4/6 in Doughboy – business as usual

by Damon Elder
4th Battalion Correspondent

A mud-splattered figure in BDUs dashes across a deeply shadowed street toward a first floor window. Contacting the concrete block wall beneath the window with an audible thud, the figure reaches upward and gingerly checks the window sill for wires or obstructions.

A second figure almost identical in the fading light, joins the first and they assume a crouching position on either side of the glassless frame. One figure appears to hurl something through the window and the sound of metal bouncing off concrete echoes from the building's dark interior.

After a pause of a few seconds the other figure springs toward the ledge of the window and disappears into the darkness with a peculiar rolling motion. Again the sound of equipment meeting concrete is clearly heard, and after a split second pause the sound of automatic weapons fire crackles from the building.

Upon receiving a command from inside the second figure disappears through the opening with the same practiced movement, as two more figures rush across the street to assume positions by the window.

Elsewhere along the street a soldier can be seen scaling a slick cement wall using a knotted rope. Although in full gear with a rifle slung diagonally across his back, the soldier negotiates the climb quickly and takes up a position on the rooftop, from which he can cover the next man up the rope.

On the opposite side of the same structure a soldier rushes forward hurdling a coil of barbed concertina wire and disappears through a basement window with a feet first slide which gives the impression of an almost magical quickness to the overall move. Now you see him, now you don't.

The entire street is a variety show of sprinting, diving, rolling figures, the air filled with the sounds of automatic fire and the smell of cordite. There is, however, no carnival atmosphere here, no feeling of fireworks on the Fourth of July. The men involved execute all their moves in a business-like manner, and

briefly

G-3 gets award

With the annual Incentive Awards Campaign about to kick off, a member of the command has already received the first award.

Col. Edward S. Broderick, assistant chief of staff, G-3, won an award from USAREUR Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Glenn K. Otis for facilitating extraordinary improvements in suggestion activity in G-3.

Submissions increased from 10 in Fiscal Year '82 to 87 in '83. Adoptions increased from one to 10. G-3 savings were approximately one-third of the Berlin total.

Parts Hotline

The Army has set up a "Hotline" to question prices of spare parts. The line operates 24 hours a day and may be reached by calling AUTOVON 997-7431 or commercial (717) 782-7431.

Callers must give their name, rank, unit phone number, the stock number of the item and the past and current price of the item in question. They should also give the month and year of the microfiche from which the current price was obtained.

During non-duty hours, the information will be recorded and a representative will check the price and answer your question. During duty hours, you should get an answer on the spot. (ARNEWS)

ROTC applications

One of the lesser known ways for an active duty soldier to get ahead in the Army is through ROTC.

Applications are being accepted for the upcoming school year for graduation with the class of 1986 or '87.

Soldiers can be separated to enroll in the Senior ROTC Program if they have completed a minimum of one year of active duty by the date of discharge for enrollment in ROTC and have satisfactorily completed a minimum of one year of college work.

Applicants must be under 25 years of age on June 30 of the year in which eligible for appointments as a Second Lieutenant, except that up to four years extension may be granted or active duty service, i.e., with two years of active service, candidates must be under 27 at the time of appointment.

All candidates must enlist in an Army Reserve Component for a period of six years, and be accepted as a sophomore or junior by a college or university which offers Army ROTC.

Cadets receive a tax free subsistence allowance of $100 per month during academic years. Graduates obtain a commission and return to active or reserve service as a 2nd Lt.

In addition to the normal program, highly qualified soldiers should apply for a two-year ROTC scholarship or a three-year scholarship, to receive full tuition and financial assistance to cover expenses.

Scholarship applicants must have a GT Score of 115 or higher, a minimum college grade point of 2.0 or more on a 4 point system, a minimum score of 180 or higher on the Army Physical Readiness Test and favorable recommendations by the unit commander and first Field Grade Officer in the soldier's chain of command.

Completed applications must arrive at TRADOC Headquarters no later than April 1, to be considered for the '84-'85 school year.

