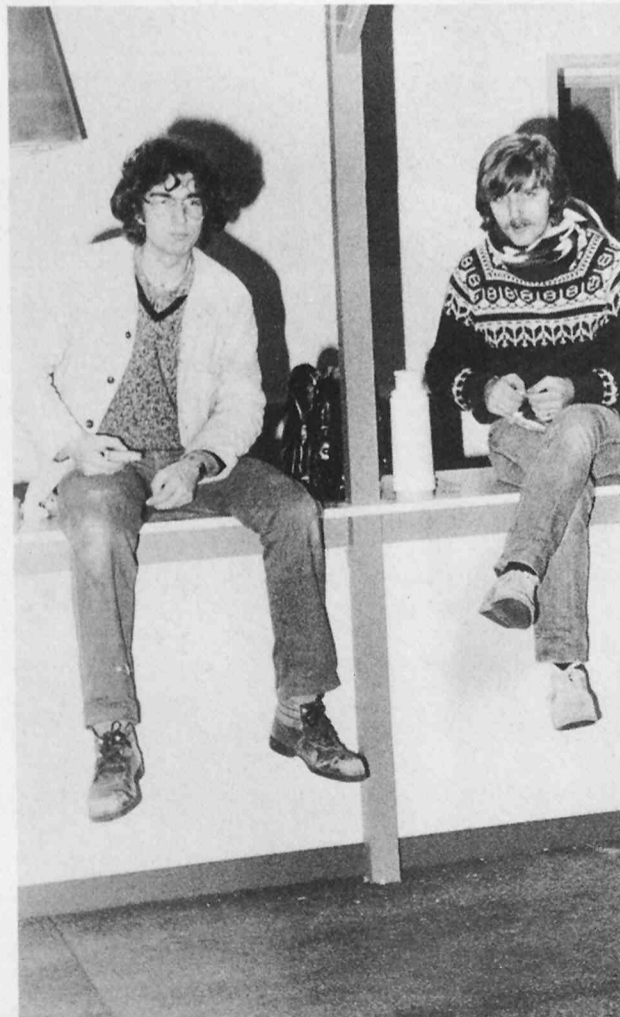

Green Week runs through Feb. 5 at the Messedamm, across from the ICC.

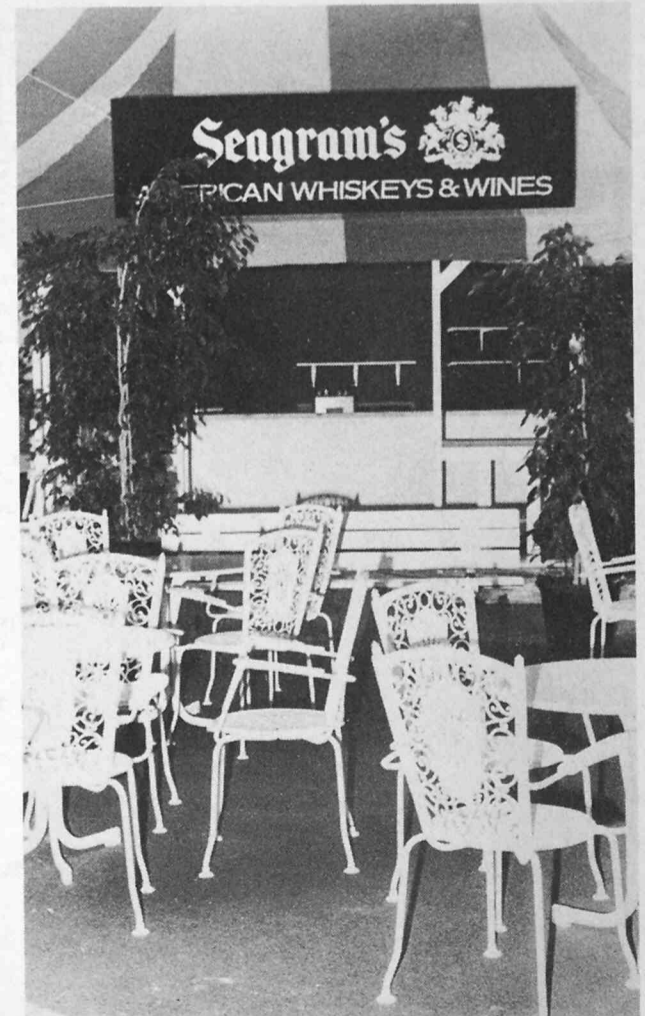

THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS, hanging from the ceiling, is the showpiece.

GRAPHICS DESIGNER William Ganshow painstakingly cuts out a piece of his work for one of the booths.