Assistance can be obtained from AG Personal Actions at 819-6586.

MARRIED COUPLES' DEDUCTION

Two-earner couples who file a joint return may be able to deduct 10% of the qualified earned income of the lesser earning spouse. The maximum deduction for 1983 is $3,000.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

New song needed

The Army's new Aviation Branch is conducting a competition to find its own song.

The competition is open to everyone 18 years or older.

The song should be easily adaptable to marching arrangement for military bands at a standard cadence of 120 beats per minute and would be preferred in standard verse chorus format (no more than two melodies). The song must be easily sung by an average untrained voice and be moderate in voice range.

The submission should be recorded on high quality cassette tape and the tape, along with full piano score and sketch score (lead lines and chords) should be mailed to:

Commander, USAAVNC
Attn.: ATZQ-P
Ft. Rucker, AL 36362

All submissions must be received no later than 5 p.m., May 1, '84. The winner will be announced June 15. The winner must agree to copyright the song and assign the unnumbered copyright to the Army.

The winner will receive a $ 250 savings bond, and the original sheet music, along with a photograph of the award ceremony will be placed on display in the U.S. Army Aviation Museum.

All non-winning entries will be returned.

AFN special show

First Lady Nancy Reagan will host a two-hour documentary program, "Chemical People," on AFN Berlin TV.

The first hour to be seen Monday at 7:30 p.m., concerns the growing problem of alcohol and drug dependency spreading throughout America.

The second hour entitled: "The Community Answers" deals with the investigation of this critical problem. This program may be seen March 5 at 7:30 p.m.

The Community Commander Brig. Gen. Leroy N. Suddath, Jr., will introduce the program and certified counselors will be available after the program at the following telephones if viewers have any questions concerning drug and alcohol abuse: 819-3347; 819-3294 and 819-3631.

New FAO policy

Finance and Accounting has implemented a new policy.

Currently, many payments exceeding $500 are paid in cash. In most cases, the service member doesn't need such large amounts in cash and must take them directly to a financial institution for deposit or to the APO to purchase a money order to send to a stateside account. This policy imposes both additional risk of loss and time commitments upon the service member.

The new policy will require that all payments larger than $500 be paid by check. This check may not be cashed at the Finance Office. This will decrease the amount of money the U.S. Treasury is required to maintain overseas and reduce this cost to the U.S. Government.

It will also bring FAO in line with cash utilization regulations, but more importantly, it will match the payment method with the needs of the majority of service members.

The check will be much easier to transport or mail and will involve less risk of loss. It will also lessen the need of a service member to go to multiple places to accomplish one need.

Range: Computer takes over new firing facility

by Doris Flack

The Army's most modern firing range was officially opened last Friday as Brig. Gen. Leroy N. Suddath, Jr., Berlin Brigade commander, cut the ceremonial ribbon.

The new firing range, located at Keeran's Range, is completely computerized with 15 firing lanes that have six targets each, spaced 50-meters apart.

In his remarks during the ceremony, Suddath thanked each brigade section that helped with the planning and construction — G-3, Directorate of Engineering and Housing, Procurement and G-1 Safety — in conjunction with the civilian contractors.

According to Capt. James LaVoie, brigade range officer, the new range should make qualification easier to conduct and verify. He added the range, built at a cost of more than $1 million, would benefit the firers as well. "They will no longer have to move up and down the range to fire at a static target," he said.

The range got its first tryout this week as 2nd Battalion moved en masse to the site for battalion-wide qualification (see related story page 5).

Of the soldiers who have fired on the new range, most were impressed with the quickness in qualifying it offers. Sp4 James Malone, Company A, 2nd Battalion, felt the range was pretty good, but set up for right-handed firers. In the foxhole position, lefties are at a disadvantage, he claimed.

For Sp4 Raymond Easterling and Sgt. Andreas Garcia, both of Alpha Company, it was another problem. "It's rough for short people," said Easterling. Added Garcia, "The foxholes are too deep." Both stated the new range was an improvement over the old, however.

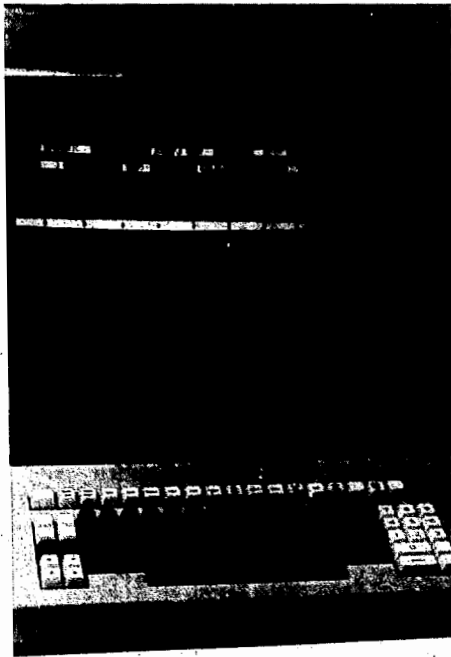

SSgt. Wayde Wilson, also of Co. A, ran the computer for 2nd Bn.'s field fire and qualification tables. He attended a two-week intensive course to become familiar with the operation of the computer. And as author of the scenario, he decided which targets would pop up and when.

According to SFC James Brooks, Keerans Range NCO in charge, the computer is equipped to run any scenario entered. The scenarios, submitted by unit commanders, are put on tapes and inserted into the computer when wanted. The Guardian Battalion arrived at the range with nine different scenarios already on tape.

Most of the firers at the range this week agreed with remarks made by Suddath at the ceremony. "This is a great range," he said. "A great training facility."

2nd Battalion qualifies at new range

by Roger Lund
2nd Battalion Correspondent

The 2nd Battalion has been engaged in M-16 qualification at Keerans Range during this week and is expected to continue in weapons qualification and training next week. Utilizing the new range with its computerized system of scoring, the Guardians are showing the results of the week of preparation.

Last week each company in the battalion began intensive marksmanship training with Preliminary Rifle Instruction. It amounted to 16 hours of training to prepare the battalion for their trip to Keerans Range.

It is no longer the usual system of zeroing the weapon and heading to the qualification range and hoping for the best. When the soldier arrived at the range they were immediately inspected for proper equipment and weapon cleanliness. Six concurrent training stations were established to further reinforce their marksmanship background. These stations ranged from target detection and distance determination to marksmanship techniques.

As CSM Robert O'Connell stated, it was all designed as confidence building. "A great deal of instruction is involved toward the final goal of qualification. The training is designed to simply help the soldier," O'Connell added.

SFC Earl Williams, overall coordinator for the battalion's marksmanship effort, believes the battalion's efforts mirror those of the Army. "Many felt that this is a return to basic training. In many respects it is. Marksmanship is the same throughout the Army. In basic training, the training companies had the time. What we are doing is showing that there must be a commitment to this marksmanship effort," Williams observed.

There were two firing ranges utilized by the battalion with two tasks each.

At one range the soldiers would zero their individual weapons. Afterwards they proceeded to the time fire. They engaged the first set of targets where they sought to hit six targets regardless of time. Prepared for the time fire, the soldiers fired at ten targets in 55 seconds. In order to proceed to the next range, they have to score a certain percentage of hits.

The next range is involved in field fire and actual qualification fire. The field fire is designed to familiarize the soldiers with the actual range and to determine their marksmanship progress. The soldier has to be completely prepared for the qualification fire before being allowed to attempt to qualify.

For soldiers diagnosed as needing assistance, individual corrective training and the Berlin Brigade's Weaponeer is used. The Weaponeer is a converted bus where basic marksmanship skills are diagnosed and remedied.

Once the soldier steps onto the qualification range, he is ready to be scored by the computer and hit the multiple distance targets that range from 50 to 300 meters — six different targets in all.

While many felt that the range may lack the sophistication of ones found at Fort Benning, Ga., it was determined by all to be an overwhelming improvement over the last one. Sp4 Johnny Royal remarked that it is an excellent range and challenged the marksmanship skills of all. Many echoed his sentiments.

Besides the challenge to qualify and perhaps win the Triad coin for marksmanship, there were contests within the battalion as well. Awards are to be given to the best individual marksman, best squad, and best platoon in each company. Additionally, an award will be presented to the best company in the battalion. As part of the squad level competition, a timed 12-kilometer road march with rucksacks from the range to McNair Barracks took place.

CONCURRENT TRAINING — Since all of 2nd Battalion's soldiers couldn't be on the firing line at once, M-16

Yanks beat local team

A hunger for victory is becoming more and more evident within the ranks of the Berlin Yanks rugby football club.

After grappling with a season opening loss and a 1-1 split the following weekend, the Yanks roared back with vengeance Sunday, trampling the Siemens team 30-6 at McNair's Defender Field.

The victory put the Yanks at 2-2 for the season. But keep in mind both victories were by 24 points each while in two defeats the Yanks have given up a total of only 17 points.

In Sunday's game, Siemens scored with two penalty kicks giving them an early 6-0 lead.

From that point on, however, the Yanks dominated.

Anthony Newman scored the first try for the Yanks and with Tom Koballa's conversion kick the game was tied at 6-6.

The Yanks hit paydirt again before the end of the half when Greg Zipf ripped into the end zone to make it 10-6 for the Yanks.

In the second half Yanks' Jim Bruins ran in two tries and Koballa churned out two tries and two conversion kicks to bring the final score to 30-6.

Yanks coach Koballa credited the team's win to a total team effort adding that the scrum playing was superb and allowed the running backs to keep the ball alive and score repeatedly.

The Yanks' next game will be with the Stadium 1 team, Sunday, 2 p.m. at Maifeld.

Finals tonite for USAB basketball tourney

If you've seen a lot of steam and smoke pouring out of the doors of the Sports Center Gym this past week, don't worry — it's only the 1984 United States Army Berlin Basketball Championship going in full and furious swing.

Wednesday night, four teams remained in the double elimination competition. Out of the 15 games played thus far, Charlie Battery, 94th Field Artillery has emerged as the only undefeated team in the winners' bracket.

On Thursday night Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion will grapple with Combat Support Company, 2nd Battalion and the winner of that match will take on Company A, 4th Battalion to determine who will emerge out of the losers' bracket.

In double elimination rules, if the team emerging from the losers' bracket defeats C-94 in game number 18 on Friday night, they will play again, that night, for a final game to determine who has the best basketball team in Berlin.

Predictions, however, in this fast-break, two-fisted league, are out of the question. This is serious, gutsy basketball.

Of the 15 games played to date there have been five overtimes and seven games with a point spread of six or less.

The championships kicked off Monday night with a tremendous struggle that Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion finally won 71-65 over United States Army Communication Command, Field Station Berlin — in no less than three overtimes. In the second game Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion narrowly defeated 40th Armor 51-50.

Co. A, 4th Bn. managed to wrest a 56-47 victory over Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Berlin Brigade; Combat Support Company, 2nd Battalion nipped HHC, 3rd Bn., 57-49; 4th Bn. squeaked by Co. C, 3rd Bn. 54-48.

In the remaining games Monday, HHC, 2nd Bn. edged out 40th Armor 42-39 and in overtime HHC, BBde won over USACC, FSB 76-73.

Tuesday night saw Co. A, 4th Bn.

whip CSC, 2nd Bn. 67-46 and four other teams battling to stay alive in the losers' bracket. Of these HHC, 3rd Bn. beat HHC, 2nd Bn. 54-43; and HHC, BBde. narrowly defeated Co. C, 3rd Bn. 61-60. Wrapping up the night, C-94 downed HHC, 4th Bn. 49-42.

On Wednesday, CSC 2nd Bn. ended HHC BBde.'s chance for the title with a 60-56 victory in overtime and HHC, 3rd Bn. stopped HHC, 4th Bn. 69-60. In the final game of the night, Undefeated C-94 won over Co. A, 4th Bn. 55-48.

The championship game will be played today starting at 6 p.m. with the possible tie-breaker at 7:45 p.m. at the Berlin Brigade Sports Center Gym.

USAREUR basketball

Berlin has been selected as the site of the 1984 USAREUR mens basketball positional playoffs. The match-ups will be held at the Sports Center Gym on Hüttenweg March 9-11.

The tournament will pit four commands — Berlin, 26th Support Group, 7th ATC, and SETAF — against one another in double-elimination play to be followed by finals and semi-finals, best of three games series conducted on a home and home basis.

The first game gets underway at 6 p.m. and will pit 7th

ATC against SETAF. Berlin will take on the 26th Support Group at 8 p.m. March 9.

About 60 participants are expected.

Racquetball

The 1984 USAB Racquetball championship has been scheduled to take place March 5-9, from 5 to 10 p.m. at the Berlin Brigade Sports Center courts.

The top four finishers in open singles, top two finishers in the senior singles (35 years and over), and the two top finishers in women's singles will represent Berlin in the USAREUR Championships, which will be held on April 5-8, at Wiesbaden.

The Berlin Championship will be a double elimination best of three, two 15 points, tie breaker 11 points contest and all players should be ready to play one half hour before scheduled game. The tournament director will conduct a drawing to decide pairings prior to the tournament starting date. The winner of each match will referee the next match in the same court. Awards will be presented to the first and second place finishers in each category.

Cut off for sign up for the USAB Championship is close of business March 2. For further information call MSAD Physical Activities Branch at 819-6768. Tournament director is sports coordinator Tom Kearney.

Bear-A-Cudas

by Tom Jackson

They keep the sort of hours that even a first sergeant would groan at.

When most morning coffee pots are just beginning to gurgle and perk, the Bear-A-Cudas Swim Team is already in the pool swimming laps. Reporting time for the morning workout is 5:15 a.m. at Andrews pool.

And they return in the afternoon and continue swimming laps from 4:15 to 6:15 p.m. Two workouts a day, five days a week. On Saturdays they relax with just one workout, from 8 to 10 in the morning.

If you wonder how anybody could get some 72 teenagers and pre-teens to keep, let alone volunteer, for such grueling hours, the answer can be found in three key ingredients — an enthusiastic coaching staff, a large and active Bear-A-Cudas Booster Club, and most of all, the kids themselves, dedicated, unafraid, and indefatigable.

"We work hard," said Colquhoun, an ex-swimmer, "but I don't want to come across as a machine so I try to make sure that we have fun as well. The workouts are demanding but we do have fun.

"It's impressive to see how hard these kids can work. When you see kids as young as ten and under swim lap after lap, day in and day out and exceed the goals you've set for them and then, without any question or hesitation, dive in and tackle a new set of goals, you can't help but be impressed."

Backing up this speedy school of 'Cuda fish is what is probably the largest, most active parents group in the command, the Bear-A-Cudas Booster Club, made up of parents from 44 families.

"Without the booster club it would be hard to keep the team running," said Colquhoun. "They sell T-shirts, run the concession stands and a booth at the Volksfest to raise money for equipment and trips. They also organize and help officiate at the meets."

They also photograph, videotape and generally yell like crazy whenever their team is churning through the pool against another.

But what it all boils down to it the kids — swimming from 2,500-5,500 meters a day, plus meets from August to April with summer workouts to improve technique.

And that's enough to make anybody groan but you won't hear any complaints from the Bear-A-Cuda swimmers. They are too busy having fun.

THE 'CUDA BOOSTERS CLUB, made up of parents of swimmers, mark the swimmers' times during the meet with SHAPE last month.

DON'T LAUGH, YOU'RE NEXT. Bear-A-Cuda's coach Ted Colquhoun inspires a few chuckles when he explains just who is going to swim what during a recent practice.

IT ALL COMES DOWN TO THIS. Casey Buntun, 3rd ranked in the 10-and-under-boys in the EFSL in the 50-meter freestyle, digs hard toward the finish

during the 'Cudas' meet with SHAPE last month. (Photos by Tom Jackson)

Magnum P.I., Paper Chase highlight AFN for March

by Mark White
Chief, AFN Programming

AFN will feature six new series starting this month.

One of America's top TV stars, Tom Selleck, is back as the wisecracking, fun-loving, freeloading, freelance private eye, the most popular in Paradise. He's Tom Selleck, starring as Magnum.

Filmed on location in Hawaii, the new season opens with a large crate addressed to Higgins yielding a frightened Japanese girl escaping from her paranoid father.

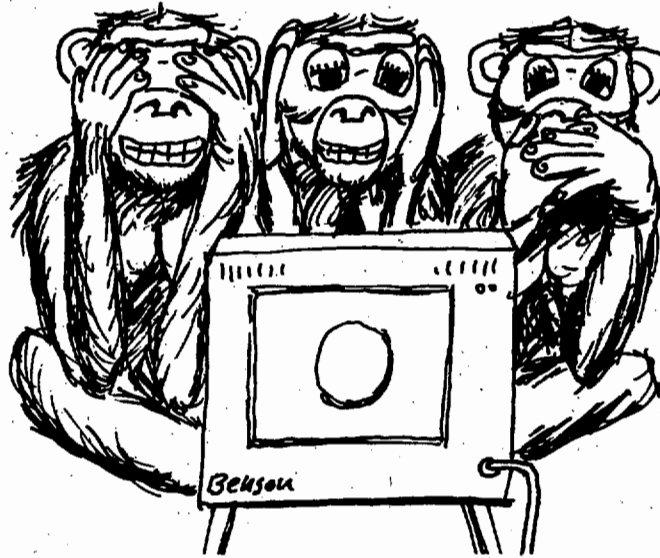

Gary Coleman returns in the comedy favorite "Diff'rent Strokes."

Although the series concentrates on comedy, it also deals with serious subjects, such as an episode on drugs in school which features First Lady Nancy Reagan.

"The Paper Chase" is back starring John Houseman recreating his Oscar-winning role as the professor of young students who have chosen one of the best law schools in the country and the finest, most-respected teacher of law.

The 1954 hit movie, "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," starring Jane Powell and Howard Keel, is adapted for TV and filmed on location in Calaveras County, California, featuring seven high-spirited brothers and one stubborn woman fighting for their ranch and their way of life.

Other new shows to watch for are "Comedy Shop" with a different group of comedians every week; "Gimme A Break" in which a widowed police captain hires Tony Award-winner Nell Carter to care for his three kids; and "Glitter" hosted by Claire Olsen talking about news from Hollywood with the people making it.

Some of the top movies of the month: Joanne Woodward in a '78 flick enters the grueling 26-mile Boston Marathon in "See How She Runs," which won her an Emmy; "Loophole" with Albert Finney and Martin Sheen, shot in London in 1981, is a drama/mystery dealing with a team of dedicated and skilled safe-crackers; the delightful musical "Silk Stockings" starring Fred Astaire and Cyd Charisse. A delightful bit of nonsense in which an American producer in Paris hires a Russian composer for his production. John LeCarre's best selling novel, "The Spy Who Came in Out of the Cold" got top reviews, and stars Richard Burton and Claire Bloom. The story is about hypocrisy and betrayal in the weird world of espionage. Scenes were shot in 1966 at the Berlin Wall.

"A Doll's House" starring Jane Fonda and Edward Fox is the classic by Henrik Ibsen, a story of a subjugated housewife who breaks free to establish herself as an independent and free woman.

Phil Donahue has an intriguing array of guests this month. You'll see the talented and unpredictable Bette Midler talk about her career and answer some sharp questions; presidential aspirant Jesse Jackson talks about what he stands for prior to his announcement as presidential candidate; famous Broadway and Hollywood musical actress, Ann Miller, teamed up with one of the veterans of show biz, Mickey Rooney; and the eloquent Art Buchwald tells about his work and how much he "needs" Washington to implement his brand of political humor.

"Merv" guests include Oscar-winner Ben Kingsley reminiscing on his starring role as "Gandhi," shot over some four years in Africa, India and England; the beautiful and talented actress Cheryl Ladd; two medical experts relating the dangers of using the deadly drug, cocaine; and the theme "A Project of World Peace" is discussed with His Royal Highness, Prince Charles.

Then watch our "Berlin Tonight" with the highly mobile AFN Berlin News Team headed up by Sp5 Kyle King; and the latest, most interesting Berlin happenings with Senior Airman Jerry Cormier on "Berlin P.M."

Doughboy

troops, and learn quickly how critical each man's performance is to the team mission.

Shouts of "you're dead, you and your whole team," are often heard as soldiers are reminded that one man, making one wrong move, can be fatal to everyone in his team.

To miss one camouflaged "mouse hole," to forget to check one door for trip wires, to get so involved with what's in front of you that you ignore the windows overhead, these are only a few of the potentially lethal mistakes the soldier must avoid in order to remain alive in an urban combat environment.

Doughboy teaches these inner city soldiers to seek cover without having to think about it, to anticipate an enemy's defense and act accordingly, to build a defensive position invisible to an enemy assault. With continued exposure to Doughboy, the men of 4/6 have learned where to look and what to look for, often spotting danger areas and enemy positions or movements which would go unnoticed by conventionally trained personnel.

The hard way

Doughboy offers a very inhospitable environment to the untrained soldier, but even veterans of many 4/6 exercises have little love for the area. Soldiers are often heard to remark, "If it's freezing at McNair, it's below zero in Doughboy." The summer is better, but mud is still an ever-present problem, drying on equipment with the hardness of cement.

The training itself requires a soldier to meet and exceed his standards of endurance and ruggedness of attitude. Superficial injuries are almost a sure thing, as soldier meets mud or cement with bone jarring force, in the process of "doing it right."

Rolling through windows onto concrete floors a good three feet below is doing things the hard way. It's also the right way, the NCOs controlling the training will accept nothing less. Taking the wrong turn on Doughboy's sloppy streets can bring a soldier in painful contact with barbed concertina wire, an ever-present hazard.

Sometimes the trooper can stop in time to avoid the concertina. On other occasions he is not so lucky and is left to pick his way out, as the sound of his NCOs' corrections and his BDUs ripping rings in his ears.

As unpleasant as training in Doughboy can be it is generally considered by soldiers in 4/6 to be critical. No one fools around when they practice at Doughboy, it's tough enough to get it right the first time.

Like stunt men, these soldiers hate retakes, and do not take kindly to other peoples' mistakes causing them to repeatedly crawl through the same puddles, and throw themselves against the same cement walls and floors.

There is considerable peer pressure to "get it, and get it right," the first time.

Doughboy style

Although the men of the "With Pride" battalion keep their conventional skills sharp with periodic trips to other training areas in Berlin and West Germany, the skills and attitudes ingrained by Doughboy are the factors which make them unique. In exercise early this year, 4/6 in conjunction with British units went to Bonnland, West Germany, as part of their program to perfect Combat-in-Cities techniques. The name of the town was different, but the game was the same.

The training area is not important. It could be a 50-km-raid at Wildflecken, or a move-out alert to the Grunewald. It could be too hot or too cold, day or night, conventional or Combat-in-Cities, it doesn't really matter. The 4/6 only fights one way, because they are only taught one way — the hard way, the right way. They do it "Doughboy Style."
